BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, July 8.—[Friday.]—The French and British delegates to the reparations conference at 2:45 o'clock this morning announced that they were in agreement on the preamble of a proposed reparations treaty in which are mentioned political considerations which Germany insists be covered in the treaty, such as Germany's war guilt.

The French and British expressed hope that the Germans would accept the preamble, thus clearing the way for a final settlement of the reparations problem. The Germans will render their verdict today.

The preamble is said to be worded so as to enable the Germans to return to Berlin and announce that Germany's equality in the right to arm and absolution from the war guilt are mentioned, and to enable the French to insist that they are not.

Came on Verge of Failure.

This development came after it had appeared late last night that the conference was on the verge of failure. After a final refusal by the French to accept the political conditions which the Germans attached to their last offer of $650,000,000 as a lump sum in settlement of reparations for all time, Chancellor von Papen of Germany declared that as far as he could see, the negotiations had broken down completely. This $650,000,000 offer by Germany represents a reduction from the original reparations bill of $65,000,000,000.

Chancellor von Papen's outburst was followed by a conference between the British and French delegates. Near midnight the German chancellor received a call saying that the British delegation wished to see him. There he was shown the carefully worded preamble. Shortly thereafter came the announcement of the French-British agreement.

Meeting Seemed Doomed.

The conference at one stage early last night seemed doomed to be a certain and complete flop. Chancellor von Papen lost his temper and told Herriot and MacDonald that they might try adjourning the conference until next spring and see how much they would get out of Germany then. They would get 2,600,000,000 marks now but not a red cent then, he warned.

Herriot said coolly:

"I like Lausanne well enough. I'll stay here as long as you," indicating that he was all set to pin the blame on Germany.

When frazzled tempers were cooled, however, later in the evening, developments took a turn for the better, and with the French and British reaching an accord the delegates were decidedly more optimistic.

6 Papers Ready to Sign.

Six documents are being prepared for signature here. The first is the treaty of Lausanne, properly speaking, in which the reparations chapter is declared closed and Germany agrees to pay a blank sum.

The second is a political declaration in which it is agreed to do nothing that would trouble the economic peace of the world.

The third is a protocol taking care of non-German or so-called oriental reparations which are to benefit by a moratorium to Dec. 15 at the latest. Between now and then the little powers who have been cooling their heels here none too patiently are expected to reach an accord along the lines laid down by this conference.

To Agree on Debts.

The fourth is an agreement on inter-allied debts, France's and Italy's to Britain, on which payments have been suspended until the Lausanne treaty is ratified, which is, by a virtual gentleman's agreement, not to take place until a "satisfactory" settlement is reached with the United States on the war debts owed it.

The fifth comprises arrangements for a world economic conference for which two arrangements committees were appointed here, one financial and the other, economic.

The sixth is a second gentleman's agreement by which the powers owing money to the United States agree to keep each other informed of their negotiations with Washington and consult before reaching an accord. There is to be a letter from the five debtors of the United States who are creditors of Germany notifying Germany of this fact, according to the formula now in hand.

BEER BILL HAS DEMOCRATS ON RUN IN SENATE

Ashurst Busy Trying to Explain.

Beer Gets No Aid Now

New light was shed yesterday on the attitude of the two presidential candidates toward beer and the liquor question.

Mr. Hoover, according to James R. Garfield, will stand on the straddle plank adopted at Chicago and the party will make no move to commit itself to modification. Page 4.

Gov. Roosevelt declines to make any personal effort to influence congress on the bills for immediate beer. But he indicates he stands wholeheartedly for the Democratic repeal plank. Page 5.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Congressional advocates of immediate modification of the Volstead act pressed their fight for a beer bill today in the face of odds that were weighed against them by a political split in the wet bloc in both houses.

Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] presented his beer amendment to the home loan bank bill to a senate in which some 15 to 20 wet Republicans are the only ones anxious for an outright vote to modify the dry laws and repeal the eighteenth amendment.

The same situation held true in the house, where militant members of the Republican wet bloc pressed their demand that Speaker Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, live up to his party pledge.

Senate Democrats Dodge.

With the Bingham amendment to legalize 3.2 per cent beer the immediate issue, the senate was the principal theater of the beer battle. The dodging of the senate Democrats was anxious and agile.

Wet Democrats and dry Democrats were united in their perturbed desire to avoid a showdown. Senators who a few days ago were whooping it up for modification and outright repeal at Chicago today were equally voluble in explaining how "immediate" might be construed to mean "next December."

"If you don't like the Bingham amendment," cried Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], "put up a bill of your own and we on the Republican side will help."

Angry Democratic refusals were his only answer.

Ashurst Is Spokesman.

From the first of the debate, when Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] offered himself as spokesman for the Democratic board of strategy, it was evident what the Democratic tactics would be.

"An attempt to put the Bingham amendment on the home loan bank bill," said the Arizonian, "will not help the bank bill, nor will it get 'nearer beer.' Not," he hastened to add, "that I fear a roll call or a vote."

Senator Bingham, author of the beer amendment, started after him.

Stands for Wet Plank—but——

"I stand without equivocation or evasion for the Democratic platform," insisted Senator Ashurst. "But——"

At that "but" the Connecticut senator, who led the repeal fight at the Republican convention, cocked an insinuating eyebrow.

"No Democrat will dodge," Senator Ashurst went on. "But——"

Senator Glenn couldn't help smiling.

"But it is up to the Democrats to say when the platform will be put into effect," protested the Arizona senator. "It is an idle gesture to try to do it now in this fashion. The country does not expect it."

Glenn Interrupts Arizonian.

"Is the beer bill so weak it must be tied to the home loan bank bill?" asked Senator Ashurst.

"Is your interest in the Democratic platform so weak that you must wait until December?" retorted the Illinois senator. "I expected the Democrats

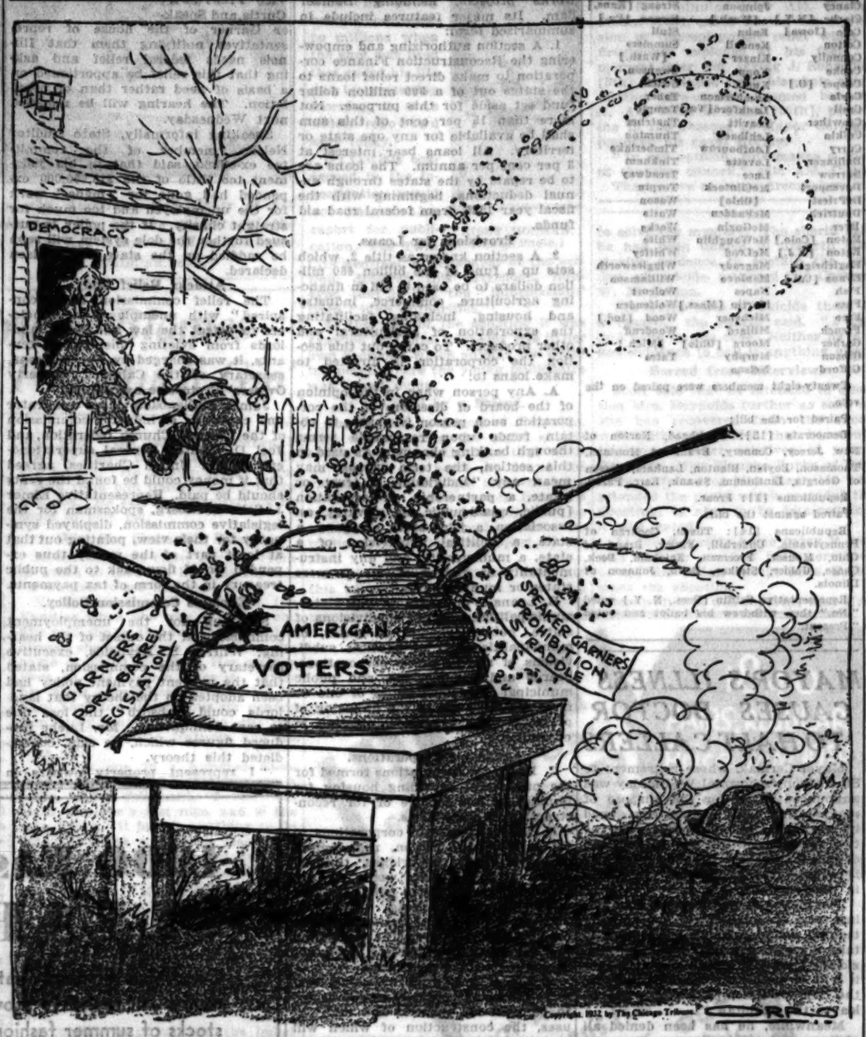
HE'S STARTED SOMETHING



TO BIRCH OR NOT TO BIRCH LITTLE WILLIE; THAT'S BRITISH ISSUE

LONDON, July 7.—(AP)—While the world was worrying about disarmament, reparations and depression today, the British house of lords and house of commons took time out to fight a round in their old scrap over the question of whipping little Willie.

The issue concerns juvenile offenders, whether policemen should birch them if magistrates order them to do so. The government's children's bill contain no such clause, but the house of lords inserted one after several peers had testified that birching had done them good in their youth.

Last week the house of commons eliminated the whipping clause, and returned it to the peers, who promptly put it back. The bill now goes back to the commons.

107,000 German Jobless Are Put to Work in Month

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 7.—Figures released today show that 107,000 of Germany's unemployed found jobs during June, reducing the total seeking work to 5,476,000. Unemployment figures now are 653,000 below the winter peak. In the corresponding period last year they sank by more than a million.

Battle Sea to Save 63 Sunk in French Sub

BULLETIN.

PARIS, July 8 (Friday.)—(AP)—The Havas news agency said today, according to reports received by it from Cherbourg, that the position of the sunken submarine Promethee had been located. Vice Admiral Le Do, maritime prefect, was rushing to the spot, it said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHERBOURG, France, July 7.—Sixty-three sailors, officers and marine technicians plunged to almost certain death when the 1,400 ton French submarine Promethee suddenly sank with its hatches open off the Normandy coast today. Seven of the crew, including Lieut. Dumesnil, the commander, were miraculously saved.

The disaster, the causes of which are unknown, occurred during secret tests of the submersible, one of the powerful new undersea cruisers of the French navy. The vessel was cruising at a moderate speed on the surface seven miles north of Cape Levi, near here.

Without warning, as suddenly as if hit by a shell, the submarine plunged below the surface, then slanted into a long dive that carried it down to the bottom 150 feet below.

Seven Swept into Sea.

An ensign and five men who were standing on the bridge at the moment were swept into the ocean. Commander Dumesnil, hearing strange noises, rushed to the bridge to see what had happened. At that moment the submarine sank under his feet and he was hurled into the sea with the other six.

With no life belts the men struggled in the heavy sea for 40 minutes, shouting for help. A fishing boat a half mile away heard their cries and snatched them, half drowned, from the ocean.

The rest of the crew and the naval experts and workmen who were on board watching the trial went down imprisoned in the steel shell and were almost certainly drowned by water rushing through the open hatchway. All hope for them has been officially given up.

Fail to Locate Hull.

Late tonight the hull of the sunken submarine had not been located. A subchaser and five tugs are battling swift undersea currents through the night with drags, and navy divers are making ready for a plunge when the wreck is located. Hydroplanes and navy dirigibles also aided in the search.

A drastic censorship, clamped on telegraph wires and telephones by naval authorities at Cherbourg, prevented reports of the disaster, which occurred around noon, from reaching Paris until after 6 p. m.

No explanation was given for the sudden sinking of the vessel. The maritime prefecture late tonight stated officially that a report is being prepared, but declared that naval authorities are unable to attempt any suggestion of the cause of the disaster.

The Promethee had never dived. It was launched in 1930, but its machinery was radically overhauled recently in the greatest secrecy. It had set out from the naval base early today for its first surface tests. As no diving could be attempted until these tests were carried through to satisfaction of the naval engineers on board, submerging trials were not scheduled until tomorrow. This is considered a possible explanation for the absence of automatic safety helmets and other devices which might have allowed the imprisoned crew to escape to the surface.

Appeared All Right.

The Promethee was noticed at various points along the coast at different times throughout the morning and everything seemed to be going normally. There were no witnesses to the sinking other than the seven survivors who were said to be too exhausted to give any coherent explanation and in any case were being closely guarded from questioners at the naval hospital here.

Two heroes of the catastrophe were Skipper Yves Nicol of the fishing

'MA' KENNEDY TRIES TO SHED WHAT-A-MAN, BUT HE BOUNCES BACK

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—[Special.]—The Rev. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy-Hudson drove her husband, Guy "What-a-Man" Hudson to Riverside, Cal., last Tuesday on his way eastward, and "would have driven him even farther, as far as the state line, to help him get away and get launched on some work," after which she returned "with relief," she said, to her cottage at Hermosa Beach.

"Ma's" relief didn't last long, however, for Hudson was back at the Hermosa Beach cottage today, having obtained a lift back to "Ma's" sheltering haven.

"Ma" expressed herself as "real angry." She demanded Hudson tell her what arrangement he had written to make with Ryland G. Taylor, an attorney of Las Vegas.

"Ma" turned to visitors from Los Angeles newspapers and told them:

"I know what it's about. Mr. Hudson got into a gambling and drinking bout at Las Vegas. There is a collection agency threatening to sue him.

"I drove him to Riverside to help him get a new start somewhere. But it turned out the way it always does. He's back here again today and I don't know what to do about him."

Forced Down in Russia as Controls Fail

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, July 8 (Friday).—(AP)—The Tass News agency reported today that James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, American round the world flyers, were forced down at 1 a. m. yesterday near Borisov, 50 miles from Minsk, due to faulty controls on the plane.

The plane was wrecked, the report said. There was no indication whether the flyers were injured.

BERLIN, July 8.—[Friday.]—More than a day having elapsed without word of the round the world flying team of James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, belief became stronger tonight that their red, white, and blue plane had been forced down somewhere in the sparsely populated Russian steppes.

At 3 a. m., Chicago time, the air racers had not been sighted for 33 hours. They were 27 hours overdue at Moscow and 15 hours overdue at Omsk should they have changed their plans and not stopped at the Russian capital.

The men who sped daringly over the Atlantic yesterday to Berlin and shattered all ocean hop speed marks had fallen behind about fourteen hours in their race to break the globe girdling record of a little more than eight and one-half days now held by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Plane Must Be Down.

Most discouraging to their backers, however, was the fact that after they crossed the Polish border three hours after leaving Berlin at 3 p. m. Chicago time yesterday they have not been heard from.

Since their fuel supply of 600 gallons taken on at Berlin would have lasted only 21 hours, their Century of Progress monoplane must have landed or crashed.

Two theories prevailed today as to the fate of the American pair. Either they were forced down somewhere between Berlin and Moscow and have been unable to communicate with the world or they reached Moscow and decided to keep on flying eastward to Omsk, a distance of about 1,600 miles.

Although their gasoline supply was sufficient to enable them to reach Omsk from Berlin, a total distance of 2,550 miles, it was not considered likely they had done so, for they would already have landed at Omsk had they maintained their average speed of 140 miles an hour.

Safe Landing Possible.

There was a faint possibility that because of the lack of communication facilities from Omsk news of their arrival has been delayed. The airport at Kazan, on the Moscow-Omsk route, reported, however, that the flyers had not been seen, adding further to the pessimism and concern which is being felt.

Despite inquiries sent by soviet officials all along the route from Berlin to Moscow the only word of the "make it or bust" ship was a dispatch from Koenigsberg early today which reported they had crossed the German frontier over Lake Wysztyt into Poland at 6:05 p. m. yesterday, Chicago time, a little over three hours after they left Berlin.

Air authorities assert that an emergency landing is possible without great danger between here and the Russian capital, but that it would be difficult to find means of communication.

At 1 a. m. Chicago time today the elapsed time of Mattern and Griffin was 67 hours and 59 minutes. Post and Gatty had an elapsed time of 54 hours and 34 minutes when they reached Moscow.

HOUSE DEFIES VETO; PASSES 2 BILLION BILL

Senate May Act on Measure Today.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Defying the threat of a White House veto, the Democratic house today approved the compromise emergency relief bill and shot it to the senate for final action, possibly tomorrow. The vote on the 2 billion 122 million dollar measure, as revised by the conferees of the senate and house, was 202 to 157.

Thirty-five Republicans deserted President Hoover to join with 166 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite in supporting the relief bill sponsored by Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic vice presidential nominee. The final vote when it came after three hours of acrid discussion found but two Democrats voting with 155 Republicans to reject the revised measure. Had the Republicans held together the bill would have been defeated.

Hoover Fears for Credit.

Today's action in the house followed swiftly on the wide open split between President Hoover and Speaker Garner yesterday over the issue of whether the emergency relief bill should include a provision empowering the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make loans to individuals and municipalities unable to obtain funds from normal banking facilities. The President denounced this section of the bill and Speaker Garner as well, asserting the measure's enactment would jeopardize the nation's credit and make Uncle Sam a pawnbroker. The speaker insisted on its retention for the "benefit of the masses."

Whether the senate will adopt the revised bill was problematical tonight. Democratic leaders announced a caucus for senatorial Democrats for 10 o'clock tomorrow to decide a course of action. Spokesmen for this group stated, however, that they would support the bill as any other course would amount to throwing down the man nominated by their party for the vice presidency.

Democrats Make Threats.

Administration leaders who discussed the relief situation with the President were told that Mr. Hoover will speed the measure back to congress without an hour's delay together with a message stating his reasons for disapproving the bill. The White House plan also is to recommend readoption of the bill minus the provision for loans to individuals and municipalities. Democratic leaders said tonight that if the bill is vetoed they will cut out the whole section which provides loans of one billion 460 millions for loans for self-liquidating projects as well as to individuals and cities.

As matters stand tonight relief legislation is so steeped in politics that there seems little chance of adjournment of congress before some time next week at the earliest. Chairman Peter Norbeck [radical Rep., S. D.] of the senate banking committee said today that he will withhold the conference report embodying the relief bill until time has been given to pass the home loan bill. This might hold up the relief bill until Saturday.

Carries Public Works Fund.

As the bill went to the senate following a flurry of debate shot through with politics and peppered with attacks on Speaker Garner as "obstinate willed" and "demagogic," it provided for increasing the capitalization and borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation from 2 billions to 3 billion 780 million dollars. It also carried in addition 322 millions for public works construction to be financed by the treasury.

Of the one billion 780 million dolars turned over to the Reconstruction Finance corporation all but 300 millions is set aside for loans. Part is to be loaned directly to individuals and cities on such security as they command. The balance is to be loaned to states, cities, public and private agencies, corporations and various sorts of organizations to build toll bridges, waterworks, tenements and other projects of what is termed a self-liquidating nature. The idea is that the projects will eventually pay out and repay the government.

Provides for State Loans.

As written the bill makes it possible for a state to borrow up to 15 per cent of the 300 million dollars set aside for direct relief loans to the states. Thus Illinois might be able to borrow up to $45,000,000, compared with $18,500,000 in the original Wagner bill. No provision is carried for making loans for payment of back salaries to school teachers or municipal employes.

In effect the emergency bill would turn the finance corporation into a giant central bank and clothe it with authority to make loans to almost anybody except foreigners. It would make individual loans to men and women on whatever security they put up. It would make loans to states for relief purposes. It would make loans to cities, states and organizations or corporations for constructing toll bridges, waterworks and projects such as the 220 million dollar aqueduct which Los Angeles is to build to the Colorado river to obtain water impounded by Boulder dam, another government venture.

Export Business Authorized.

The finance corporation would engage in the export business and attempt to solve the farm problem by selling its surpluses abroad. It could make loans to the farm board or department of agriculture for use in selling surplus products abroad. It would set up corporations to loan to farmers.

The three hour debate on the relief measure was filled with politics and personalities. One speaker demanded that Speaker Garner apologize for attacking President Hoover yesterday and quoted him on the floor and was answered with "boos." Another flayed the house for passing such a big relief bill after holding down its economy program to 150 millions when a 600 million savings could have been realized.

From start to finish the issue was over the section of the bill allowing the finance corporation to make loans to individuals as well as to states and corporations and railroads. Speaker Garner's charge of yesterday that President Hoover wanted to serve only a "selected clientele," while the speaker favored legislation for the masses, was emphasized.

Crisp Criticizes Hoover.

Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.] opened the debate by stating that President Hoover had declined to make any concession after the congressional group had accepted administration views on titles 1 and 3, dealing respectively with emergency relief loans to states and public works.

"We accepted two of his proposals," said Representative Crisp; "he ought to yield on the other."

"I beg your pardon," interrupted Representative Bertrand H. Snell [N. Y.], Republican floor leader, "the President did not yield on any of these proposals, but he took the changes in the hope that there could be some agreement on title 2 which provides among other things loans to everybody by the Reconstruction Finance corporation."

Garner Asks Concession.

"I am frank to say," retorted Garner, "that I do not know whether this legislation will solve our problems, but I do know that the Democratic members of the conference committee tried to reach an agreement with the President. We now ask the President for fair play on his part to yield on title 2 and permit loans to individuals."

Representative T. Allen Treadway [Rep., Mass.], one of the conferees, said that the President offered the compromise on titles 1 and 3 and "the impasse was on title 2."

"The effort of the meetings yesterday was not worth while," he said, "because the Democrats said there was no use to discuss abandonment of the principle involved in title 2 to broaden the base of finance corporation loans to make loans to individuals. They would not give in. It seemed to me the worst kind of demagogury to array the masses against the classes, and that is what everybody says the speaker is trying to do. We are here trying to enact relief legislation and we will enact relief legislation when the speaker who is candidate for membership in this house from his own district and at the same time candidate for the vice presidency quits trying to enforce his obstinate will."

Greeted by "Boos."

Representative Treadway started a chorus of "boos" when he charged Speaker Garner with misquoting President Hoover in the Congressional Record of this morning.

A moment later Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.] assailed the Garner attack on Hoover yesterday as the "speech of a politician who is more desirous of getting votes than of securing the best welfare of the country."

"Speaker Garner," he asserted, "plays to the cupidity and the hopes of the people. He tells them he wants loans for all the people, but neglects to tell them they must have good security. He knows how few people in this country today have good security to offer for loans. He intends to delude the voters of this country."

Closing the debate Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] assailed Speaker Garner and the bill. He asserted that while the bill was supposed to open the doors of the treasury to every one it would be of little aid to Chicago. The state of Illinois, he said, could obtain a maximum of $45,000,000 for relief, but Chicago would get nothing to pay its employés and teachers.

Bill Called Inadequate.

"We find the bill utterly inadequate," he said, "of caring for Chicago's most pressing needs. It gives our school teachers and other city employés not the slightest relief. The stubbornness displayed by Vice Presidential Candidate Garner in his persistence to retain loans for private individuals in the bills is a sad commentary not only upon his statesmanship, but upon his refusal to understand Chicago's needs as well as Chicago's ability to pay back loans."

Mr. Britten praised Chicago's courage in distress.

"I doubt," he said, "if any city in the world could go through with the distress, hunger and unusual tax problems that Chicago has without being overrun by communism and anarchy and yet Chicago stands proud and courageous through all of its trials, feelings that sooner or later the federal government will come to its rescue."

Representatives from the central western area voted as follows on the adoption of the conference report on the relief bill:

KLEAGLE CLARKE GETS JURY TRIAL IN SANITY CASE

Edward Young Clarke, former imperial kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, was granted a jury trial on July 15 when he was arraigned yesterday before Judge Charles T. Allen in the Psychopathic court on a sanity hearing. The motion was made by Attorney Arch F. Nuttall, newly retained by Clarke's wife, who asked time to prepare his case.

The report of Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, who declared Clarke insane, was introduced at the hearing. It said in part:

"He has undergone a change mentally; he quotes himself instead of indulging in sane thinking. He is out of touch with realities, and he is insanely expansive. He talks millions, yet he and his wife have been evicted and he sleeps in hotel lobbies."

Dr. Hulbert recommended that Clarke be adjudicated and committed to the care of his son in Atlanta or a friend and taken out of the state of Illinois. Clarke was freed last Saturday in the care of a friend, John Findlay, 1437 Lunt avenue. Clarke came to Chicago to promote Esskaye, Inc., a back to prosperity movement.

MAYOR'S ILLNESS CAUSES DOCTOR TO HALT CALLERS

Mayor Cermak, whose retirement to St. Anthony's hospital Wednesday was announced to be for the purpose of recuperating from fatigue occasioned by his labors in connection with the two national political conventions and efforts to find pay for city employés, is seriously ill, it was said yesterday in the city hall.

The mayor, it was learned, is suffering from indigestion and from an intestinal disorder which forced him to take a vacation a year ago. His physicians have told him, it was said, that it will be necessary for him to leave the city for a complete rest when he leaves the hospital.

Meanwhile, he has been denied all visitors, and two policemen were stationed at the hospital to deny callers access to his room. Mayor Cermak issued a statement during the day asking his friends to refrain from sending him flowers.

"To those who desire thus to express their friendship and sympathy," Mayor Cermak said, "I earnestly suggest that they would please me better by turning the money over to one of the charitable organizations now struggling to relieve distress among our citizens."

WAGE AGREEMENT FOR COAL MINES EXPECTED TODAY

A showdown in the Illinois coal mine wage controversy was expected today following announcement last night that the general scale conference would convene this morning. Operators met yesterday in the Union League club and the miners in the Majestic hotel.

These meetings gave rise to the belief that the subcommittee had reached an agreement, reported to be in the neighborhood of $5 a day. That some hurdles remain in the way of an agreement, however, appeared with the announcement of a second session of the miners' policy committee to precede the general meeting today.

Neither side would confirm the figure nor discuss the situation beyond expressing hope that some agreement would be reached today. The arrival of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, gave further impetus to this belief.

CHIEF FEATURES OF TWO BILLION U. S. RELIEF BILL

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—The compromise emergency relief bill passed by the house today carries one billion 460 millions for loans to individuals, states, municipalities, corporations and public agencies; 300 millions to be loaned to states for relief loans and 322 millions for various federal construction and public works projects, including Boulder dam. Its major features include in summarized form:

1. A section authorizing and empowering the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make direct relief loans to the states out of a 300 million dollar fund set aside for this purpose. Not more than 15 per cent of this sum shall be available for any one state or territory. All loans bear interest at 3 per cent per annum. The loans are to be repaid by the states through annual deductions, beginning with the fiscal year 1935, from federal road aid funds.

Provisions for Loans.

2. A section known as title 2, which sets up a fund of one billion 460 million dollars to be used to aid in financing agriculture, commerce, industry and housing, including facilitating the exportation of agricultural and other products. To carry out this section the corporation is directed to make loans to:

A. Any person when in the opinion of the board of directors of the corporation such person is unable to obtain funds upon reasonable terms through banking channels. As used in this section, the term person may mean any "individual, a trust or estate, a partnership, a corporation [public, quasi-public, or private], an association, a joint stock company, a state, a political subdivision of a state, a municipality, and any instrumentality or agency of one or more states or municipalities."

B. Loans to or contracts with states, municipalities, political subdivisions of states, public agencies of states, of municipalities and of political subdivisions of states, public corporations, boards and commissions, and public municipal instrumentalities of one or more states to aid in the financing of projects which are self-liquidating in character.

Loans for Corporations.

C. Loans for corporations formed for the purpose of providing housing for families of low income or for reconstruction of slum areas.

D. Loans to private corporations to aid in the construction, replacement or improvement of bridges, tunnels, docks, viaducts, water works, canals, and markets devoted to public use and which are profit making.

E. Loans to private limited dividend corporations to aid in the protection and development of forests and other renewable natural resources.

F. Loans to aid in financing construction of any publicly owned bridge to be used for railroad and highway uses, the construction of which will be returned in part by means of tolls, fees, and rents, and the remainder by taxes.

3. A section authorizing and directing the corporation to make loans for the purpose of financing sales of surpluses in the markets of foreign countries in which such sales cannot be financed in the normal course of commerce.

4. A section authorizing the corporation to create in any of the twelve federal land bank districts a regional agricultural credit corporation with a paid up capital of not less than $3,000,000. Officers and agents appointed by the corporation will manage the agricultural corporations. These units will make advances to farmers and stock men.

Provide for Public Works.

5. The sum of $322,224,000 is provided for emergency construction of certain authorized public works. This fund comes direct from the treasury. This money is apportioned as follows:

[a]. For emergency highway construction, 120 millions.

[c]. For emergency construction for improvement of national forest highways, maintenance of roads and trails, improvement of national forests, Indian reservation roads, etc., $16,000,000.

[d]. For prosecution of river and harbor projects, $30,000,000.

[e]. For Boulder dam construction, $10,000,000; department of commerce air navigation facilities, $500,000; lighthouse tenders and light vessels and aids to navigation, $3,810,000; engineering work of the coast and geodetic survey, $1,250,000; navy yards and docks, $10,000,000.

Criticism was leveled at the unemployment relief commission for its policy of refusing to pay overdue rents of the jobless at a hearing yesterday before a legislative commission investigating the expenditure of state funds for unemployment relief. The hearing is being held in the office of State Auditor Oscar Nelson.

JAMES MULLENBACH.

Upon conclusion of the session the legislators decided to telegraph President Hoover, Vice President Curtis, and Speaker Garner of the house of representatives notifying them that Illinois needs federal relief and asking that this relief be apportioned on a basis of need rather than of population. The hearing will be resumed next Wednesday.

Speaking informally, State Auditor Nelson, member of the committee ex-officio, said that in his judgment too little of the $13,950,000 expended had gone for "made" work for the unemployed and too much for straight charity. If the policy is pursued further the dole system will soon be saddled on the state, Mr. Nelson declared.

Attacks Relief Body.

The relief commission has "conspired" with unemployed householders to defeat the law and block landlords from evicting unemployed tenants, it was charged by Elmer Luehr, secretary of the Calumet Property Owners' Protective association.

James Mullenbach, labor arbitrator and chairman of industry commission of the Chicago Church federation, and Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, agreed that if money could be found the rents should be paid. Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, spokesman for the legislative commission, displayed sympathy for their view, pointing out that at least part of the money thus expended would flow back to the public treasury in the form of tax payments.

Explains Commission Policy.

Speaking for the unemployment commission at the outset of the hearing, Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, stated that the nonrent payment policy had been adopted on the theory that landlords could "absorb" the loss due to rent delinquency. Mr. Luehr produced figures which, he said, contradicted this theory.

"I represent property owners in the steel district," he declared. "Most of them were workers in the steel mills, just like their unemployed tenants. Unlike their tenants, they were provident when times were good and put their earnings into homes instead of automobiles and silk shirts. Now their property is virtually being confiscated through the policy of the relief commission."

Mr. Luehr cited the case of a painter, owner of a building housing a grocery and four flats. One tenant, he said, had paid no rent for 11 months, another for 15 months and a third for nine months.

Tells Landlord's Plight.

"When this landlord needed $12 to pay his water bill the relief commission refused to advance the tenants money to help him pay it," Mr. Luehr said. "If he goes to court, the relief commission tells the tenant to sit tight. If he procures an eviction notice the relief commission still advises the tenant to sit tight."

Mr. Luehr charged that the relief commission had diverted patronage from the grocery store operated by this painter's wife to chain stores in the neighborhood.

"Let's end this hypocritical, furtive policy of depriving the landlords of their rents," he said. "The relief commission has money for the chain stores, big coal companies, electric company and gas company. Why not pay something to these landlords?"

Frank Kaster, mayor of Blue Island, supporting Mr. Luehr's sentiments, criticized one of the relief commission workers for arriving in Blue Island on an inspection trip in a limousine driven by a Negro chauffeur. He identified the worker as Miss Rose Marie Smith. According to Mr. Reynolds, Miss Smith provides her own car and chauffeur on her trips.

Mayor Kaster demanded an explanation of the reported failure of the Catholic charities to meet their bill owed to Blue Island grocers, asserting the bill had been in arrears since last February. Corporation Counsel Sexton, a member of the unemployment commission, advised the mayor to file a bill of complaint with the commission itself rather than with the legislative committee.

Hopeful of U. S. Aid.

Mr. Reynolds announced receipt of a hopeful message from Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the relief commission, following a conference between Mr. Ryerson and President Hoover regarding federal relief for Chicago and Illinois. The message was as follows:

"Entirely satisfied our interests in Washington are being protected and followed closely. Impossible to forecast final outcome, but feel certain that relief legislation will be enacted in time to meet our requirements. Mailing copy of my wire to Gov. Emmerson regarding possibility of calling special session."

At Springfield Gov. Emmerson declined to reveal the contents of his message from Mr. Ryerson or to discuss the matter of a special session until he had conferred with Mr. Ryerson.

WARNING TO COUNCIL

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th] and Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] yesterday warned the city council against the dangers of paternalism and of "passing the buck" to the federal government on Chicago's local problems. Their warning came in a debate on the unemployment relief situation.

The debate revolved about two resolutions, conflicting in some of their statements, introduced by Ald. James B. Waller [43d] and Ald. O'Grady.

Ald. Waller's resolution, presented first, set forth that state and local relief funds will be exhausted by July 25. "There is substantial agreement in congress and on the part of the administration on the relief plan of making 300 million dollars available for the relief of the destitute," it stated, "and no other source of relief for our community is in sight."

O'Grady Offers Substitute.

The resolution then urged that provisions for relief be separated from controversial provisions of the measures now pending in congress and passed at once. The statement that Chicago has no other source of relief in sight brought forth criticism from Ald. O'Grady, who introduced his resolution as a substitute.

His resolution asserted that all of the 40 million dollars which the state has collected in gasoline taxes is not needed at present for road building, and urged that the governor call a special session of the legislature to authorize return of a third of the tax fund to the counties from which it was collected, for relief purposes. The resolution also advocated amendment of the gas tax law to permit its funds to be invested in tax warrants.

"Ald. Waller's statement to the effect that we have no prospects of relief in sight through our own efforts can't be proved, and is derogatory to Chicago's interests," said Ald. O'Grady.

"We've got to work this out ourselves and should make a start toward finding a solution locally, instead of immediately trapesing down to Washington," declared Ald. Quinn.

The O'Grady and Waller resolutions were eventually referred to the committee on unemployment.

Pass $100,000 Fund; Reds Split Army.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Without debate congress today passed a joint resolution appropriating $100,000 to send the bonus army home. The house adopted the resolution early in the afternoon, and immediately upon its receipt in the senate it was hurried to passage there.

This action came quickly on the heels of the first open break in the ranks of the bonus army when radical and so-called conservative elements in the encampments clashed in a fist fight.

Veterans in Fight.

Led by John Pace of Detroit, leader of the communistic Workers' Ex-Service Men's league, 200 radicals assembled on the outskirts of the main veteran encampment on the Anacostia flats and denounced Walter W. Waters, national commander of the army.

A riot was narrowly averted. Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of police, hurried his men in between the militant bands before serious damage was done.

Although Gen. Glassford succeeded in dispersing the radical group, he faces the prospect of a march on the capitol tomorrow by Pace and his followers to demand immediate action on the bonus bill itself, as the temper of the entrenched veterans is daily becoming more threatening as the hour for adjournment of congress draws nearer.

Follow Hoover's Appeal.

Congress' action on the $100,000 appropriation today followed by a day President Hoover's special budget message urging an appropriation to transport the entrenched bonus army back home, with subsistence en route.

The resolution authorizes the veterans' administration to provide the necessary funds to carry any honorably discharged veteran back home upon application up to July 15. The money advanced is to be deducted from the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates unless repaid in cash prior to the completion of the bonus payment.

CHARGES HOOVER SPONSORED PLAN OF PRIVATE LOANS

Sen. Walsh (Mont.) Tells of Conferences.

A charge that President Hoover was the original sponsor of features of the Garner-Wagner relief bill passed by the house yesterday and which he now opposes, was made in a statement by Senator Thomas J. Walsh last night shortly before he left Chicago for his home in Montana. The senator was chairman of the Democratic convention last week.

Senator Walsh spoke of a White House conference at which the President had proposed that loans be made to private corporations and their enterprises. The inclusion of loans of this nature in the house relief measure brought about a bitter verbal war between President Hoover and Speaker Garner on Wednesday.

Senate Rejects Private Loans.

"I am astounded," began Senator Walsh, "by reports in the press that the President expects to veto the relief bill because it proposes loans to private corporations and their enterprises. When the relief bill which passed the senate was in the course of preparation, the matter of providing for such loans was given consideration and was rejected by the common consent of all those consulted.

"It was understood at a conference at the White House with Republican senators that the President had proposed just such loans, and that the policy was protested by some of those present including Senator James Couzens of Michigan.

"Later exchanges were had between the President, or some of the appointees representing him, and the Democratic senators concerning the bill which they were engaged in preparing.

Refuse to Yield.

"It was my distinct understanding as a member of the committee charged with the drafting of the bill," asserted Senator Walsh, "that the President continued his insistence on the inclusion of the provision for loans in aid of private enterprise. The sponsors of the bill, and the senate as well, refused to yield in that respect.

"Provisions for loans for private enterprises were carried in the house bill. And the conferees of that body insisting "the senate conferees, desperate to secure the passage of some bill, yielded.

"Now apparently the President objects to the conference bill because of its inclusion of provisions for which, at the outset, he was a protagonist."

Won't Interpret Motives.

Asked if he knew why the President had reputedly changed his mind about the legislation, Senator Walsh said he had "no right to interpret the motives." He said the country was against the Republican administration and that "the Democratic victory in the fall will be overwhelming."

Following the national convention Senator Walsh spent several days at the summer home of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank at Lake Geneva. He came back to Chicago yesterday en route to Montana.

White House Denial.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—At the White House tonight it was said that President Hoover never has advocated legislation providing for loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to individuals. The President has favored loans "to private industry for capital improvements where evidence existed that the money expended would be so invested that the interest payment to the government would be met and the principal returned."

Secretary Mills in appearing before the senate banking and currency committee urged legislation providing for loans to private industry for capital improvement expenditures in cases where adequate security was offered. He said these loans only should be made where in the view of the corporation there is sufficient earning capacity to guarantee payments of interest and repayment of principal.

If President Hoover has made any other recommendations to senators in private conferences this news has not leaked out in Washington.

MRS. WALLER TO BE GRANTED DIVORCE HERE

Must Wait for Share in Estate.

Mrs. Alice Miriam Hall Waller of the Belmont hotel yesterday scored a second legal victory against her husband, Edward Waller Jr., when Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude indicated that he will grant her a divorce from the former real estate operator.

MRS. ALICE WALLER.

Previously Judge Trude had ruled adversely for Waller, now living at Miami Beach, Fla., when he attempted to prevent his wife's suit in Chicago on the grounds that her actual residence is in Coronado Beach, Cal.

Seeks Share in Estate.

Mrs. Waller, who requested and apparently will receive the sole custody of her two children, Mary Langhorn, 7, and Edward Waller III., 6, must wait, however, until Aug. 29 to learn what financial provision will be made for her. At that time a report will be made to Judge Trude by Master in Chancery Harry Riley on the estate of Edward Waller Sr., still in probate, and which is estimated at $6,000,000.

Several weeks ago a sequestration order was granted Mrs. Waller against the estate for her father-in-law, in which her husband has a two-twenty-firsts interest.

Smartly garbed in a brown ensemble, Mrs. Waller, who is considerably younger than her husband, took the stand and testified as to the date of her marriage, which was Oct. 3, 1923, and that her husband deserted her in 1929 while she was at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago. Two witnesses, Miss Alice D. Aubert of Crystal Lake, a former employé, and her brother, Robert Hall, corroborated her. All were interrogated by Attorney George L. Schein for the plaintiff.

A deposition made in Miami by Waller, introduced in court during the suit, related that since December of 1928, when he and his wife went to Coronado Beach, Cal., she had made her home there. He charged that her lavish tastes led her to refuse to live with him in an apartment he provided in Chicago, and introduced the name of Howard Clark Davis, Boston financier, as the purchaser of the California home of Mrs. Waller. Mrs. Waller replied that Davis, a business associate of her husband, had purchased the house at Waller's direction.

Jurges' Girl Friend Blames Shooting on 'Too Much Gin'

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

From a cot in the Bridewell hospital, where she is in custody on a charge of assault with intent to kill, Violet Popovich Valli, former show girl, yesterday explained that the shooting of Bill Jurges, Cub shortstop, was the result of too much gin.

Meanwhile Jurges, suffering from a wound in the left hand and in the ribs, inflicted by Violet's gun on Wednesday morning when she visited his room in the Hotel Carlos, 3334 Sheffield avenue, was in the Illinois Memorial hospital. He declined to sign a complaint against her and told police he would not appear as a witness.

Whereupon Policeman Michael Fay signed the complaint and the chestnut haired divorcée is scheduled to appear in the Felony court today before Judge John A. Sbarbaro.

Glad She Didn't Die.

Violet, whose wrist was fractured by a bullet in the scuffle over the gun, was cheerful despite her professed dislike of her surroundings in the Bridewell ward.

"I wanted to kill myself to make Bill sorry," she said, smiling. "I don't know whether he's sorry now, but I'm glad I didn't really die, and I'm ever gladder Bill didn't."

As for the note found in her room in the Hotel Carlos she could barely remember writing it. The note, addressed to her brother, Mike Popovich of the Division Street Y. M. C. A., said in part: "To me life without Billy isn't worth living, but why should I leave this earth alone? I'm going to take Billy with me."

"I had been drinking before I wrote that note," she said, "and when I went to Billy's room I only meant to kill myself. He knows that. I got a note from him today, after I wrote him one. He said he'd do anything he could to help me."

Why She Chose His Room.

Asked why she chose Jurges' room in which to take her life, she replied, "I wanted to see him once more."

Violet was in the chorus of the Vanities when she was 17 years old. She said she is 21 now, and since her divorce she sometimes goes under the name of Violet Heindel. Her mother lives at 743 Belden avenue. After her show experience she modeled in New York for illustrations for confession story magazines. The girl has gray eyes, regular features and an olive skin.

"Bill is one in a hundred thousand," she said. "I met him on a party, and I fell hard. I can't explain why—he's just nice, and is the man I love. It hadn't anything to do with his being a baseball player. I wish he'd quit baseball and go back to being a bank clerk in Brooklyn.

Knows "Kiki" Cuyler.

"Kiki" Cuyler is the only other baseball player I've ever known and I'm certainly not wild about him."

She said she didn't know why Cuyler advised Jurges not to go with her and broke up what she described in her note as their "fine and beautiful love."

According to physicians, the bullet which penetrated Jurges' side struck a rib, probably saving his life. He will be able to return to the lineup in two or three weeks, it was said.

BLIND MEN IN FATAL FIGHT FOR 1-EYED WOMAN

A fatal quarrel between two blind beggars over the affections of a one eyed woman was disclosed yesterday by the arrest of Richard Roberts, 59 years old, 1505 West Harrison street. Police charge him with causing the death of Harry Gruber, 35 years old, 2501 West Van Buren street, who died yesterday in the county hospital of a fractured skull.

Gruber was completely blind. Roberts can see dimly with one eye. Police were told that his wife, Mrs. Mary Roberts, was the cause of the quarrel.

She had lived with Gruber for two years, leading him about the streets on his begging tours, she told Sergts. Frank Brady and John Sweeney. On July 4, she said, Roberts appeared at Gruber's lodgings and demanded that she return to him.

The next evening, she said, he returned and struck Gruber over the head with his heavy cane. Roberts denied her charges.

Bees Swarm on Main Street; Hold Up Traffic

A swarm of bees settled yesterday afternoon in Main street, West Chicago, near the center of the business district, and held up all traffic for about an hour. Motorists and pedestrians alike feared to disturb the bees. James Poole, a bee fancier, obtained a packing box from a nearby store and persuaded the invaders to enter.

REPORT BRIDE IN REYNOLDS' ROOM AS HE WAS SHOT

Revise the Story of Rich Youth's Suicide.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Contrary to original accounts, Libby Holman, actress bride of Smith Reynolds, was in the room with the young heir to the tobacco millions when the shot was fired that ended his life early yesterday morning, it was widely reported here today.

Officials concerned in the investigation would not discuss the report for publication. The Twin City Sentinel, a newspaper of the section, declared this afternoon, however, that it had the "information" from "high authorities."

At the time of the shooting it was asserted that Mrs. Reynolds was in her own bedroom, which adjoins the sleeping porch where the young millionaire was found dying.

As Told by a Friend.

Abe Walker, a friend of Reynolds, who was spending the night at the estate, told the authorities that when he reached the porch he found the victim alone, with the revolver lying on the floor a few inches from his hand. Walker said, however, that he had heard Mrs. Reynolds scream immediately following the report of the shot.

Sheriff Transou Scott told reporters this afternoon that he had come up against a "blank wall" in his efforts to solve the mystery. The sheriff said he had been unable to unearth conclusive evidence to sustain the verdict of suicide returned by Coroner W. N. Dalton.

"In every case of suicide there is a reason," the sheriff said. "I can find none in this case. Neither have I any evidence to call it anything else."

Barred from Interview.

Scott said that he intended to question Mrs. Reynolds further as soon as she has recovered from the shock sufficiently. He added that he would interrogate other relatives of young Reynolds. Miss Blanche Yurka of New York, a friend of Mrs. Reynolds who attended the party which preceded the shooting, is also to be interrogated, it was stated.

At the Reynolds home today it was said that no one had been permitted to see the widow except Miss Yurka since the shooting.

Meanwhile it was reported that Mrs. Reynolds' share in the $35,000,000 fortune her husband was supposed to inherit from his father's estate might be limited to his personal property alone. The will of Reynolds Sr. is understood to have provided only for income for his children. The manufacturer's widow, who died some years later, also limited her "family" bequests to her children, it was said.

The manufacturer's will provided that his estate, estimated at the time of his death to be worth approximately 100 millions, was not to be divided until his children were 21 years old.

No provision was made for any grandchildren in the will of either R. J. Reynolds or his widow, it was said. Attorneys concerned, however, are understood to have decided to make a more minute examination of the two documents.

COUNCIL PASSES BAN ON FIREWORKS, THEN FIREWORKS GO OFF

Law enforcement struck a snag yesterday in the chamber of the city council itself shortly after the council had passed the ordinance submitted by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] tightening up provisions governing the sale and use of fireworks.

Ald. O'Grady explained that the new ordinance merely gathers together various sections of the city code dealing with fireworks and explosives, combines them and strengthens their provisions. Among the provisions is one providing a fine for any one who sets off fireworks without a permit from the mayor, which may only be obtained by presentation of evidence of responsibility and moral fitness.

A few minutes later Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], paled during his discussion of unemployment relief when a firecracker exploded at his feet. A moment later Ald. Irving J. Schreiber [5th] half leaped from his chair when another firecracker boomed beneath it. Ald. John S. Clark [30th], presiding in the absence of Mayor Cermak, pounded his gavel sternly.

"In my opinion, this makes a joke of the city council," said Ald. Clark. There were no more firecrackers.

BEER BILL HAS DEMOCRATS ON RUN IN SENATE

Ashurst Kept Busy Trying to Explain Attitude.

to come back to Washington fired with enthusiasm for beer and repeal. But I find their thirst has been assuaged by merely writing a wet plank. That great and able man, the speaker of the house, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, actually left the rostrum when it was proposed that the house vote on beer."

As Senator Ashurst went on to quiz Senator Bingham on the old point of just where liquor begins to be intoxicating, the second step in the Democratic plan of campaign was revealed. For the Democrats intend to send the Bingham amendment back to committee on the plea that the matter of alcoholic content requires still further study.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] jumped into the frey, declaring that the Democratic platform did not pledge him "to be guilty of the nonsense of attaching a beer bill to a home loan bank bill."

The debate surged on, with talk of senators violating their oaths if they voted for beer without knowing what percentage of alcohol would make it intoxicating.

Will Offer Substitute Bill.

It was disclosed that Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.], and David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] had introduced a bill for 2.75 beer which they will offer as a substitute for Senator Bingham's amendment.

"If this Bingham bill will make a man so tipsy he can reel but can't walk," put in Senator Glass, "then I'm against it. Until a commission has scientifically fixed the alcoholic content that causes intoxication I challenge any senator to say that I desert my party platform when I vote against their beer bill. I have my oath to the state of Virginia to consider and I can't be touched by any frenzied assembly."

Then he asked Senator Bingham why he didn't pay some attention to his own party platform.

Tydings Takes Up Battle.

Senator Tydings took up the battle. He would vote for the Bingham amendment but wouldn't vote for it attached to the home loan bank bill because he didn't like the home loan bank bill.

Let the Republicans base legislation on their own "straddle" plank, he argued. Let President Hoover, after four years of quibbling, come out and say where he stands.

"The senator from Illinois," Senator Tydings went on, "has the effrontery to ask the minority, like little Alice in Wonderland, to lead the Republicans——"

"Does that great leader, the senator from Maryland, now compare himself to little Alice in Wonderland?" remarked Senator Glenn, and suggested that the Democrats get Gov. Roosevelt to send word to his cohorts to get busy and do away with prohibition.

Will Do It in November.

"That's just what we will do next November," promised Senator Tydings. "The senator now calls on a man who hasn't yet been elected to come for God's sake and save the nation."

Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, joined in. President Hoover, he remarked caustically, was setting a precedent in the case of the relief bill by announcing beforehand that he would veto it. How about the home loan bank bill if it should be attached?

"The President will veto it," said Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.].

The Democrats will offer a beer bill and a repeal resolution of their own, said Senator Tydings.

The Republican wet bloc of the house brought out a petition calling on Speaker Garner to stand by his party's platform pledge by forcing the house leaders to bring out a beer bill immediately for a vote. Within a few hours after the petition started its round of the house under the guidance of Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] 82 Republicans had signed it.

M'ADOO, JOHNSON GO INTO HUDDLE AND GOSSIP FLIES

Hint Senator Will Aid Roosevelt on Coast.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—William Gibbs McAdoo came to Washington today and immediately set political tongues wagging by going into a close huddle with Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], whose coldness to Charles Evans Hughes helped swing the 1916 presidential election to Woodrow Wilson.

HIRAM JOHNSON.

Senator Johnson's glowing praise of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's acceptance speech, his curt rejection of the Republican prohibition straddle plank and his conversation in the senate reception room with the man who delivered the votes that put over the Democratic nominee of 1932 immediately raised this question:

"Will history repeat itself?"

Deny They Talked Politics.

There has been much talk in Washington in the last week that Senator Johnson would attempt to deliver California's electoral votes to Roosevelt in November as he helped to do for Wilson 16 years ago, even if he does not definitely bolt the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Both Senator Johnson and Mr. McAdoo denied they had talked politics. The conference began between McAdoo, Senator Pat Harrison [Miss.], Democratic whip, and Senator John S. Cohen [Dem., Ga.]. Then McAdoo sent for Senator Johnson. The four sat talking long and earnestly in a corner of the senate reception room in full view of other senators passing to and from the chamber.

Garner to Speak on Coast.

Others who Mr. McAdoo conferred with at the Capitol were Senators Josiah W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.]; Henry F. Ashurst, [Dem., Ariz.], and Hubert D. Stephens [Dem., Miss.], and Speaker John N. Garner [Tex.], Democratic vice presidential nominee, whose delegates the Californian released to clinch Gov. Roosevelt's nomination on the fourth ballot in the Chicago convention.

Mr. McAdoo received a promise from Speaker Garner to deliver at least one address in California during the campaign, probably at Los Angeles.

LA GRANGE BANK CASHIER IS GIVEN 3 YEAR SENTENCE

John D. Booth, former assistant cashier of the First National Bank of La Grange, was sentenced to serve three years in Leavenworth penitentiary yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on a plea of guilty to the embezzlement of $22,500 of the bank funds. Booth confessed stealing the money over the period of a year and said that he lost the entire sum on horse race bets.

Eddie Meyer, La Grange bookmaker, who is charged with aiding and abetting the embezzlement, appeared yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. Judge Barnes set Sept. 19 as the hearing date and set aside a $5,000 bond forfeiture ordered last week. Meyer was released in a new bond of $5,000.

DRYS NOMINATE WM. D. UPSHAW FOR PRESIDENT

Indiana Legislature Gets Repeal Bill.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Repealists of the Wright bone dry act won their first test of strength in the assembly today, just as the Prohibition party, its anti-repealist ticket nominated, as above, folded its umbrellas and departed after a hymn, "For the Lion of Judah Shall Break Every Chain."

By a vote of 59 to 38, a repealer bill was introduced in the house after an effort to block it at the gate in which an old rule used only twice since civil war days was invoked.

Klan League Dictatorship.

In June both parties adopted wet planks calling for repeal of the state dry laws, the most stringent of their kind, which were placed on the books by the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan in the era when they held the statehouse under a league-klan dictatorship.

The repealer was one of the first measures shot into the special session which has been called for revenue and tax relief. It was explained that companion measures will develop its economic phases in the field of taxation relief. The Wright law is so drastic that it does not recognize whisky as materia medica. It makes a doctor who gives it to a patient, even in a case of life or death, a potential criminal.

Representative Chester K. Watson [Dem., Fort Wayne] announced he would introduce a companion bill, modeled upon the Kentucky law, regulating the sale of medicinal liquor. It is to be based on physicians' prescriptions, under licenses from the county clerk, and any drug store handling the medicinal liquor must have been in business at least two years and run by a registered pharmacist.

Carries Tax of 50 Cents a Pint.

The Watson bill carries a tax of 50 cents a pint, and its sponsor estimates it will yield the state a revenue in excess of one million dollars a year, which now goes into the bankroll of the bootlegger.

Representative John F. Ryan [Dem., Terre Haute], new chairman of the public morals committee, announced he would introduce a repealer and also a resolution calling on congress to submit repeal of the 18th amendment. Both topics were embraced in the wet planks of the Republican and Democratic parties. Several repeal bills are ready for the hopper, and efforts are to be made to unite on one.

The initial battle, which was won by the repealists, started when a repealer was put in as the second measure on the roll call. H. Curtis Bennett [Dem., Hillsboro] introduced it. Immediately an old floor rule, which has been gathering dust for more than a generation, was invoked by James M. Knapp of Hagerstown, Republican floor leader. It permitted the house to vote on whether the bill should be received.

Vote to Receive Measure.

On the roll call, 58 Democrats and one Republican voted to receive the repealer in the house, while 22 Republicans and 11 Democrats voted to keep it out.

The Republican vote followed an agreement in which Republican members took a stand against consideration of any measure not related to tax relief, in conformity with the caucus action to stand on the dry 1930 platform instead of the 1932 wet plank.

Repealists argued repeal and attendant measures as revenue producers have a direct bearing on economic and tax relief. "A repealer of the Wright law," said Representative Ryan, "and enactment to control medicinal liquor would mean putting 1,000 men to work in Vigo county distilleries."

In the house, due to the 1930 landslide, the Democrats have 72 members, the Republicans, 25. In the senate, which has half its members holdovers, it stands 17 Democrats and 31 Republicans. The repealers is expected to get substantial support among Republican senators.

Hearing Begins Next Week.

These activities at the statehouse in the direction of anti-prohibition galloped fast on the heels of the adjournment of the prohibition national convention. The exaltation caused by the Borah stampede the night before had been succeeded by somewhat of a sag after the Idahoan's refusal to take the nomination and his suggestion that the party pick its own ticket, but leave an open door for entry into the nonrepealist third movement which is being projected at Washington. The board of strategy is to meet at the national capital July 14 or 15 and at that time dry groups expect to make a coalition.

The prohibition nominees are to get out of the race if the third party movement works out; otherwise they will stick in. After sleeping on it, some delegates began to suspect that Borah might not run after all—something which the politicians have fancied from the start.

Regan Unanimously Chosen.

On the second ballot 140 votes were cast. Upshaw, former Democratic congressman from Georgia, who bolted and supported Hoover in 1928, got 74 votes and Regan got 60. Four were scattered. After Upshaw had been declared nominated Mr. Regan unanimously was put on as his running mate. Regan is a Rockford, Ill., lawyer, who lectured on taxation and other subjects. In 1898 he was the first man ever elected to a state legislature in any state by the Prohibition party. He served in the Illinois house.

North Dakota to Vote on Repeal.

Bismarck, N. D., July 7.—(AP)—North Dakota citizens will vote on repeal of the state prohibition laws at the November general election. Secretary of State Robert Byrne today accepted petitions initiating a referendum on a proposed constitutional amendment for repeal.

FIRST CONCERT IN GRANT PARK AT 8 P. M. TONIGHT

Subscriptions from prominent citizens and musicians have made possible the resumption of public concerts in the band shell facing the Field museum in Grant park. The first of a series of summer concerts will begin at 8 p. m. tonight.

The Cavallo Symphonic band of sixty-five pieces, under the direction of P. A. Cavallo, will give the first of the concerts and Miss Alice Mock, former coloratura soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera company, will be the soloist. One of the numbers to be played is the march, "Onward Chicago," composed by Howard Johnson for the Century of Progress exposition.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT KILLS.

Bedford, Ind., July 7.—[Special.]—William Ryan, 28, of Flint, Mich., died here today as a result of bullet wounds received last night when he was accidentally shot by Robert Smith, 14.

ARREST FIVE IN IOWA TOWN UNDER BLUE LAW SEVENTY YEARS OLD

Oakland, Ia., July 7.—[Special.]—Five business men of Oakland face charges or violation of the 1860 state law which requires Sunday closing. The cases grew out of the attempt of a group of citizens led by the Rev. P. H. Green of the Christian church to have grocery and meat stores closed on Sunday.

Charges were first brought against Ben W. Dimsdale, grocer, on information filed by Mr. Green listing ten counts in violation of the old law. Following his arrest Dimsdale is said to have visited other business houses, made purchases and then filed charges against these merchants. One of them is F. D. Echles, superintendent of the Oakland schools. All were released on $100 bond.

Dr. G. C. Giles, mayor of Oakland, when asked to have the stores closed on Sunday refused to have anything to do with it.

HOOVER TO STICK BY HIS PARTY'S STRADDLE PLANK

Garfield Denies President to Get Any Wetter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Following a protracted White House conference James R. Garfield, chairman of the committee on resolutions at the Republican national convention, indicated today that party leaders will not make any move to commit the party to modification of the Volstead act during the presidential campaign. He intimated that President Hoover would stand on the straddle prohibition plank as adopted at Chicago without making any attempt to increase its alcoholic kick.

[Acme Photo.]

"There is nothing in the prohibition plank of the Republican platform," said Mr. Garfield after his talk with the President, "which contemplates modification of the Volstead act."

Advance Acceptance Date.

The Ohio political leader said that he will be one of the chief salesmen in the movement to sell the Republican plank to the country. Neither Mr. Garfield nor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, publicity director of the Republican national committee, would set the date for the delivery of President Hoover's speech of acceptance, although the Kansan said it would be delivered in Washington probably from the south portico of the White House.

Mr. Allen expressed the opinion that President Hoover would push forward the date of his acceptance speech from early in August to shortly after congress adjourned.

Accept Repeal Challenge.

When asked his opinion of the effort now being made by Senator Bingham, who sponsored the defeated Republican repeal plank at Chicago, immediately to enact legislation to permit beer of greater than ½ of 1 per cent alcoholic content, Mr. Garfield said that Senator Bingham is not speaking for the Republican party when he urges such legislation.

"The effort to enact a beer bill," Mr. Garfield said, "is beyond the pale of the party's charter as adopted at the Chicago convention."

The interpretation placed on what Mr. Garfield said was that the prohibition repeal challenge of the Democrats will be accepted by the President and his party managers and that the appeal to the country will be based solely on the plank which was written into the platform at Chicago.

The plan, he said, is to attempt to sell the Republican plank to the country. After his conference with the President, which covered the political situation generally, Mr. Garfield announced that he would take an active part in the campaign. His main activity would be, he added, "to sell the Republican prohibition plank to the country."

Representative John Q. Tilson [Conn.], the Republican whip in the house, will be in charge of eastern headquarters of the national organization in New York. Mr. Allen indicated he expects the campaign to be in full swing early in August.

BRITISH BREWERS ASK PERMITS TO DISPLAY BEER AT CHICAGO FAIR

Their representatives have approached Lieutenant Commander Langworthy, representative of the fair in London. No action has been taken.

Briggle pronounced the penalty after overruling a motion for new trial for the trio, Lyle G. Jones, 24, Milo E. Shaw, 20, and Archie L. Smith, 17, of Galesburg. MILLION WOMEN FOR ROOSEVELT ON WET PLANK

Dry Reform Organization Indorses Governor.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The national executive committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform voted today to support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, for President. The organization, which is headed by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, a Republican, now numbers more than a million members and has divisions in 42 states. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Edward S. Moore in Roslyn, L. I.

Present at today's meeting were fifty women from twenty-three states and the District of Columbia. They came from Washington and Oregon, Georgia and Maine. Thirty of those who traveled out to Roslyn for the meeting were registered Republicans. Nineteen were Democrats and one has no political affiliation.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution indorsing Gov. Roosevelt follows:

"We urge the members of this organization, because they are committed to the cause of repeal, whether they be Republicans or whether they be Democrats, to give their support to the nominee of that party which favors the repeal of the 18th amendment, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Gov. Roosevelt's position on modification of the Volstead act before congress adjourns for the summer was set forth today as a result of persistent inquiries in Albany as to whether he would take the forefront in a drive for action in senate and house.

The governor let it be known through a representative that he stood solidly on the plank in the party platform calling for early action, but that he felt that it was not his place as governor of New York to try to direct congress members.

"Gov. Roosevelt," said the spokesman, "is trying to run the New York state government and he cannot be expected to attempt to dictate any congressional action. He is standing squarely on the Democratic platform. It is up to the Democrats in congress to interpret that as they see fit."

15,000 Hear Roosevelt.

Hailed by more than 15,000 supporters of the powerful Democratic organization of Albany in an "official welcome" to the presidential nominee, Roosevelt tonight predicted success for the party's national ticket and linked its program to restoration of economic justice over the country.

The governor addressed a tightly packed audience that thronged the lawn of the executive mansion and spread into neighboring streets; he heard Mayor John Boyd Thatcher promise him the "greatest plurality ever given to a presidential candidate, in Albany county."

Mr. Roosevelt, picking up the theme of his "campaign songs," "Anchors Aweigh" and "Happy Days Are Here Again," declared that they set a keynote of victory for the election drive and economic rehabilitation after next March 4.

This was a gala evening for Albany. The O'Connell brothers, Democratic leaders here, had sent out strict orders for all their followers to turn out. Streets leading to the mansion were lined as more than 10,000 persons marched in a parade along Eagle street to the music of eleven bands.

2 Die of Auto Injuries; County Toll for Year 568

There were two automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday, which raised the toll since Jan. 1 to 568. The victims:

Gus Johnson, 31 years old, 3024 North Linder avenue. Killed by the car of Joseph Sander, 2727 Mont Clare avenue, as he ran for a bus at Central and Wellington avenues.

William Fehringer, 62 years old, 6504 North Leavitt street. Died at the Streeter hospital. He was struck Wednesday by a bus on the outer drive near the Field Museum.

WALKER INSISTS HE WILL NOT RESIGN AS MAYOR OF NEW YORK

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—There were persistent rumors in Wall street today that Mayor James J. Walker was going to resign in order not "to embarrass the party," and would then be awarded the nomination for United States senator, replacing the incumbent, Robert F. Wagner.

Reached on the phone at Mayfair house, where he is working on his reply to the charges of Samuel Seabury, the mayor laughed.

"Since when have they been publishing comic supplements in Wall street?" he asked.

"Things must be pretty inactive down there."

Pinned down to a positive statement, he added, also laughingly, "There's nothing to it!" He was positive.

The tenor of the rumors was that the Walker-Seabury situation placed Gov. Roosevelt in a "tight spot" politically, the theory being that if the presidential nominee removed Walker he might incur the enmity of Tammany Hall, and if he allowed the mayor to remain in office it was the rumor's tenet that Gov. Roosevelt might incur the wrath of the hinterland where Tammany still is regarded with acute distrust.

It is a known fact that the mayor would fancy a crack at the senatorial post. But it also is a known fact that he probably will not resign under fire. He prefers "vindication at the polls," to quote him in a confidential mood.

CONGRESS RACE IN OKLAHOMA LED BY WILL ROGERS

A Rural Schoolmaster Ahead of 25 Rivals.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 7.—(AP)—Will Rogers, rural schoolmaster, perched at the top of the ticket for the Democratic nomination as congressman at large tonight, put there by a rush of late counted ballots.

The tabulation, many precincts behind, showed:

Rogers 2,911 precincts out of 3,309: 52,692 votes.

Mrs. Mabel Bassett, state charities commissioner and foe of Gov. William Henry Murray, 3,203 precincts out of 3,309: 51,997 votes.

Are They Voting for Humorist?

Tabulators began counting Rogers' votes only after he had led the field of 25 candidates in several counties.

Voters who apparently believed they were voting for the Claremore humorist, even gave Rogers second place in Rogers county, home of the cowboy comedian. The two are not related.

Impeached as governor in 1923, J. C. (Jack) Walton led the field for the Democratic nomination for corporation commissioner with 74,591 votes in the unofficial complete tabulation. A. S. J. Shaw, former state auditor, won the right to compete against him in the run-off primary with 65,681 votes. C. C. Childers, incumbent, ran third in the field of six with 62,825, being eliminated.

Senator Thomas Faces Run-off.

Although Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, polled nearly twice as many votes as his nearest opponent, Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City attorney, he failed to win renomination because of the large field. Majority is necessary to nominate in the first primary. Thomas had 142,307 votes and Smith 78,168. R. M. McCool was third with 53,999.

Four Democratic representatives, W. W. Hastings, F. B. Swank, Tom D. McKeown, and J. V. McClintic, faced run-off contests. M. G. Garber, Republican incumbent; Wilbur Cartwright, Jed Johnson, and Wesley Disney, won renomination.

Clerk in Closed Bank Found Dead in Garage

Joseph Destree, 37 years old, 5429 Henderson avenue, a former bank clerk who was left jobless with the closing of the Citizen's State bank two weeks ago, was found dead yesterday of carbon-monoxide poisoning in a garage at 5434 Henderson avenue. A brother, Emil, said that he doubted the suicide theory of police.

Britain Approves Hoover Navy Slash Plan, But Would Cut Tonnage, Not Number of Ships

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Stanley Baldwin, acting prime minister of Great Britain in the absence of Ramsay MacDonald at the Lausanne reparations conference, today gave the British reply to the Hoover disarmament proposals and alternative suggestions.

Answering an arranged questionnaire in the house of commons Baldwin made it clear that Britain is not putting forward these proposals as the last word any more than it considered Hoover's proposals as America's last word.

Both must be taken, he declared, as contributions to the general discussion of disarmament.

Holds to Britain's Stand.

His statement, which was long, involved and technical, began by accepting the general principle of the Hoover plan, but by taking exception to many details which he said must be considered by each nation in the light of its own necessities.

Thus, as far as naval disarmament is concerned, Baldwin came back to the old British position, fought out at naval conference after conference, that while Britain is willing to reduce global tonnage drastically she is unwilling to reduce the actual number of ships.

This he based on the necessity of defending a worldwide empire and world ocean trade routes. He declared Britain's willingness to reduce the maximum size of cruisers from 10,000 tons to 7,000 tons, but failed to mention the fact that such small cruisers have a great advantage in British hands owing to her control of coaling stations all over the world.

Would Abolish Submarines.

Regarding submarines, Baldwin wanted to abolish them altogether, but if that is impossible to confine them to a maximum tonnage of 250. Regarding land forces Britain, he said, is not interested as her forces are now substantially lower than would be allowed under the Hoover plan. But on the matter of air forces Britain has decided views and desires to abolish air bombing altogether. For land defenses Britain would be willing to rule out all mobile guns over 6.1 inches.

Britain would also be willing, he said, to abolish all tanks over twenty tons. He declared that tanks of lighter categories could not be considered specifically offensive weapons.

What was not mentioned was that Britain has developed a light fast tank and is now far ahead of any other nation in this arm which is particularly suitable for operations in undeveloped areas such as India, Africa, Asia Minor, and other parts of the world where British rule is subject to attack by native peoples.

Urges Lighter Guns.

Baldwin also made the point that light tanks enabled a saving in men, thus contributing to the cause of economy through disarmament.

Baldwin went into a long argument on the relative size of ships and guns, arguing that if the sizes of guns are reduced ships could also be cut down in tonnage but not in numbers.

The net result of his argument was that the British proposals enabled a saving of 195,000 tons in capital ships and cruisers, while the American proposals only save 175,000 tons. In addition, under the British proposal, which in this case is substantially the same as the American, aircraft carriers could be cut 25,000 tons.

If the submarine could be abolished, Baldwin said, it would enable an immediate saving in destroyer tonnage of more than one-third.

Stimpson Approves Statement.

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—A carefully worded statement from Secretary Stimson today on the Baldwin white paper said it indicated the momentum given the Geneva conference since President Hoover's proposals and welcomed it as in the same spirit as the President's suggestions.

The secretary of state said he could form no opinions on the details of the British proposal until he had received them all, and commented they seemed to be a suggestion by England of the "ideal toward which construction should tend."

Britain Wants New Parley.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 7.—(AP)—British authorities discreetly launched a move today for another five power naval conference, in which the United States, Britain, Japan, France, and Italy would be asked to participate, aimed at further reductions of sea forces.

This suggestion came simultaneously with the announcement at London of the British government's counter-proposals to President Hoover's plan to reduce arms one-third.

The British proposals aroused strong criticism from American naval experts on duty with the United States delegation to the world disarmament conference.

The British program, one of these critics said, was merely a renewal of a ten year old controversy in which the British have "sought by reducing the size of our ships to keep our navy in home waters," a plan which had been rejected at Geneva and London conferences.

Want but Facts Now.

One American commentator said the British proposals were designed "to bring relief to our grandchildren" instead of to the present generation, while the Hoover plan "will relieve us of defense burdens now."

It was pointed out here the British scheme will not affect any financial economy until 1933 at the earliest, whereas the American program would bring an immediate saving.

The suggestion of another five power naval conference was advanced by a high British authority in an anonymous press interview. He proposed that it be held in the interval before the world disarmament conference resumes its activities in the fall. Spokesmen of other nations withheld comment.

REDS CHECKED, BUT DANGER IS STILL AT DOOR OF THE UNITED STATES

EDITOR WARNS OF VANDALISTIC OFFICEHOLDERS

Compares Sacking of Rome and of America.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—[Special.]—The defeat of the Red menace which is hovering over the economic structure of America is the silver lining in the cloud hanging over the nation, in the opinion of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as expressed here tonight in a speech before the Kansas City branch of the Federation of American Business.

Col. McCormick addressed himself to the subject, "The Sack of Rome and the Sacking of America," and he pictured a vandalistic corps of public officials sacking the treasuries of Washington much as the Vandals pillaged and sacked Rome and retarded civilization a thousand years.

The federal budget has not been balanced, the publisher declared, and claims to the contrary he branded as deliberate falsehoods. Furthermore, he said, the new federal tax bill is so burdensome a load upon American producers that it could not be borne for more than a year.

Threatens American Civilization.

"If this tax bill remains on the statute books our civilization will fall as fell the civilization of Rome, sacked not by Vandals but by our own conscript fathers," Col. McCormick declared.

There is yet time, Col. McCormick said, for a halt to be called upon the practices which are leading misguided congressmen to impose confiscatory taxes upon the very economic forces which make for prosperity in the nation.

"More than a hundred organizations have been formed to reduce tax extortions and to fight bolshevism," Col. McCormick told the business men whose organization formed the nucleus for a concerted battle against the exorbitant expenditures of federal, state, and local taxing bodies. "The future is still within your control. The machines of the tax eaters are not yet strong enough to overwhelm you.

"If you have the eyes to see, the brain to comprehend, and the will to act you can save your country from the ruin to which it is drifting. If you lack these qualities, or any of them, no outside force will come to your aid.

"You will merely be the end of a civilization that has spent itself."

Cheered by Brookhart Defeat.

Col. McCormick found cheer in the defeat of Brookhart in Iowa; in the defeat of a bolshevik leader who had brought ruin to Australia; in an awakening of patriots to defeat La Follettеism in Wisconsin, and in the struggle of Louisiana to down "the strangle hold of the Red leader, Huey Long."

The publisher opened his address by defining the vicious circle which has girded the nation's financial structure.

"It has been comprehensively shown," he declared, "that the depression here and elsewhere has been caused by excessive taxes, which have made industry and commerce unprofitable, have prevented them from saving any surplus or raising new capital, and have thrown millions of men out of work. In consequence the need has arisen [or is it that the occasion has been seized?] for the state to provide new capital and supply employment and charity for the idle, to do which it is levying still more excessive taxes, completing the vicious circle.

Start to Confiscate Capital.

"This situation brought about by our lawmakers is no less grotesque when viewed from the interests of public activities they play with at great expense than from the welfare of the whole nation. Demanding enormous revenues for their armies of tax eaters, to supply which great earnings are necessary, they would have been expected to encourage the production of wealth in order to create a larger pool from which to draw their imposts. Instead they have consistently obstructed profits, harassed business with a multitude of burdensome and useless regulations, and have begun to confiscate the capital which makes civilization possible.

"Faced with the diminishing revenue and hard times of its causing, congress during the present session has been milling around like a herd of steers stampeded in a western stream and drowning in its depths. While the majority are merely confused, they are undoubtedly dominated and driven by the Red members who are working to destroy our government and our civilization, and who, in turn, are supported by that group of scholastic morons calling themselves Progressives and Liberals, whose principal concern is to make private enterprise unprofitable, not realizing in their egotism and ignorance that when business is destroyed bolshevism must follow. They are no more progressive than the Old Testament Hebrews and the early church prelates, no more liberal than the feudal nobles of the Dark Ages, all of whom battled against the principle of private profit and held the world in slavery for centuries.

"Money is being spent by public officials faster than it is being accumulated by private individuals and companies. We are therefore running to an inevitable end of private and public bankruptcy, and the end is in sight.

Vandals Not So Foolish.

"Our congressmen who thought they were smart to confiscate the wealth of the nation to pay for their political dissipations were less wise than the Vandals who sacked Rome and set civilization back a thousand years. Rome was not the home of the Vandals.

"When those savages destroyed the former civilization they took away from everybody the right of property. The king, emperor, earl, or whoever acted as their dictator of the proletariat, confiscated all real property and lent it to his ward heelers under the various patronages of feudalism well known to second-year law students.

"In the terrible centuries that followed, with their oubliettes and their racks, their breaking wheels and their iron virgins, far more people were property than owned property. Things of value were safe only in the castles of the gangster barons, and not always safe there from other gangsters, and in the walled towns of the merchants, which were not infrequently plundered by the reformers of their day. The insecurity of private property is illustrated by the quotation: 'They should take who have the power, and they should keep who can.'

"Interstate commerce was not encouraged as much as it was regulated, especially along the River Rhine, where public buildings erected by the robber chiefs from the tribute levied still crown the craggy mountain tops.

Safety in Misery.

"The safety of the average man lay in his misery. He could preserve his lowly habiliments and his wooden spades because no one else would stoop to take them. He was equally the victim of the armored knight and of the sturdy rogue. Hunger was the natural condition of the multitude and the common cause of death; comfort, as we understand it, existed for no one, and education was an aim to which only a handful could aspire and none arrive.

"It was not until long after the discovery of America, during the reign of Charles II., after Cromwell had cut off the head of Charles I. and New Amsterdam had been ravished from the Dutch by the duke of York, that a free title to own real estate became available to the few who could exercise that privilege.

"And it was in the reign of Charles II. that the charter of the city of London was forfeited by the king, an act that reminds us that our city charters do not come to us as natural rights, but as privileges dearly purchased by our ancestors from their overlords. So when we consider the rapacity with which our legislatures prey upon our modern cities and modern enterprise we may appreciate that they are only emulating in a small way the conduct of their predatory predecessors in control of the state.

"In the ease and plenty that we have enjoyed on this continent, and which in turn we have reflected across the seas to western Europe, we must not forget the labors, struggles, and suffering with which trade and industry wrested and bought free institutions from barons and bigots.

Called Profit a Sin.

"If it was difficult to retain property it was harder still to make it. Until the eighteenth century the churches declared it sin to make a profit; to the aristocratic class, with whom only wealth was hereditary and education open, all kinds of gainful occupations were dishonorable; and, finally, we find among the earliest recorded acts of parliament those very laws in restraint of trade which we in our blindness have reproduced in this century.

"From all this our ancestors fled and settled in a new world.

"Let us examine the motives which guided the discovery and settlement of this world.

"Christopher Columbus did not sail across the ocean in order to earn a reasonable and adequate return upon the fair cash value of the Santa Maria; he crossed the ocean in search of fortune.

"The thirteen colonies were founded by men seeking wealth, as were the other thirty-five states later. The ambition of the settlers is evidenced by the fact that they endured the horrors of a medieval ocean crossing to face the terrors of a savage-haunted continent, and the abject poverty of many, if not most of them, is shown by the fact that they paid their fares with seven years of servitude as indentured servants.

"The proprietors wished to duplicate the conditions of the old world in the new, but the settlers would have none of it. They wished for everything that had been forbidden them. They wished to own land and other property, and not a limited amount.

Sought for Riches.

"George Washington did not cross the Alleghanies and fight the Indians in order that he might plow an eighty-acre farm in Ohio; he crossed the mountains to get rich.

"Do not think that the revolutionary war rose suddenly in resentment against the stamp tax and the tax on tea; it was the climax of a struggle which had been going on from invisible beginnings ever since the Lombard brutes enslaved Roman civilization.

"The Massachusetts patriots were not only revolting against the stamp tax and the tax on tea but against the unbearable horde of job holders; against the restrictions on their commerce and interference with their manufactures—the conditions reproduced today. They were joined by the southern colonists, whose ambition to acquire land west of the Alleghanies had been frustrated by parliament, and who during the revolutionary war took this land by conquest and so obtained a more complete title than we hold on all the other lands in the United States.

"Our ancestors won freedom with the sword, implemented it in the constitution, and walled it around with the bill of rights.

"Hope and ambition replaced despair and resentment. The great rise in civilization began.

"They repulsed the English invasions, curbed the savages, expelled the Spanish, French, and Mexicans, settled the land, opened the mines, built the factories, laid out the railroads, devised legal and financial methods for trade and industry, and overcame the plagues.

"American commerce covered the oceans. American pioneers flocked across the mountain barrier, spread over the plains, bridged the rivers, penetrated the western deserts, took possession of Alaska and the Hawaiian islands, and, before the spirit of recession set in, captured the Philippine islands and freed and educated their natives.

"Americans who remained in place were no less enterprising than the merchants and the pioneers. Under the patent law, which extended the right of property to the products of the brain, inventions multiplied for the benefit of mankind. So prolific were the liberated minds that they produced for all countless instruments for the amelioration of conditions that were improvements upon and additions to those which the historically privileged had developed for themselves alone.

"The fireplace, first converted into the stove, became the furnace, the kitchen range, the gas range, the electric stove. The tallow candle was displaced by kerosene, by gas, by electric light. The besom became broom, carpet sweeper, vacuum cleaner.

"The ballad singers gave place to street fairs, show boats, tent shows, and the theater. Today the movie and the talkie take the highest art into the lowliest hamlets.

"The hand press and hand typesetting have been replaced in turn by the horse press, the steam press, the motor-driven press, the linotype, and the stereotype. Reading, once the privilege of the exclusive few, is practically free for the multitude, while the printing industry furnishes employment to greater numbers than the total literate population of a previous generation.

Better Served than Napoleon.

"The Emperor Napoleon was served by a telegraph system of semaphores. Today every American has the use of the electric telegraph, the telephone and the radiogram.

"On the farm the hand pump had so long given way to the wooden windmill, to the steel windmill, to the gasoline engine and the electric motor that many of us had to travel to France as soldiers to find out that 'The Old Oaken Bucket' was not merely a song. 'Over there,' in defending or taking the French châteaux, we found out that the 'sons and daughters of a hundred earls' possessed fewer creature comforts than American farmers and skilled workmen.

"Only a few in Europe can afford motor transportation; American tramps scour the country in automobiles.

"An extraordinary revolution, so long accomplished as to be forgotten, was that agricultural machinery and railroads with their adjuncts, cattle cars and refrigeration made farming a money earning enterprise for the first time in the history of the world, and also raised the masses of Europe from their condition of semi-starvation.

"How is it that such a magic rise in the lot of mankind was stopped and has been definitely headed back to the previous condition of want and misery?

Great Men Desert Government.

"In the early days of American freedom, before its fruit had been produced, public life absorbed the men of greatest talents and raised the art of government to undreamed heights. However, as opportunity spread and larger and wider fields of usefulness and activities revealed themselves, brilliant men came to seek intellectual outlet in invention, in science, in finance and business activity, while the offices of government fell more and more into the control of men not capable of the larger mental and spiritual activities.

"When evils were perceived among the great blessings of our institutions—evils which loomed large in the altruistic imagination of the American people, but which in fact were Lilliputian compared with the oppressions from which our people had escaped and which the people of Europe were accepting as unavoidable—those manipulating political power could find no cure except by a slavish imitation of European governmental methods. Upon a people newly escaped from the curse of a ruling class were heaped department upon department, bureau upon bureau.

"We have so many offices, appointive and elective, that obtaining office is both a profession and an occupation, so exacting upon its members as to leave them no leisure with which to engage in other occupations or even to learn about the necessities of civil life and of national economics; they just do not know what is going on outside of their own officialdom.

"The recreation and emoluments of the bureaucracy being office holding, their occupation is politics. Power is maintained by the perfection of political machines operating behind some simple emotion.

Appeal of General Welfare.

"Quite naturally, and very usefully, the desire for general welfare was long the successful platform of politics. The earliest political recollections of many of us are the appeals to 'the full dinner pail,' reminiscences of the reaction against the hard times of 1893.

"However, as the hard times of '93 fell farther and farther into the background, this appeal began to lose its charm. Another emotion was appealed to, one older than Iago, as old as Cain—the feeling of envy. Not the elevation of the lowly, but the tearing down of the well-to-do, has been the alibi behind political manipulation in recent decades.

"In different sections of the country different appeals to envy and hatred have been made. Where you meet today the plea has been made to the farmer against industry.

"Elsewhere, immigrants from continental Europe, with no experience in self-government, are easily led to direct their old world hostility to social superiors, against the Americans who preceded them here. Untrained in self-reliance, they are easily persuaded to rely upon officeholders rather than upon themselves.

Foreign Agitators Busy.

"Foreign agitators have repaid us for asylum by both insidious and open agitation against our institutions, until today their policies, not those born of the great Virginia philosophers, Jefferson, Madison, and Mason, and the great economist, Hamilton, dominate action in Washington.

"While the officeholders have been the officers, the unassimilated have been the mass in the attacks on the American way of life.

"Politically, they have been all successful; economically, their accomplishment has been like a Greek tragedy. Their own faults have led to their undoing. Having vindictively destroyed the existing marketing machinery, having seized five hundred million dollars of their people's money to finance a Russian food soviet, they have brought the price of farm commodities down to the levels obtaining before America created free institutions. Pork was not selling down at three cents a pound in the days before the packers had been driven to despair and suicide, nor was wheat down to forty-five cents before bolshevik commissars replaced the American form of grain marketing.

"The tax raisers in our capital city and elsewhere, very few of whom have produced any wealth of any kind in any way, think an income is like a flowing artesian well; that the fortunate possessor of an income has somehow come into possession of a running stream, small or great in size, and all that the beneficiaries of government taxation have to do is to reach a pipe into the well, take as much water as they want, and leave the owner as little as may be.

Strength Is Sapped Out.

"Now, unfortunately for the tax raisers and their victim, that is not the case. A better analogy would be the example of the sugar maple tree or the turpentine pine. About them we know that, by a proper and conservative form of farming, the trees may be tapped for maple sap, or for turpentine, up to a certain point, but beyond that the tree will cease to grow, and beyond that it shrivels and dies.

"An even closer comparison is found at Rochester in Minnesota, where there is an industry—supplying human blood to the hospitals. Through long experience the doctors know that they can take a certain amount of blood from a healthy man without affecting his health; the sick can get the benefit of his strength and he may complete his normal years, but beyond that, either slowly or fast, they bleed him to death.

"That process of bleeding to death has been going on in this country under the old tax laws. How much will it be accelerated under the new? I prophesy that the imposts set by congress cannot be raised in this country for even one year. In other words, the taxes proposed will not balance the budget because the blood givers will sicken so fast that they will not be able to supply the government its many drops of blood.

"Bear this in mind: Under this tax bill the American producers can carry on a losing fight for one summer with diminishing earnings and vanishing employment. At the outside, we can carry on for one year; but if this tax bill remains on the statute books our civilization will fall as fell the civilization of Rome, sacked not by the Vandals but by our own conscript fathers.

Budget Not Balanced.

"The statement that our national budget is balanced is a deliberate falsehood uttered on the one hand by people who wish to hide the failure of their guardianship and on the other by those ferous individuals who hope to conceal from you the path which leads over the precipice—until you have fallen beyond recovery.

"The tax raisers, living in semi-idleness on other people's money, assume that income flows constantly and continuously. It does not.

"A lawyer, for instance, goes through the equivalent of a period of apprenticeship during which he works for a bare subsistence while he establishes a practice and a reputation, and then at the maturity of his intellect and toward the end of his active life he has a few prosperous, perhaps very prosperous, years.

"I knew a great lawyer who once received a fee of $400,000, up to which time he had made no more than a living. That great fee came during the period of war taxes, and although his case had nothing to do with the war or war profiteering but was the result of long litigation which finally matured at that time, the government took so much of his fee that he died a poor man.

"The same course runs through practically every money making occupation.

"The confiscationists incite the envious against supposed families with large regular incomes from investments, but if I ask you who these are you will find trouble in naming them. The fact is that in this country, with the abolition of primogeniture and the wide and varied course of business activities, wealth has not been handed down in many cases from generation to generation.

Wealth Not Handed Down.

"If you will run through the roster of the big names in industry, commerce and finance today and will look back over as short a period as twenty years you will not find many names repeated. And if you go back to a prior age, say the period before the panic of 1893, I doubt if in the whole country you will recognize enough names represented in both lists to mark on the fingers of your two hands.

"The fact is that industrial life is hard and commercial life is hard. The percentage of success that enterprise, intelligence, application and hard work can win over all the unknown quantities is not great.

"Every new venture is a gamble and every day is an adventure. If too much is taken away from the successful ventures the inevitable result is bound to be a preponderance of unsuccessful ones, and that means stagnation and sterilization.

"The taxes piled on industry have been to the point where industry is on the road to ruin. This was contemplated, but the ruin carries in its train certain unavoidable consequences which, if contemplated, were concealed.

"The first of these has been the widespread unemployment, which is the result of capital confiscation. To provide for the unemployed the politicians have turned to further taxation on industry, with the resulting consequences of still further unemployment and a decrease in taxes received as earnings have disappeared.

"The next situation which we face is that we shall have millions of unemployed and insufficient money extortable by taxation with which to buy them food. The country and its rulers will then be faced by the alternative: 'Shall the unemployed starve or shall food be provided for them, and, since money will not be available to buy it, shall it be requisitioned from the farms as in Russia?'

"Will the farmers resist such a requisition, and will they be able to? If they do, will the government expropriate the farms for the workmen as they have already expropriated the industries, ostensibly for workmen and farmers, and if so, will our population, based upon a complicated industrial system, be able to return to the status of European peasantry, directed and dominated by the ruling class of officeholders from which our forefathers escaped, without the widespread famine and starvation that stalk in Australia and New Zealand today?

"The crisis is rushing upon us. The movement which seeks to put the nation in slavery to an officeholding class by the confiscation of private property is organized and active; you must organize and act for self-preservation.

"Today the United States government, through one of its agencies or another, dominates transportation, banking, and agriculture, and is reaching out for dominance over manufacturing and commerce. In less than a generation the taxes paid to the United States treasury have risen from less than a billion dollars a year to well over four billion. Nothing could be more certain than that, if the present trend continues, the tax exactions will rise, year by year, until all private profits will disappear. We are close to that point today. The governments, national, state, and local, are taking a fourth of the income of the American people today, and about one-third of this huge total goes to Washington.

Mistaken Idea of Wealth.

"This sacking of the American republic was made possible because of a mistaken idea of national wealth during the boom, because the bulk of the taxes was extorted from a number of voters so small that they could not protect themselves, and from the proclamation of the foreign doctrines of the anarchists—Engels, Marx, and Lenin—that the ruin of the rich would inure to the benefit of the less well-to-do.

"Our subverters have expounded at length that big business competed with little business, and distracted our attention from the fact that it was a big consumer of little businesses' products, a large employer of men, and our principal taxpayer.

"With the elimination of big business we have lost great markets, much employing power, and have acquired the heavy tax burdens which big business carried as long as it could.

"Receipts from income taxes for the year ending June 30, 1929, were $2,331,274,429. For the year ending June 30, 1930, they were $2,410,259,230. For the year ending June 30, 1931, they were $1,860,040,497.

"The secretary of the treasury in his annual report sent to congress last December estimated the receipts from income taxes for the year ending June 30, 1932, at $1,140,000,000. Collections amounted to $1,057,000,000.

"The secretary in his report to congress last December estimated the receipts from income taxes for the year ending June 30, 1933, at $1,100,000,000. The income tax law passed recently, according to the same authority, would add $178,000,000 to the income tax receipts. The assumption has been that business would not get worse. The facts are otherwise.

Taxable Income Destroyed.

"Our tax laws have destroyed more than a half, nearly two-thirds, of taxable income, forcing the tax eaters to search elsewhere for their spoils.

"BUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF THEIR SACKING OF INDUSTRY HAVE BEEN FAR MORE TERRIBLE.

"IN SUBSTANTIALLY REDUCING BUYING POWER AND COMPELLING SELLING OF ALL KINDS OF PROPERTY TO MEET TAX BILLS, THEY HAVE FORCED A BEAR MOVEMENT IN ALL COMMODITY, SECURITY, AND REALTY PRICES, INFINITELY GREATER THAN ALL THE OTHER BEAR INFLUENCES COMBINED, UNTIL THE SELLERS SO GREATLY OUTNUMBERING THE BUYERS, PROPERTY OF ALL KINDS HAS LOST MOST OF ITS VALUE. THERE BEING LITTLE DEMAND FOR COMMODITIES, THERE IS ONLY A TRIFLING DEMAND FOR LABOR. TAXATION HAS EATEN OUR LIVELIHOOD.

"I can name only four ways of carrying on industry. The first I will call the boarding house and blacksmith stage, such as John Marshall found in Washington and in Baltimore, where the family contributed substantially all the capital and all the labor and their outgrowth.

"Second—The great one man institutions, of which we have many examples but of which the Ford plant is the outstanding instance.

"Third—The corporation, which allows many to pool their resources in a common enterprise.

Modern Form of Feudalism.

"There remains the fourth—the modern edition of the feudal grist m—the monopoly to which the government of the day compelled the farmers to bring their grain, now euphemistically dubbed 'government ownership' by the feeble-minded people that call themselves 'intelligentsia' and thrill like schoolgirls at a movie in anticipation of a dictatorship of the proletariat by the bloody minded despots of Moscow.

"Much falsification of bookkeeping and much positive mendacity have been employed to camouflage the fact that nowhere in the world or in history has any form of industrial enterprise carried on by government been anything other than an added form of taxation on the people.

"When listening to the appeals to envy remember two basic facts in political economy which the Reds who rule on Capitol hill ignore:

"First—Great profits come only to an enterprise which produces an article for which the demand vastly exceeds the capacity to produce it. These profits are reinvested in the business to expand its capacity. When production approximates demand large profits cease!

"The example of this fact best known to all of us is the automobile industry, which built itself up in the last twenty-five years almost entirely out of profits, gave to all the people of the United States great comfort and luxury and profitable employment to millions of them. Examples of the same principle on a smaller scale are found in every decade and in every state in the Union.

Profit Through Efficiency.

"Second—Great profits come to one who learns how to produce an article of common use at much less than previous cost. His profits last until others learn to reduce their costs also, when the profits all revert to the consumer!

"Do you realize that we now forbid by law all innovations and all reductions in the cost of necessities?

"Bear this in mind also: The entire building industry, the carpenters, the bricklayers, the lock manufacturers, as well as the steel mills, mines, and quarries, exist upon accumulating capital. That is why these industries are prostrate now that these accumulations are being confiscated by the government.

"It is time for them to appreciate that taxation which penalizes profits is too big a price for the gratification of envy, hatred, and malice.

"Men of action are not necessarily political or economic philosophers. Aside from their one great gift, captains of industry are ordinary men. Their motives may be to fill the world with steamships, flivvers, or with razor blades; or it may be the common instinct to amass wealth. Therefore, you cannot expect them to risk all that they own and devote their lives to the incessant toil which spells prosperity for the world, if you rob them by law of eighty per cent of their combined income and accumulations. In doing so we have robbed the people of employment and reduced the value of their accumulations to the vanishing point.

"Men are free and equal before the law, but they are very different, one from another. We need the services of them all, professional men, artisans, agriculturists, operators of big units as well as of small, managers of corporations, and individualists, to maintain and to improve the civilization we have created.

"For the American contribution which remade the world lay less in doing old things better than in devising a host of new things theretofore unheard of.

"You may be sure that we cannot hope to revive our prosperity through the manufacture of articles we know; we can do it only by finding things not yet invented or devised and by making it worth while for men to create them.

"For while it is obvious that the state can seize anything in existence—is doing so as we sit here—it cannot seize the things not yet created and it cannot create.

"It was the right to profit, slowly wrested from the power of ignorance and oppression, which lifted the world from out of the dark ages.

"The benefits to mankind achieved in the past century, far greater than in the previous history of the world, came because the creative power of men was aroused as they were allowed to own the property which they accumulated and the wealth they produced, and stimulated them to superhuman mental, moral and physical exertions. This creative power has withered as these rights have been taken away, and the depression has affected the despoilers as well as the despoiled.

Tax Law Kills Progress.

"Under our present tax law of abominations progress must cease. Established industries, unless carried down in the general collapse, may carry on for a generation, and moribund ones may benefit because no new enterprise will arise to compete with them, because, when we take away the opportunity for owning wealth, when we let the tax eaters, like Al Capone, 'muscle in' on private property to the extent of fifty per cent of income and forty per cent of estates, there will be no new enterprises!

"There will be stagnation and unemployment on a scale still unheard of!

"With this dire prospect before us, I am glad to close with a word of good cheer.

"At the primary election in Iowa the principal Red in the United States senate was defeated by two votes to one. In a recent election in New South Wales, Australia, Lang, the bolshevik leader who wrecked that province, was decisively beaten. In Wisconsin, which has long led the senate and the nation on the road to soviet Russia, a splendid organization has been perfected by the patriots of that state, with a capable administrator nominated for governor and a splendid fighting man of dramatic type running for the senate. He will be useful not only in combatting the Red element of Wisconsin but when elected he will combat the Red element on Capitol hill.

Louisiana Fights Long.

"In the south, Louisiana is fighting nobly to free itself from the strangle hold of the Red leader, Huey Long. He has been impeached by his own legislature. Let us support the gallant Americans in that state who are fighting for their country with all the valor which saved New Orleans in the war of 1812.

"More than a hundred organizations have been formed to reduce tax extortions and to fight bolshevism. Your own was the first in the field. It inspired the creation of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, 1 North La Salle street, Chicago, which conducts the work of eight hundred and fifty commercial and agricultural groups in all the forty-eight states of the Union.

"The future is still within your control. The machines of the tax eaters are not yet strong enough to overwhelm you.

"If you have the eyes to see, the brain to comprehend, and the will to act, you can save your country from the ruin to which it is drifting. If you lack these qualities, or any one of them, no outside force will come to your aid.

CHICAGO A. OF C. JOINS SUIT AGAINST STATE INCOME TAX

The Chicago Association of Commerce, represented by the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, has filed an appearance as a friend of the court in the suit to invalidate the 1932 Illinois income tax law, now pending before the state Supreme court. Officers of the association, representing 6,000 business and industrial concerns, contend that the law is unconstitutional and by taxing income from property already taxed subjects the property to double taxation.

The constitution of Illinois permits only three forms of taxation—the mandatory general property tax, a tax on occupations and a tax on franchises and privileges, officers of the association said. They contend that the new levy fails to qualify under any of these authorized taxes.

HIGHLAND PARK BUDGET IS CUT ONE THIRD BY DRIVE

Civic clubs of Highland Park, at a meeting in the Pearl theater last night, were informed that their campaign to reduce city expenditures had been successful and that the municipal budget for the present fiscal year will be at least a third under the amount originally contemplated.

The city council had passed an ordinance calling for expenditures of $451,000. The civic clubs maintained that the total should not exceed $228,000. They threatened a referendum. The council has repealed the original ordinance and formulated another appropriating $312,000, with possibilities of further retrenchment. It is scheduled for passage on July 11.

REAL ESTATE, CIVIC BODIES WILL HELP NEW YORK BUDGET

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Real estate and civic organizations will be allowed to take an active part in forming the 1933 budget, Mayor James J. Walker announced today. In previous years a tentative budget has been created and submitted to civic and business groups for criticism. This year the mayor will invite a small committee representing the major organizations to sit in at the conferences at which department appropriations are fixed.

Raising Price if Goods Escaped Tax Ruled Crime

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The bureau of internal revenue warned retailers today that it is a criminal offense to increase prices of taxable merchandise held in stock prior to June 21, when the new manufactures excise taxes went into effect. Any one who thus takes advantage of the competitive situation arising out of the imposition of the new taxes is liable to a fine of $1,000 or to imprisonment of not more than one year, or both.

Council Defers Action on Tunnel Franchise

The city council yesterday received and ordered deferred and published the new franchise ordinance for the Chicago Tunnel company, and the amendment to the water ordinance fixing a minimum rate for all water customers having metered service. No action was reported by the committee on committees on the committee assignments of Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d], recently elected to succeed the late Ald. Joseph Cepak.

BARKER MURDER GUN TRACED TO ROADHOUSE MAN

He Says He Left Rifle in Place Raided by Police.

Louis Silversmith, part owner of the Della roadhouse in Morton Grove, was taken to the detective bureau last night and questioned in connection with the murder of George "Red" Barker. A repeating rifle used to kill the gangster June 16 was found to have been purchased by Silversmith in 1927, with the aid of a policeman.

A. D. MUTTER.

"I bought the gun," Silversmith admitted to Sergt. George Schupolsky. "I needed it to protect the gambling house I had then at 51st street and Indiana avenue. The police closed the place shortly after I got the gun and I left it there with all the rest of the fixtures." Shortly after midnight Silversmith was released by the police.

Schupolsky also sought Sam Hare, Silversmith's partner, and the Touhy brothers, Roger and Con, who are reputed to have the gambling and liquor concessions at the suburban bright spot. Only Silversmith could be found there.

See Gambling Motive.

That Barker, a labor racketeeer, ex-convict and gunman, who aspired to the mantle of Al Capone, was shot down because he was trying to "muscle in" on gambling in northwest side roadhouses was the new theory occupying the attention of Chief of Detectives Schoemaker last night. The hoodlum was killed while walking in front of 1503 North Crawford avenue by a volley of machine gun and rifle bullets fired from a second story window.

The machine gun used in the killing was traced to a concern with which former Alderman Titus A. Haffa of the 43d ward is associated but he denied purchasing it.

The rifle was found to have been ordered at the Von Lengerke & Antoine sporting goods store by A. D. Mutter and delivered to Silversmith and Hare at their Indiana avenue establishment on Nov. 11, 1927.

A. D. Mutter was found to be a policeman now attached to the Wabash avenue station. At the detective bureau last night he admitted ordering the rifle for Silversmith.

"I only did it as a favor for a friend," Mutter explained. He was allowed to return to his home after being questioned.

Linked to Other Killings.

The police now believe there was a direct connection between the Barker killing and a murder committed in the Dells about eighteen hours before Barker's assassination. Early the morning of June 16, three men, now believed to be members of the Touhy gang, walked into the place while 300 people were dancing and shot and killed Fred Di Giovanni, an ex-convict, who was sitting at a table with another man and woman. The police were told last night that Di Giovanni was suspected of being a spy for Barker. One of the slayers, Leroy Marschalk, was wounded and captured. He had served a prison term with Di Giovanni.

Gunmen Rob Girl Cashier of $400 in Office Holdup

Three gunmen entered the offices of the Chicago Industrial Finance corporation, 1227 North Ashland avenue, late yesterday and took $400 from Miss Wanda Lesiewicz, 2100 North Leavitt street, the cashier. Three other employés in the rear of the place were not aware of the holdup.

AUTO LICENSE FEES FOR LAST SIX MONTHS EXCEED 16 MILLIONS

Springfield, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—The various departments of the office of Secretary of State William J. Stratton collected $17,536,415.22 in fees in the first six months of this year, acording to figures announced today. Of the grand total the automobile department collected $16,059,244.92 and the corporation department $1,424,523.92.

The semi-annual report shows that the office sold 1,362,550 pairs of automobile license plates in the first six months of the year. Of this number 1,203,750 were for passenger cars and 158,820 for trucks. The latter fee was paid into the road fund in the state treasury to be used for road construction.

CHAPLIN LISTED AS FILMLAND'S RICHEST ACTOR

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—The county assessor has answered one of Hollywood's great speculations, namely: Who is filmdom's richest celebrity?

The assessment roll revealed today he is none other than that prince of comedians, Charles Chaplin.

Chaplin possesses taxable stocks and bonds valued at $7,687,750, cash and solvent credits totaling $296,600 but his automobile is even as yours and mine—worth only $770.

There were also a variety of other intriguing secrets about Hollywood's finances which came out of the assessor's office, such as:

That Greta Garbo owns taxable stocks and bonds valued at $122,010, an automobile listed at $220.

That Gloria Swanson has a harp worth $350.

That Douglas Fairbanks is runner-up to Chaplin, possessing taxable stocks and bonds worth $869,000.

That Harold Lloyd has taxable stocks and bonds worth $174,450, automobiles at $700, furniture, $102,940, real estate and improvements, $341,260.

Weapon Taken from One of Suspects.

Two alleged gunmen were freed yesterday by Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro when they were arraigned before him on charges of carrying concealed weapons, although the evidence showed that the police had taken a gun from the pocket of one of the defendants and had seen the other throw a revolver to the street.

The defendants were John Scanlon and John Ryan, each 29 years old. They had been arrested by Police Sergts. Thomas and Francis Meagher, brothers, with John Counihan, 25, and Daniel O'Leary, 29, allegedly in the act of trying to extort money from George J. Zemus, said by police to be a bookmaker. All four were released from the extortion charge when Zemans failed to appear to testify against them.

When making the arrest Sergt. Thomas Meagher took a revolver from Scanlon's pocket, and Ryan tossed a gun away when he was pursued by Sergt. Francis Meagher. Ryan and Scanlon asked for a jury trial on the concealed weapon charges, but when brought before Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green their attorney, Ben Cohen, asked for a change of venue. Chief Justice Sonsteby reassigned the case to Judge Sbarbaro.

It was brought out in the testimony yesterday that Ryan's gun had been turned over to the police by an unidentified citizen. Judge Sbarbaro ruled that the evidence was not conclusive as to the ownership of the gun and freed Ryan. The gun was traced by the police as having been sold from a pawnshop in 1916 to L. Terry, 1011 West Polk street, which is the home of the parents of Rocco Fanelli, gangster.

Scanlon testified that he carried a gun as a bodyguard to John Lynch, head of a racing service, who was kidnaped recently. Judge Sbarbaro sustained a motion to suppress the evidence and discharged Scanlon also. His gun was said by police to have been one of six shipped from New York, one of which (not Scanlon's) was used in a murder.

"2 GUN" ALTERIE WINS ACQUITTAL IN KIDNAP TRIAL

'Buster' Brown Also Freed by Jury in 3½ Hours.

Louis [Two Gun] Alterie, once a figure in gangland, and Charles [Buster] Brown, a minor hoodlum, were acquitted by a jury yesterday in Judge John Prystalski's Criminal court on a charge of kidnaping Edward Dobkin alias Shamus O'Brien, a bookmaker, for $8,000 ransom. The jury deliberated three and one half hours before returning an unanimous acquittal verdict for both defendants.

Alterie was known as Dion O'Bannion's first lieutenant during the latter's brief rule as gangland chief. Alterie disappeared but turned up several years later as the owner of a dude ranch near Denver, Colo.

Heads Janitor's Union.

The gangster, however, kept his finger in Chicago affairs by retaining his office as president of the Chicago Janitors' union. He still holds that office, he testified yesterday, and officials of the union took the stand to help him establish an alibi.

The state contended that the payoff of the ransom money took place in Alterie's office at the union. The prosecution relied largely on the testimony of Gus Sanger, one of the kidnap gang, to establish identification of Alterie and Brown as the kidnapers. Dobkin, the complaining witness, said that he knew both Alterie and Brown prior to his kidnaping on March 3, 1931, but that he could not identify them as his captors.

Brown Does Not Testify.

Attorney William Scott Stewart for the defense placed Alterie on the witness stand, but did not allow Brown to testify.

After the verdict was returned Attorney Stewart asked the court to grant an immediate trial on a charge of conspiracy growing out of the same kidnaping. He said that Alterie wants to get back to his ranch. Assistant State's Attorney Ross Lee Laird said he was ready for a second trial, but Judge Prystalski said he would be busy until July 25 and refused to set a date.

PROSPERITY WILL RETURN; ALWAYS HAS; SAYS ROCKEFELLER SR.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—On the eve of his ninety-third birthday, John D. Rockefeller, who has lived through depressions and prosperities that most persons now alive can review only on charts, declared in his annual message to the public today that "prosperity has always returned, and will again."

The Standard Oil Trust, as it was first called, was formed in 1882, and under Mr. Rockefeller went through the depression of 1884 and the panics of 1893, 1903, and 1907. Looking back today, on this experience, he said:

"These are days when many are discouraged. In the ninety-three years of my life, depressions have come and gone. Prosperity has always returned, and will again.

"And now on this, my birthday, I desire to reaffirm my belief in the fundamental principles upon which this country has been founded—liberty, unselfish devotion to the common good and belief in God."

JENKINS PLEADS FOR RELEASE OF 'FUR' SAMMONS

C. K. Jenkins, director of the state department of efiare under former Governor Len Small, testified last night before Judge Edward D. Shurtleff at Woodstock that in his opinion James (Fur) Sammons, notorious killer, is being held illegally in Joliet prison.

The hearing is on a writ of habeas corpus brought in behalf of Sammons by Attorneys W. W. Smith and David Joslyn Sr. Opposing the writ are Assistant Attorney General J. J. Metzger, State's Attorney Swanson, and Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne.

Sammons was sentenced to hang for a murder in 1903. Gov. Yates commuted his sentence to life and Gov. Sma later reduced it to fifty years. A Small parole board let him out on parole in 1923. In 1930, in a drive on gangsters, Sammons was sent back to prison, Judge John P. McGoorty holding the second commutation illegal and that Sammons must serve a life sentence. His attorneys now claim Sammons has served all the time necessary and should be free.

State's Attorney Swanson's contention is that Sammons must remain in prison at least until 1959. Judge Shurtleff will hear more testimony tonight.

2 FACE QUIZ ON ATTACK ON RACE PAPER PUBLISHER

Two men, under arrest at the Sheffield avenue police station, will be questioned today in connection with the shooting and wounding of Arthur Gould, 50 years old, publisher of a racing tip sheet, at Sheridan road and Surf street yesterday morning.

They are Edward Wilmsen, 30 years old, 5120 Sunnyside avenue, and Samuel Counsel, 32 years old, 4307 North Kimball avenue. Both are former employés of a rival tipster concern. They have denied knowing anything of the shooting.

Gould, who lives at 4145 Broadway, is owner of the Gould Press and Binder company, 812 West Van Buren street. At the Columbus Memorial hospital, where he was taken after a bullet had struck him in the right side, he told the police that two men whose names he did not know had threatened to "get" him unless he gave up his racing publication and joined with them in the printing and sale of another. He is to view Wilmsen and Counsel at the hospital today.

TEACHERS ASKED TO SOLICIT 1930 TAX PAYMENTS

McDonough Proposes Appeal to Owners.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

County Treasurer McDonough appealed to the school teachers yesterday to canvass and request large property owners to pay their 1930 taxes. The treasurer asserted he has tried every legal and extra-legal plan to persuade property owners to pay, with the result that less than 51 per cent of the $290,000,000 tax bill for 1930 has been paid.

J. B. McDONOUGH.

The treasurer's appeal is in the form of a letter to the board of education suggesting that they request the teachers to aid. James A. Meade, president of the Men Teachers' union for six years, said that the "teachers undoubtedly would be glad to undertake the task if requested."

Bank Presidents' Views Sought.

The McDonough letter probably will be presented at the special board meeting Monday night, called to consider the financial plight of the schools. President Myers invited, in addition to those listed in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, the following bank presidents, who may be asked their view of the McDonough tax campaign:

In addition, Sewell Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee and Fred Sargent, head of the committee on public expenditures, have been asked to sit in on the nightly meetings of the school trustees.

Payments Lower Each Year.

"Those nightly sessions indicate to me a serious purpose to find a solution of your pressing financial difficulties," wrote McDonough to the school board, "and prompt me to request such aid as you may be able to give in the collection of taxes. I am certain any means you adopt to solve your problem—in fact any adequate solution for the troubles of any of the local governments—revert back to the collection of taxes. That is the basic foundation on which a sound financial scheme must be based.

"Normally 94 per cent of the Cook county taxes are collectible, 91 per cent was collected in 1925 and 91.4 per cent in 1926. Since then the percentages have been running lower. For 1928 only 82.62 per cent of the taxes extended were collected. For 1929 the collections dropped to 68.48 per cent, and so far the 1930 collections are only 50.35 per cent of the levies.

$292,727,849 in Taxes Delinquent.

"For the four years, there is a total of $292,727,849 of delinquent taxes of which $144,102,000 remains unpaid of the 1930 taxes.

"This presents an exceedingly serious situation. Perhaps it is as threatening as Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell was quoted as picturing when he said: 'The local taxing system probably will collapse in a very few months.' Whether the picture is that gloomy is problematical; but it is certain that the situation is so critical as to be approaching a point of danger."

The letter goes on to state that the local governments cannot borrow substantial sums or get on a sound financial basis until a larger portion of the taxes have been paid.

Tax List Prepared by Mayor.

"May I suggest," continues the letter, "that perhaps the board of education could prevail upon its teacher and union organizations to call upon the large solvent property owners who are delinquent on their 1930 taxes. A comprehensive list of the large taxpayers for 1929 has been compiled by Mayor Cermak, owing to a lack of aid in the treasurer's office. This list, the mayor has announced publicly, is available to the teachers and other school employés if they will undertake the task of presenting the urgency of tax payments to the large property owners."

Mr. Meade of the men teachers' union explained that the teacher organizations have been quiet for a week or 10 days as a precaution against interfering with any relief for the teachers from Washington. The board owes its employés more than $20,000,000.

Hope of U. S. Aid Wanes.

The teacher organizations had been led by certain interests to hope that part or all of that sum might be obtained from the federal government, but this hope has proved vain, since the latest draft of the proposed relief legislation prohibits the loaning of money to pay overdue obligations.

Robert C. Keenan of the south side teachers' group said that he is certain his organization will push along the plan to canvass the large taxpayers. He added: "We have had in mind the very same idea, and have obtained from the city controller a list of large property owners. We will urge them to pay their taxes. If unable to do that in full, we will plead with them to buy tax anticipation warrants that the teachers may get their salaries."

MRS. LUCILLE GRAY FORBES.

Judge Joseph Sabath was informed yesterday that the temporary reconciliation which he arranged between Alexander D. Forbes, son of a Rockford banker, and Mrs. Lucille Forbes, 4246 Sheridan road, on June 13, has been made permanent, and that Mrs. Forbes will drop her suit for separate maintenance. A hearing on the fees due attorneys in the case was set for today. Mrs. Forbes left her husband two years ago, at which time she also filed suit against his parents, charging alienation of affections.

TWO RELATIVES SEEK SHARE IN COMISKEY RICHES

Marie Bernoudy, 29 years old, 7310 Euclid avenue, and her brother, Alfred, 26 years old, yesterday filed an appeal to the Circuit court seeking a share of the estate of the late Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox baseball club. The brother and sister were niece and nephew of Comiskey. The estate has been estimated at $2,500,000.

In the bill they charge that Comiskey had promised to leave $300,000 to Miss Bernoudy and $150,000 to her brother in his will. In 1911, the bill recited, they were sent to college by Comiskey and cared for as his own children. In 1922 Miss Bernoudy, who had married, obtained a divorce from her husband, the bill asserted. At that time, it was charged, Comiskey told her not to ask for alimony, saying that he would provide for her.

Comiskey died in his Wisconsin summer home last October, leaving no will. Under Illinois laws his whole estate reverted to his son, J. Louis Comiskey. The Bernoudys filed their claims in the Probate court, but later dismissed them, announcing that they would appeal to the Circuit court immediately, since any probate ruling would be appealed there ultimately.

Dismiss Another Suit Brought by Tax Strikers

Another taxpayers' suit, seeking to restrain County Treasurer McDonough from selling property for nonpayment of 1930 taxes, was dismissed yesterday. Circuit Judge Joseph Burke sustained the demurrer of County Attorney Hayden N. Bell to the bill for injunction filed by the Tax Service Association of Illinois on behalf of 750 taxpayers. The allegations in the bill were practically the same as those in the Clear and Bistor cases, in which the Supreme court upheld the 1928 and 1929 tax levies. Several similar taxpayers' suits have been dismissed in recent weeks.

Alien Smuggling Ring Agent Gets 5 Year Term

Vito Rizzi, 28 years old, 112 West Huron street, yesterday was sentenced to serve five years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on charges of violation of the immigration laws. Rizzi was the Chicago representative of a New York ring which aided fourteen aliens to enter the country illegally.

400 PAY INITIAL INSTALLMENT ON NEW TAX PLAN

Judge Jarecki Explains How System Works.

More than 400 property owners, delinquent on their 1930 tax bills, appeared at the county treasurer's office yesterday to make first payments under the new installment payment plan. Under the plan a payment of 25 per cent must be made before July 25, the date when judgment will be asked against delinquents, and three similar payments are to be made at 60 day intervals.

JUDGE JARECKI.

In many instances the property owners made payments of 50 and 75 per cent of their bills. An official of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, which has not yet paid taxes totaling $1,700,000, made an inquiry at the office about the plan. Large delinquent taxpayers are to receive notice of the plan from the office.

Jarecki Explains Plan.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki explained how the plan will operate to prevent foreclosure of homes. Under the strict terms of mortgages, the holder of the mortgage is able to bring a suit of foreclosure against the property as soon as taxes become delinquent.

"If such an action is brought where the owner has paid a portion of the bill," the judge said, "he can present his receipt for the portion of the tax bill and declare his intention of paying the balance at the intervals.

"Upon such a declaration a judge in chancery will certainly tell the holder of the mortgage that his suit is very thin and grant a continuance. By the time the case is up again the property owner will have paid his taxes and the lien against his property will have been removed.

Penalty is Reduced.

"Holders of mortgages will be also less inclined to bring such actions if the first payment is made, because on such a payment the penalty on delinquent taxes will be reduced by 40 per cent. This reduction will reduce the amount of the lien."

Under the law, the judge said, all taxes become liens against property on April 1 of each year regardless of any extensions of the date of payment. These liens are removed as soon as the taxes are paid.

The installment plan will forestall forfeiture of property to the county, in that continuances will be granted in the cases of owners who have made the first payment. Cases will be dropped as soon as the final payment is made.

FAIR WEATHER IN STORE AFTER TWO INCH RAIN

Fair skies and moderate temperatures will prevail in Chicago today and tomorrow, according to the official weather forecast.

A total of 2.03 inches of rain fell in the twenty-four hour period ended at 8 p. m. yesterday and viaducts were flooded in many parts of the city. Some traffic delays were caused. The rain ended in the early morning, however, and the remainder of the day was generally fair.

Yesterday's maximum temperature, 80 degrees, was about normal. The mean temperature was 74. The normal mean for the day is 73.

During a heavy thunderstorm shortly before dawn yesterday two houses in Chicago were struck by lightning. Windows were broken by a bolt which hit the home of Eli Kaplan at 1348 North Leavitt street and a fire was started by another which struck the roof of J. H. Stevens, 7128 Greenwood avenue. The lightning also felled a tree in Washington park.

2 Mill Tax Levy Slash Approved by Davenport

Davenport, Ia., July 7.—[Special.]—The Davenport property tax levy, reduced from 27 to 25 mills, today stood approved for the coming year's financing of the city functions, as the result of its unanimous adoption today by the city council. This represents a saving of approximately $65,000.

HONOR FLYER WHO GAVE LIFE TO RESCUE GIRL

Memorial services for Bruno Shustek, former German army flyer who was killed two years ago while trying to save the life of a girl parachute jumper, will be held Sunday at 3 p. m. in Elm Lawn cemetery, Elmhurst, in charge of the Elmhurst Lutheran brotherhood.

Shustek dropped to his death from the end of a rope suspended from a plane while trying to free the parachute worn by Miss Mary Fahrney of Oak Park. Miss Fahrney's parachute lines had become fouled in the undercarriage of another plane from which she jumped and she dangled over Stinson airport while Shustek, without a parachute himself, swung from the first plane and endeavored to liberate her. The parachute finally released itself and the girl floated to safety, but Shustek, apparently exhausted by his efforts, could not retain his grip on the rope and fell 600 feet. The Elmhurst brotherhood and Emil J. Jelinek of Villa Park will place a small marker over the aviator's grave before representatives of the German consulate and the American Legion. A firing squad will give a salute and pilots from surrounding airports will drop flowers on the grave.

Cabaret Girl Denies Part in Attempted Burglary

Miss Betty Green, 25 year old cabaret entertainer, denied to Judge John A. Sbarbaro in the Felony court yesterday that she had aided a man in an attempted burglary of the apartment of Dr. Stephen J. Conway, 4848½ Drexel boulevard, on June 6. The physician found the girl and a man who escaped working on the door lock with a chisel. The girl fled in a car and was captured after a four mile chase. She testified yesterday that she had "picked up the man," who said he knew Dr. Conway. She said she had waited for her friend while he went to the apartment and joined him just as the physician appeared. Judge Sbarbaro continued the case to July 20.

Church Leading Simpson by 107 Votes in Recount

Recounting of ballots of north shore towns gave Ralph E. Church a lead of 107 votes yesterday over James Simpson Jr., his closest rival for the Republican nomination for congress in the 10th district. In the primary of last April, Church, a state representative, won the nomination by 73 votes. In the early stages of the recount, which was demanded by Simpson, this lead was cut to 6 votes, but in the last few days Church has made gains.

Identify Boy Killed on Roller Coaster in Park

The identity of a boy hurled to his death from a roller coaster at Riverview park Wednesday night was established yesterday. The boy was Chester Aryacewski, 14 years old, 2129 North Western avenue, son of a grocer. At the inquest held at 2033 Belmont avenue an accident verdict was returned by a coroner's jury.

JOHN C. WAHL WINS DELAY IN ALIMONY CASE

John C. Wahl, who was once a $25,000 a year vice president of the Wahl Pen company, won a respite from Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday on the payment of $6,800 in alimony arrears to Mrs. June E. Wahl, 617 Oakdale avenue. He had been threatened with a jail sentence for nonpayment.

Attorney Sidney S. Gorham told Judge Sabath that Wahl has some business deals pending on which he hopes to realize some money. He plans to leave Chicago in connection with them. Judge Sabath continued the hearing to Sept. 19.

Attorney Gorham promised that any income which Wahl receives in the meantime will be turned over to his former wife. Attorney Harry M. Cole, representing Mrs. Wahl, charged that Wahl is "hiding behind the skirts of the depression" in his protestations that he has no money to give Mrs. Wahl.

Laid up for life at 35

because he foolishly neglected a youthful infection!

Only 35, yet doomed to a life of invalidism because of a social disease contracted in his early youth and never properly treated. Now an incurable heart affliction has robbed him of his livelihood, leaving his wife face to face with the problem of supporting herself and him!

Heart disease is but one of the many dreadful results of neglected syphilis. Others are arthritis, nervous breakdowns, apoplexy, blindness, deafness, locomotor ataxia, paralysis and even insanity! And syphilis also is responsible for the majority of stillborn, deformed and feeble-minded babies.

Gonorrhea, too, is extremely dangerous if permitted to go uncured. It may eventually be the cause of sterility, crippling rheumatism, prostate troubles or other tragic complications. Likewise, much infantile blindness and by far the greater part of the pelvic operations performed on women are the direct result of this disease which the misinformed think is no worse than a serious cold!

Both disorders, however, can be cured if properly and faithfully treated. Even long-standing cases of syphilis can often be arrested and really terrible consequences averted. Thus every man who has an active social disease, or who has reason to suspect that an early infection has not been completely eliminated, should immediately consult a qualified physician or come to the Public Health Institute. It is folly to attempt to cure yourself, as self-treatment may cause health-wrecking if not fatal complications!

Organized by prominent Chicagoans NOT FOR PROFIT but solely for the city's benefit, the Public Health Institute specializes in the treatment of venereal diseases at fees that are surprisingly low considering the high standard of its medical service. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including Wassermann and Kahn blood tests, costs only $3.00, while six consecutive treatments for gonorrhea cost but $4.00. Even those lacking immediate funds will be accommodated.

The Public Health Institute possesses every necessary scientific facility for the cure of social diseases. It maintains separate departments for men and women, where treatment is administered in absolute privacy by a staff of experienced physicians who have been licensed by the State Board of Medical Examiners. More than 175,000 individual patients have been treated in the past twelve years . . . ample evidence of public good will!

When trustworthy medical attention can be had so reasonably, why not take steps to insure your future health and happiness before it may be too late? It requires only a short time to be examined, so go to see a reliable physician or come to the Public Health Institute at any time between its hours of 10 A. M. to 8 P. M.

ROUGH COUNTRY, PLAIN PEOPLE IN AUSTRALIA

Sugar Control Tells Story of Industrial Meddling.

Here is the sixth of a series of articles by Mr. Kinsley, who was sent by The Tribune to get an American observer's viewpoint of conditions in Australia. Another article will appear tomorrow.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRISBANE, Australia, June 18.—[By Mail.]—No class distinctions in this land. Farmers, laborers, railroad men on leave are found in first class carriages. No question about accent and the fine distinctions of upper, upper middle, middle, lower middle, and the lowest classes as found in England. No great landed gentry. There is the small circle that apes the English royal set, around the governor general, who is usually an ex-soldier, a cricketer and an imperialist sent over from London. There are ex-office holders, ex-ministers, ex-members of parliament, who, if they happen to have any money, "rather fancy themselves," as the saying goes here.

But "society" has little place in this land, which is still in the pioneer stage. The people are red cheeked out of doors type who dress roughly. There is little smartness even on the streets in town. The clothes are for warmth first, and service.

Back Country Rough.

Much of the western back country is rough gray hillside, where trees that have been ring-barked thrust gaunt naked arms into the sky. Most of the trees are ragged and gaunt. The bush is open range and the cattle are small and rather thin. In the meadows the wheat is green. Little machinery is in use. The roads are muddy and unpaved. The horse is still the means of transport and of work, although in the mountains one may see as many as 24 lumbering looney looking bullocks pulling great logs down the slopes, driven by a man who yields a long evil looking bull whip with pistol like cracks and a welt on the flesh if a poor bullock stop for a moment.

House Roofs Catch Rain.

The houses are poor and made of plain board with iron roof to catch the rain, for this is a drought country at intermittent times. Many tents and shacks are seen along the railway, homes for traveling or settler families making their new way in the wilderness. Men and boys come to the railroad and shout "paper" as the train goes past, hoping that someone will toss a used newspaper to them, for this is the only way they get news.

There seems to be no end to Queensland products. They range from oranges and lemons and pineapples to sugar, cotton, tobacco, peanuts, apples, prunes, wheat, maize, corn, alfalfa. In addition there is timber, mining and oil.

There are stories coming across the continent of a big boom in the gold fields of western Australia, along the mountains by the Indian ocean. Many are planning to trek that way, for there is no other boom in sight, and little hope of labor on this horizon.

Industry Paralyzed.

Without new capital, and capital has been frozen by governmental methods, there seems to be little chance for new industry, and there is hardly enough now to keep this small population in comfort. The Socialists have an appealing argument and point to the great banks that line the streets of Brisbane and talk about forcing out the reserves there and taking control of the money market for the good of all instead of British bondholders.

Just now there is trouble in the sugar belt of North Queensland. The Italian farmers and laborers in the sugar land are at war with the British for preference in the cutting season employment which is just beginning. There are 40,000 Italians in Australia and many work for the sugar farmers for food and lodging during the growing season on the understanding that they will receive the cane cut in the season. British cane cutters claim preference because of race and have organized the British Preference league among farmers and millers. This has angered the Italians and there is talk of arms and conflict.

Italians Urged to Fight.

"The Italians of Mussolini," says one Italian journal, "are no longer the traditional wretched emigrants in search of food and work; mere bringers of fecundity; they are brains heavy with thought and with phosphorus—a will of steel—nerves of wire in muscles of granite, with open heart and mind adjusted to any event. Let there be a fiery response to the snarling swarm of our livid adversaries."

The production of sugar, from the acreage to the price paid for cane and the price paid for labor, is in the hands of the government of the state. The sugar companies, chiefly the Colonial, which has mills and fields in Fiji, make dividends, while the consumers pay. Under white labor there can be no competition with world sugar production, and the sugar is produced by small farmers instead of in large plantations. The farmers now are asking for a raise, claiming that they cannot make a living at present prices. There is no way to give it to them unless more is added to consumers' bill.

Bar Importations of Sugar.

Australia has adopted this policy deliberately to protect their own people and workers. No sugar is allowed to come in from the outside, while so much is raised now that 45 per cent of the crop is surplus and exportable. The price set this year is 23 pounds a ton, less expenses of one pound a ton for the sugar board administration.

Queensland used to "blackbird" labor from the neighboring islands, but as the nation grew and the white Australia policy was adopted the use of black and brown labor was discontinued and now it supports a population of 120,000. The wages paid are about twice those paid in the Hawaiian sugar fields. The result is a democracy which is developing along the lines outlined here. Without the government protection it would be lost. The labor groups of the southern states are protesting now against this situation and the sugar people are forced to defend their position.

Fear "Rising Tide of Color."

One of the arguments used is this: "From the dawn of the federation the sugar industry was inextricably and permanently bound up with the White Australian policy and became essentially a national industry. The genetic inspiration of this development was fear of invasion by the teeming hordes of Asia, the knowledge that only by effective occupation can any country hope to maintain its territories intact, and the further knowledge that the sugar industry offered the only practicable means of garrisoning Australia's empty north. If in 1901 there was reason to fear the rising tide of color there is infinitely graver reason today. Ever since 1901 that tide has been mounting steadily.

"The populations of China, Japan, Java, India have increased by scores of millions in the meanwhile, and the potential menace of the overcrowded east has attained prodigious proportions. Nothing is more certain than that any blow struck at the sugar industry must strike with equally destructive force at the White Australia policy and at the heart of the problem of national defense."

RECOVER BODY OF DROWNED WOMAN.

The body of Mrs. Amelia Mankevich, 35 years old, wife of Peter Mankevich, 4012 South Keeler avenue, was found floating in Lake Michigan at Waverly coach in the Dunes State park early yesterday. Life guards who found the body believed she suffered a heart attack while swimming.

POLICE OPEN DRIVE ON VETS PEDDLING WITHOUT LICENSES

World war veterans who maintain fruit stands on public thoroughfares or hawk their wares through streets or parks without peddler's licenses were being halted last evening by police on orders of Commissioner Allman.

The order was based on an Illinois Supreme court decision several days ago in which the justices split 4 to 3. The opinion held the state law which grants ex-service men the right to peddle without licenses, or makes it mandatory for city or village clerks to provide them with licenses free of charge, constitutes class legislation and therefore is invalid because it conflicts with the federal constitution.

The Supreme court decision grew out of a petition for an injunction against the Lincoln, South, and West parks commissioners, and the city, which was sought last summer by a group of 150 veterans before Superior Judge Ross C. Hall. The demurrer of the city was sustained by the judge and the case then was appealed.

Three groups of more than 200 veterans yesterday appeared in the court of Circuit Judge William J. Lindsay seeking similar injunctions. Pleas of these groups were denied by the judge who ruled that the high court decision decided against them. The third group, represented by Attorney William S. Stahl, was granted leave to amend their petition within five days.

ATTORNEY'S FEES IN MRS. BARNEY TRIAL $25,000

LONDON, July 7.—It was learned today that the cost of the defense of Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, society woman who was acquitted yesterday of the murder of her lover William Thomas Scott Stephen, amounted to about $25,000. Sir Patrick Hastings, leading counsel for the defense, was paid $7,500 plus $1,000 daily for three days, while two junior counsel, according to custom, receive two-thirds of the leader's fee.

In addition to attorneys' fees the costs which depend on the work done and the amounts paid to expert witnesses were undisclosed. Mrs. Barney, who was in a state of collapse when she left the court last night, today was smiling and looking her best as she drove her own car from her parents' house on her way to a holiday in Scotland. She is a daughter of Sir John and Lady Mullens.

The cost of the prosecution to the state was about $5,000.

CYCLE RIDER SHOT BY POLICE DIES OF WOUND

Lawrence Coleman, 26 years old, 4126 Homerlee avenue, East Chicago Heights, who was shot when he refused to halt his motorcycle at police command, died yesterday in the St. James hospital, Chicago Heights. Coleman was riding through Lansing with Raymond Williams, 25 years old, 847 Wilcox street, Hammond, when Policeman Charles Zitek ordered them to halt. He opened fire when they did not obey the command. Williams was shot in the lower part of the back and is in a serious condition at the hospital. Police said the motorcycle had been stolen last Tuesday from Roy Roser, a former county highway policeman.

Theater Is Bombed While 1,500 Patrons Attend Show

While 1,500 patrons were attending a performance at the Englewood theater, 726 West 63d street, a dynamite bomb was exploded late last night at the northeast corner of the building. The damage to the theater was slight, but windows were broken in the Englewood Business college, 741 Englewood avenue, across an alley. James Beatty, manager, said there had been no trouble with workers and that he knew of no reason for the bombing. The patrons were not disturbed by the blast.

Two Little Girls Burned by Matches and Both Die

Play with matches was responsible for the deaths yesterday of two small girls who set their clothing afire while handling the flames. Dorothy Brady, 4 years old, died in the county hospital. She got the matches while her parents were absent Wednesday night from their home at 3146 Fox street, and set fire to her clothing. Carol Louise Munson, 6 years old, died in an Aurora hospital of burns received in a similar way. She set fire to a gauzy dance frock in which she had been practicing in her home at La Fox, Ill.

TWO OF CHILEAN JUNTA RESIGN; DAVILA DICTATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 7.—Carlos Davila, former ambassador to the United States, was left as the single director of the Chilean government tonight when two other members of the government junta, Eliseo Pena Villalon and Nolasco Cardenas, resigned.

The government has undergone numerous and frequent changes since President Juan Esteban Montero was overthrown on June 4, but Davila has figured in all of them, and tonight's occurrence is linked with the return yesterday of former Dictator Gen. Carlos Ibanez and his conference today with Davila. Rumors were current that Ibanez would become minister of defense.

Reds Revolt at Concepcion.

Dispatches carried little about the uprising, but it was reported unemployed men at Concepcion and soldiers and sailors at the Talcahuano naval base were rioting early this morning.

The return of Ibanez, idol of the Chilean army, after a year as a refugee in Argentina, has provoked a wave of speculative excitement, though both the former dictator and the head of the army have issued statements disclaiming that Ibanez has any designs on the presidency.

In his statement Gen. Ibanez said, "I have arrived to lead a home life in my native land, I do not wish power and am not ambitious to regain the presidency. My only thought at this moment is cooperation with the socialist government. I hope that all Chileans will be calm in this terrible moment in the country's history. I am sure that different factions will not be swayed from a peaceful line of conduct."

Army Denies Taking Part.

Gen. Augusto Moreno, commander-in-chief of the army, issued a statement in the name of all armed forces saying, "The army has not participated in Gen. Ibanez's return. The army gives this statement to prevent misinterpretations as to the real motive of Gen Ibanez's presence in Santiago."

It is persistently reported that Gen. Ibanez returned in response to an invitation, but the source of that invitation is undisclosed. This much is certain, however, there is jubilation among the military and his presence will heal any differences previously existing in army ranks.

Most significant effect of Ibanez's return was a market boom. The news caught the tail end of yesterday's stock exchange session and the board at once went on the biggest bull rise in many months. Great satisfaction is expressed in commercial quarters, because of his previous policies for maintenance of law and order and Chilean credit abroad. This optimism was apparent too among foreign merchants.

HUNT 'NEW BOSS' FOR INQUIRY IN DOUBLE MURDER

Police yesterday were seeking Anthony Magliano, alias "Tony the Barber," for questioning concerning the double murder Wednesday night in the Del Rio café in Evergreen Park. The proprietor, James [Red] McGee, once a candidate for alderman, and Bernie Larkin were shot to death by two gunmen as they sat at the restaurant counter.

Sam Frazier, colored cook, and George Vanderplow, a waiter, told police that Magliano had been introduced to them as the "new boss" by McGee and was in the roadhouse at the time of the shooting. Lieut. Edward Weber of the county highway police expressed the belief that Magliano had put Weber on the spot for some real or fancied double cross.

The theory that labor trouble might have caused the murders was abandoned yesterday by police. A card indicating that McGee was financial secretary of the Cemetery Workers union was found in the roadhouse. Police learned that the union had been disrupted more than a year ago when one of the officials fled with money collected as dues. The inquest was closed yesterday with the routine verdict of murder by person or persons unknown.

Slams Door on Her Foot; Wife Sues Accountant

Mrs. Gertrude Green, 707 Linden avenue, Wilmette, filed a bill for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Reginald Henry Green, a partner in Alfred Young & Co., accountants. She charged cruelty. On Jan. 5, the bill asserts, Green struck her and then slammed a door on her foot, breaking two toes.

NORTHWEST PARK DISTRICT BARS GIRLS IN SHORTS

The girls who want to wear "shorts"—those "pants" that terminate several inches above the knee—will not be permitted to wear that garb in playing tennis on the courts of the northwest park district.

Eugene Utz, in charge of athletics at the park district, made this plain yesterday. He said he had turned away two girls who sought to play in Kilbourn park, attired in the forbidden shorts.

"You'll have to wear skirts," he told them. "These new tangled pants may be all right at a private club, but you have to wear skirts here."

Utz said that he has daughters of his own and would not think of permitting them to appear outdoors in such attire. Members of the park district board were present when Utz delivered his decision.

Former Bank Officer Is Witness in Trial.

Attorney Ferd A. Kerbs, 5437 South Lanin street, formerly trust officer of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, testified yesterday in the trial of the Bain bank case that he permitted John Bain to take two pieces of property from a trust without payment of $250,000 as provided in the trust agreement. South Park Commissioner John Bain, his two sons, and his son-in-law are charged with conspiracy to defraud depositors and are being tried before Judge John M. O'Connor without a jury.

FERD A. KERBS.

Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber had informed the court he would show irregular transactions in regard to trust No. 687. Kerbs yesterday identified the trust agreement in which Bain conveyed two vacant pieces of land to the trust on one of which he was to pay $175,000 before it could be released. The other called for a payment of $75,000. One property was located at 79th street and Cottage Grove and the other at 63d street and Western avenue.

Tells of Signing Deeds.

Kerbs testified that on Dec. 20, 1930, Bain went to him in his office and said he intended to convey some of the property out of the trust. Kerbs said he was directed to prepare the deeds and sign them whenever notified to do so and on Dec. 26 Carl O. Seeberg, since deceased, took the deeds to him and he affixed his signature, which gave Bain clear title to the property.

"Did he pay the money he was obligated to pay?" Raber asked, and the witness replied "No."

Bain put $90,900 of bonds in the trust later, Kerbs said. The witness said he had not understood the terms of the agreement at the time he deeded the property to Bain. He asserted that he had not investigated them because he was too busy.

Architect Is Witness.

Karl H. Newhouse, 5000 Woodlawn avenue, an architect, testified that his mother had $51,000 in a trust at the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, which was one of the Bain chain. W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law of Bain, told him stocks in Bain banks could be bought "at our own price," as many persons were desperate for cash and Fisher advised him to join a syndicate that was to buy up these stocks, according to Newhouse. He subscribed for $10,000 worth, he said, but did not pay the money.

Later he learned that an $8,000 participation certificate in this syndicate had been put in his mother's trust account, presumably through substitution and without authority from him, he said. Under the terms of the trust he had to be consulted on all investments from this trust. Defense Attorney Francis X. Busch brought out that Newhouse had deposited two checks with the bank about the same time with the inference that it was this money that paid for the $8,000 participation certificate.

Doctor Tells of Deals.

Another witness yesterday was Dr. Walter H. Buhlig, personal physician for Bain and partner of Bain in many ventures, who was indicted with the Bains but obtained a severance. Dr. Buhlig and Bain purchased properties which they later sold to Bain's banks at a profit, the doctor testified, but he said he did not know he was guilty of any criminality in the transactions. Attorney Busch said a similar plea would be offered in behalf of the Bains —that there was no criminal intent back of any of their deeds.

PROBATE COPY OF DESTROYED RYERSON WILL

Judge Theodore Forby, in the Lake county Probate court at Waukegan, yesterday admitted to probate a copy of the will which Donald M. Ryerson, chairman of the board of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, steel merchants, destroyed shortly before he ended his life on May 8 on his Lake Forest estate.

"I am convinced Mr. Ryerson attempted to destroy his will in a frame of mind not sufficiently clear for him to do so," said Judge Forby in admitting the copy. A brief in support of the motion to have the copy stand in place of the true will was filed by Butler, Pope, Ballard & Elting, attorneys for the estate.

The principal difference in the disposition of Mr. Ryerson's estate made by admission of the will is that his widow, Mrs. Isabelle McGenniss Ryerson, will receive a half of the estate under the will, in place of the third interest which she would have got had he died intestate, and that the share of the children, Isabelle Joan and Anthony Mitchell Ryerson, will be handled for them by trustees instead of being turned over to them in full when they reach their majority.

The will provides that bequests totaling $30,000 to Chicago charities shall not be paid unless the value of the estate exceeds $500,000. Judge Forby stated that he will appoint one of the three appraisers who will evaluate the estate.

CAUSES TURMOIL IN COURT

NURSE DEMANDS RIGHT TO DEFEND HONOR IN COURT

Says Character Ruined by Hutton Trial.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Myrtle St. Pierre, who asks $200,000 from David Hutton, choir singer, for breaking an alleged proposal of marriage, threw the court into turmoil in a final appearance on the witness stand today as she argued with Superior Judge Lester Roth for the right to "defend my honor."

The Pasadena nurse, recalled in rebuttal of defense testimony about her past life and other alleged lovers, became so excited Judge Roth dismissed the jury while he reprimanded her.

Hutton, back from an overnight trip to Lake Arrowhead, where his wife, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, is recovering from an illness, watched with apparent interest.

The outbreak was engendered when the attractive brunette was asked if she had ever seen Mrs. Catherine Elsoff before. The witness' face flushed and she cried:

"I've never seen that vicious woman before in my life."

Warned by Judge.

At this remark, prompted by Mrs. Elsoff's testimony that Miss St. Pierre had entered a hospital in 1926 for a delicate operation, Judge Roth halted the trial and excused the jurors.

"I am convinced, Miss St. Pierre, that you made that last answer deliberately in an attempt to prejudice the jury against Mrs. Elsoff. I have warned you before that if there were any more unwarranted remarks from you I would have to caution you before the jury. The next time I shall take the chance of a reversible error to caution you before the jury."

The young woman's face, pale for the moment, clouded and she broke into tears. Turning to the judge, she cried out:

"Your honor, my character has been ruined in this courtroom. I am the only one who can defend myself. Please give me the right to do so. These vicious people have lied about me so terribly and I can't explain or say anything."

"You have had all the opportunity the law allows you," the court responded.

She denied she had called Hutton "simple, a big fat slob, sissy and prevaricator," or that she drank hard liquor, lost her riding breeches at a party and had affairs with a number of men.

Questioned about a fight with her sister, Mrs. Gladys Cassill, who had testified against her, she said:

Dodged Fish Bowl, She Says.

"I dodged the fish bowl she threw at me, but I got all wet. She slapped me, skinned my nose and gave me two black eyes. I grabbed her and bent her way over backwards and she tore my beautiful silk pajamas." The fight, Mrs. Cassill had testified, occurred over one of Miss St. Pierre's former husbands.

Irked at what he termed unreasonable delay, Judge Roth told attorneys testimony must end today and the case be sent to the jury tomorrow. Judge Roth said the trial was being prolonged without introduction of new information for the jury's consideration.

The judge also ruled closing arguments would be limited to two hours for each side.

SON, 45, JAILED AS SLAYER OF HIS MOTHER, 84

Houghton, Mich., July 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Victoria Smith, 84 year old resident of Atlantic Mine, was shot to death in her home tonight and police named her son, George, 45, as the slayer.

Sheriff Frank Francisco quoted Smith, who is in jail, as saying, "I don't know why I did it."

Relatives said he had returned recently from Milwaukee, where he had operated a gasoline station, and that he had been the principal support of his mother and a sister.

Mrs. Smith was shot twice with a small caliber rifle. Another son, Steve, 50, also was wounded, but is expected to recover.

CAMPAIGN OPENS TODAY TO REVISE CRIMINAL CODE

Judicial Council to Draft Legislative Program.

Further reformation of the criminal laws of Illinois will be discussed today when the members of the Judicial Advisory council of Illinois hold a conference at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The session, scheduled for 10 o'clock, will mark the opening of activity on the part of the council to obtain legislative action at the next regular session of the assembly in January.

The meeting was called by A. S. Cuthbertson of Bunker Hill, state senator and chairman of the council, and will be attended by both the downstate and Chicago groups who have participated in the work of the council in the past.

Through the past efforts of the council, various reforms have been achieved, including a revision of the jury system, making trial by judges in criminal cases permissible, and making the judges instead of juries judges of the law in cases.

Among the principal changes in the criminal code to be advocated by the council at the next legislative session, according to Judge Denis E. Sullivan, vice chairman of the Chicago council, will be a revision of the code adjusting penalties in criminal cases.

Reclassify Minor Crimes.

Under the present system, Judge Sullivan explained, many minor crimes are classified as felonies, requiring the tedious and expensive process of obtaining indictments. It is planned to classify these offenses as misdemeanors, without changing the length of the sentences to be served, so that the state's attorney may proceed by filing an information instead of taking the cases before grand juries. This will expedite trials and eliminate much of the expense attending such cases, Judge Sullivan said.

The council will also discuss today a proposal for the segregation of criminals in state penal institutions. Members of the council have advocated the establishment of a system whereby prisoners will be sent first to receiving prisons, where they will be classified according to the nature of their offense, their past record, and general demeanor. Then the prisoners will be taken to various prisons, the worst offenders being placed in entirely different institutions than the first and minor offenders.

Probationary Prisons.

Another proposal along the same line is to establish probationary prisons, where offenders will be confined after serving a portion of their sentences, and will be required to demonstrate their fitness to return to society before they are released.

In general, Judge Sullivan said, the council will take up the program where it was left off, going into a full discussion of what remains to be done and what other projects shall come under consideration.

INFANT'S HUNGER ON BUS TO WIN HIM A HOME

Mrs. R. D. Talbert of 2739 Russell boulevard, St Louis, appeared at the Town Hall police station last night and informed Sergt. Frank McCune that she would like to keep the baby a stranger had given her on a bus, but that she wanted to be sure that there was no legal obstacle.

"I was riding from St. Louis to Chicago," she said, "and at Decatur a man who looked like a farmer got on. He had a beautiful little blond boy with him about 8 months old. The child was crying and the man explained he was hungry, but that he had no money to buy food.

"So I purchased some milk and the child became quiet. When we reached Chicago the man asked me if I wanted the baby. I have been married seventeen years and haven't any children. I said I'd be glad to keep him and the man said he was mine."

The youngster had been taken by Mrs. Talbert to the home of Mrs. George Schaeffer, 648 Aldine avenue, who she is visiting. On the advice of Sergt. McCune, however, the baby was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage. If investigation discloses no legal claimants to possession Mrs. Talbert will be allowed to adopt him.

Paraguay Quits Parley on Chaco, Charging Attack

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 7.—(AP)—The government announced today it was quitting the negotiations at Washington over the disputed Chaco region on account of "an unjustified Bolivian attack upon Paraguayan troops." The communique said details of the reported attack were being awaited, other reports saying that Bolivian cavalry had expelled Paraguayan infantrymen from one of Paraguay's outposts in Chaco.

STOCK SALE TO AID WAUKEGAN BANK DESCRIBED

Castle on Stand at Trial of Miller.

Ward Castle, former executive vice president of the National Bank of the Republic in Chicago, testified yesterday at the trial in Waukegan of William H. Miller, formerly associated with him in that bank and also an official of the Waukegan State bank, that erroneous statements were made to newspapers that the Waukegan bank was affiliated with the Chicago bank.

WARD CASTLE.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county said that this publicity was part of a conspiracy to engender false confidence in the defunct Waukegan bank.

Confer on Bank's Condition.

Castle testified that in September, 1930, he was present at a conference called in the Chicago office of State Auditor Oscar Nelson where a report was read criticizing the financial standing of the Waukegan bank for slow loans and bad paper. It was suggested that a change was needed in the Waukegan bank so that the loans would be collected.

Arthur J. Hughes, a Chicago attorney, told of the change that was made. Norman O. Geyer was designated to replace Carl Stenger as president and Stenger was given 795 shares of stock to sell to Waukegan residents.

Stock Put Up for Sale.

These shares were owned by a syndicate of the Chicago bank, of which Miller was a member, and the stock was turned over to the Waukegan bank to be sold at $150 a share, the proceeds, $119,250, to be used by the bank under a trust agreement. Prosecutor Smith declared the Chicago financiers were giving up this stock as they knew the bank to be insolvent, and they intended to escape the double liability of stockholders.

A fictitious name, John R. Towner, was used in conveying the stock to the Waukegan bank and there was a clause in the agreement that the conveyors would not be liable for any stock assessment, Hughes testified. This stock was sold to Waukegan residents a week before the bank closed, according to Prosecutor Smith.

State's Attorney Smith said that he plans to call at least six state bank examiners and perhaps State Auditor Nelson as witnesses and expected to consume at least another week in his quest to show that the bank was insolvent long before it failed.

NEGRO ON TRIP WITH ENGLISH GIRL WANTED FOR THEFT OF AUTO

Boston, Mass., July 7.—[Special.]—Anselm Colebrooke, Negro, now with Hon. Nancy Cunard, daughter of Lady Cunard of the famous English shipping family, on a trip to Havana, is wanted by the Weymouth police for the larceny of an automobile, it was learned today.

Colebrooke's family of six colored children and a white wife lives in Weymouth. The family was on the verge of being returned to Medford where it has a settlement a few months ago when the town of Weymouth returned several families which had been on the welfare rolls. At that time it was said that Colebrooke was serving time in Sing Sing prison in New York state.

Thomas Holden and Francis L. Keating, two of the Evergreen Park mail robbers who escaped from Leavenworth penitentiary more than two years ago while they were serving 25 years terms for the crime, were captured by Kansas City police last night. They had apparently spent most of their freedom close to the prison walls.

The two and John Brown, also of Chicago, were arrested as they entered an expensive coupe occupied by the wives of the escaped convicts, Mrs. Marjorie Keating, 26 years old, and Mrs. Lillian Holden, 30 years old. The women were also taken into custody.

A woman's traveling bag in the car contained two automatic pistols, several clips of ammunition and $70 in gold pieces. Brown's wallet contained $1,216 in currency and a $500 Liberty bond.

Finland Signs Treaty with Soviet Russia

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 7.—Finland today became the first Baltic state to conclude a definite nonaggression pact with soviet Russia when President Svinhufvud signed the treaty with an appended arbitration treaty, which parliament had sanctioned in April. Finland's readiness to stabilize her political relations with Russia are partly owing to a desire to improve her economic intercourse with Russia through a commercial treaty. Finnish farmers recently began regular deliveries of butter, milk, and eggs to Leningrad, and the soviet has placed orders for steamers and machinery with Finnish companies.

The Old Kinzie House
Originally a log cabin, the Kinzie house was occupied by John Kinzie, "the Father of Chicago," and his family in 1804. He enlarged and improved the dwelling, located on the north side of the river. FATHER TO TAKE FIGHT FOR CHILD TO HIGHER COURT

John Alden Descendant Made Football of Law.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Alden S. Condict, a lineal descendant of John Alden, will carry his fight to win the custody of his 4 year old daughter to the United States Supreme court if he fails to gain that objective in the lower courts. This was announced by John Holley Clark Jr., counsel for Condict, who today won a legal point when Presiding Justice Edward R. Finch of the Appellate court signed an order directing the child's guardian to show cause on July 18 why Condict's appeal should not be submitted to the state Court of Appeals.

The child involved, Avis Hodenpyl Condict, has been the center of a long legal controversy. At present she is in the custody of her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Fenton B. Turck. Almost since birth the little girl has been buffeted about by Supreme court justices, who frequently have had to rule on her best interests and custodianship.

Committed to Institute.

The child's mother, the former Miss Katherine Paine Turck, a descendant of Roger Williams, was committed to the New York Psychiatric institute in February. In 1927 she had won a divorce and had obtained custody of her child. Condict has been in financial difficulties almost from the day of his marriage to Miss Turck, and when Mrs. Condict was declared mentally incompetent the daughter was assigned to the care of her grandparents. Condict then began his fight to regain the custody of Avis.

Disputes Parents' Competence.

Dr. Turck insisted that he was in better financial position to give the little girl a good education and comfortable home. Condict said he had an adequate income as manager of an office building. Supreme Court Justice Schmuck considered the case and turned the child over to Dr. Turck. Condict carried the case to the Appellate division, arguing that Dr. and Mrs. Turck, relatively aged persons, were about to take the child to Europe and that in the event either or both of them died Avis might be placed in a public institution. The Appellate division sustained Justice Schmuck's ruling and refused to sign an order restraining Dr. Turck from taking the child out of the country.

TRACY C. DRAKE MADE RECEIVER FOR BLACKSTONE

Tracy C. Drake was appointed as receiver for the Blackstone hotel yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson following the institution of equity receivership proceedings in the District court against the Drake Hotel company as operators of the hotel. Judge Wilkerson set the receiver's bond at $25,000 and reserved the right to appoint a co-receiver and auditor at a later date.

The petition was filed by the law firm of Glenn, Schwartz, Real & Browning in behalf of Faber, Coe & Gregg, a concern with a claim of $4,000 for cigars and other merchandise. Mr. Drake said the receivership was made necessary by the lack of cash to meet tightening credit demands and was brought for the better protection of all creditors. He expressed the hope that the hotel would be able to recuperate with the World's Fair business next year. The Drake hotel is not involved in these proceedings.

The current assets were listed in the petition as $467,000 and the current liabilities at $377,000. The fixed assets, including real estate, were estimated at $3,150,000, incumbered by $1,945,000 in chattel mortgages and other debts. An involuntary bankruptcy petition was also filed against the hotel company by the law firm of White & Hawxhurst in behalf of Cudney & Co., the E. R. West Coffee company, and the J. E. Bell Printing company, with claims of $6,000. The equity proceeding takes precedence over the involuntary action.

Move for New Trial of Graft Case Gets Setback

The street lighting graft conspiracy case cannot be tried a second time until the fall term of court, Judge John Prystalski ruled yesterday when the case was called for the purpose of setting a trial date. A jury failed to agree in the first trial, in which Harry A. Johnson, president of the Electrical Contracting company, and four former city employés were charged with defrauding the city of $200,000. Judge Prystalski gave the prosecution until next Tuesday to decide whether it would prosecute or dismiss the charges.

ANNUAL POLICE OUTING.

The annual outing of the Chicago police bugle and drum corps of Post 307 of the American Legion will be held tomorrow near Maple lake at 55th street and Archer avenue. A drill and a game of playground baseball will feature the picnic, Chairman Anton Schlecta said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make a real bile flow and boy and are full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not moving freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste, and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1932 C. M. Co.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GARNER VERSUS GARNER.

At this writing it is not at all clear whether Mr. Garner as speaker of the house of representatives will escape from Mr. Garner as candidate for Vice President or whether the candidate will catch the speaker. Any one can do Postoffice Jack a favor by recognizing that these are two different persons, who are not even on speaking terms with each other. They are working opposite sides of the street.

Mr. Garner the candidate is for immediate beer. Mr. Garner the speaker is against it, and the twain do not intend to meet if they can help it. Privately it is understood that Speaker Garner would like to bust Candidate Garner one on the nose for an incessant nuisance and impertinent marplot who will have his beer today. If Postoffice Jack's shaving mirror is found shattered it will be known that the speaker has busted the candidate one.

What a Dromio, two in one, and in a turmoil! Thus Mr. Garner haunts himself, and the marvel is how he knows at any time who he is. Which is the ghost which rises to confront the too substantial flesh and blood? Is it the speaker or the candidate? Which of these Garners is real and which is unreal?

Is the candidate true to Garner and the speaker false, or is it the speaker who confounds the craven compromising of the candidate, who denounces the betrayal of a noble cause by his alter ego, a pusillanimous Garner, who, dealing with the lean and hungry McAdoo, did sell the reputation of his sires themselves to gain a preferment stained as it was with beer?

No one can tell. In this malty mystery, this brew of politics and hops, one Garner has done the other dirt. One is a ghastly traitor to the other, but which one pursues yelling "Immediate!" with the voices of a thousand delegates and which flees calling upon friendly spirits to exorcise the demon in pursuit we do not know.

Nor can the country take it as a sporting event and hope the best man wins. Perchance Mr. Garner isn't in any manifestation a best man. Probably all he could get out of wrestling with himself would be a dog fall. If the astonished representatives should see their speaker suddenly take to beating himself over the head with the gavel they must understand that it is only the house of Garner trying to come to order. No alarm need be felt. Nothing serious will come of it. Above the neck either Garner could use his head this way without injury. In fact, thus he might get the best results out of it.

EXPERIENCE OF A PRODUCE MERCHANT.

Ted Newberry, said to be a friend and co-laborer of Al Capone, was arrested last Saturday by the police, who suspect him of knowledge, at least, respecting the violent end of the gangster Red Barker. As Mr. Newberry was set at large after a detention of 24 hours, the incident so far as the public is concerned may be said to be closed, at any rate for the time being. But it was attended by circumstances upon which Chief of Detectives Schoemaker makes ironic comment and the public may bestow some consideration.

Chief Schoemaker reports that he was at the convention and the Congress hotel when and while Mr. Newberry was languishing at the detective bureau, and at both places—the convention and the hotel—the head of our detective force says that he was assured by "dozens of politicians that Ted is a good fellow." Returning to his office at 12:30 a. m. he was called and informed that an application for a writ of habeas corpus had been filed before Judge Stanton and at 2:30 a. m. Judge James J. Kelly called him to say that he, the judge, had been bothered all night by lawyers who wanted him to summon his clerk and bailiff and hold court in his bedroom in order that Newberry might be released. Chief Schoemaker informed Judge Kelly that he had already promised to release Newberry the following day at 4 p. m. after a show-up if no evidence developed against him, whereupon Judge Kelly said he would do nothing more in the matter and we trust was thereafter left to his repose. The following morning six lawyers called on the chief of detectives on behalf of Newberry and at 4 o'clock, no one having identified Newberry in connection with the killing of Barker, he was released.

What will impress the simple citizen in the history of this matter, as it impressed even our experienced chief of detectives, was the number and zeal of Mr. Newberry's well wishers, especially those to whom our political welfare is consigned by our citizenry. Mr. Newberry, he himself explains, is now engaged in the produce business and this no doubt is why so many were disturbed by his detention and so anxious to obtain his instant release from the toils of an unfeeling police. It is true that Mr. Newberry was indicted for murder in 1924, but he was saved to the produce business next year when the case was stricken from the docket. It is of record also that he was arrested in that year as a suspect, of what we are not at the moment informed, and discharged in court, and that he was arrested in New York under the name of Edward Morrison in 1930, of which unfortunate incident we do not know the result. At all events, Mr. Newberry now, according to his own assertion, is in the produce business and enjoying not only the innocent profits of that vocation but the unsleeping devotion of many individuals who are ready at all times of the day or night to interrupt their activities in the processes of government to defend him from the errors of authority.

WHY CLOSE THE COURTS IN SUMMER?

At this season of the year most of the courts of Cook county are closed down. This suspension is a carryover from the days when there was little litigation and nearly all the litigants and jurors were farmers. Summer is no time for a farmer to be away from his fields. As the courts could easily keep up with the business before them, the obvious time to suspend court activities was in the growing season.

But all that has changed. The civil courts of Cook county are close to two years behind in their work. A suit filed today may be heard toward the end of 1933, but it is more likely to come to hearing in 1934. The consequence is that a man with a just complaint will often consent to an essentially unjust settlement rather than wait two years to get justice through the courts.

Delay in hearing civil suits is inexcusable. Much could be accomplished by way of remedying the present situation if the judges would work during the summer months instead of taking the long vacations to which custom but not common sense entitles them. A month's vacation is enough. The work of a judge is often exacting, but so is the work of a doctor, a merchant, and a railroad engineer. The judges of Cook county who are in good health should remain in Chicago this summer and in succeeding summers and make such progress as can be made in clearing up the mass of litigation which lies ahead of them.

MA AND AIMEE.

Things have not been so good for a long time with the once prosperous newspaper correspondents at Pink Mink Marsh, Winsted, Conn., and Rhinelander, Wis. Truth crushed to earth will still be stranger than fiction these days. Congress has even busted flagpole sitting and marathon pie eating by too much competition. If everything else fails to provide variety all that's necessary is to inquire what the Huttons and the Hudsons are doing the day.

Ma McPherson and her what-a-man and Aimee and her Dave are always proof of California's boast that there is not an artificial flower in the state. Ma has demonstrated an amazing vitality in keeping two jumps ahead of her blooming daughter, which, considering the fashion in which Aimee perennially blooms, is more of a compliment to the climate than the University of California crew or the University of Southern California football team. When Aimee returned from the desert to select What-a-Man Hutton for companionship in evangelism, Ma offered the same sacred relationship to What-a-Man Hudson, both gentlemen being members of the same letter group in the telephone directory.

Holy love runs the same bumpy course as romantic love even when the soulmates are baritones. Ma, it appears, is now convinced that Mr. Hudson is not meeting life's crisis with his full will power and strength if he merely pushes the lawn mower once a week over such a lawn as Los Angeles must endure until the federal government gets water from Boulder dam to the southern California house lots and new subdivisons. Ma's what-a-man may find that although the spiritual attraction remains he must be his own meal ticket. The McPherson romances have a Scotch inheritance and California's state song is played on the cash register.

Aimee's what-a-man is offering his lady evidence, if she cares to accept it from a lady who would like to ring up something substantial for herself, that he was not unsought after or unseeking before the spirit voices called them together. David may have been drawing, unwittingly, near the carnal world when Aimee intervened. However, it is a consolation to her to know that he is appraised at good price when Ma does not think that Hudson is worth car fare and lunch money. Aimee apparently can pick them better than Ma, a point which also must be settled by Hiram Johnson, Mr. Wilbur and Mr. McAdoo. The spirit voices are always calling in California. One of them gave Postoffice Jack to the Democratic party.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur Herald.]

Quickly following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, the great rush of popular sympathy and resentment brought the inevitable proposal in congress for a federal law directed against such crimes providing more drastic penalties.

Last Friday the house bill introduced at the time came up for discussion. The subject immediately was popular, and dozens of congressmen were eager to put in a word, if only to declare their personal eagerness to stretch the necks of the fiends who had committed the crime in everybody's mind. Through about 25 pages of the Congressional Record the argument ran in a confusion of amendment and suggestion. Suddenly one clear voice was heard. The record tells the story:

"MR. BLACK—Mr. Chairman, to my mind this whole legislation is a piece of hysterical legislation. It arises out of one crime that is destined to become a classic in this country. The more we read about the crime the more it seems to be one of murder and not of kidnaping. Federal officers have been working on this crime. Federal officers have not solved the situation, and yet we add another crime to those on the federal statute books. We give another power to the federal government. We again contravene state rights in order to put an end to kidnaping and the bill will not do that, because the use of federal officers in the one so-called kidnaping case has not solved that crime.

"I say, leave this to the local enforcement officers, the efficient police forces in the cities. They can run down criminals. They have run down kidnapers. The federal government is not a bit more efficient than the local officials, and by no means in America at this time should we add another federal crime with a death penalty attached to it."

Nobody in the house undertook to answer Congressman Black. History, particularly recent history, was too overwhelming in its testimony on his side. The old belief about some magic in federal power and the unerring cunning of federal secret service has been thoroughly exploded. The universal sadness over the atrocity in New Jersey and the universal wish that the criminals could be brought to justice do not disguise the fact that existing state laws on kidnaping and murder are as likely to be effective as any new federal law that can be enacted.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

THE FORGOTTEN MAN!

Jack Garner's face stares out at us
In each paper that we see;
His interviews take five columns,
His speeches two or three.

We're told he wants new postoffices
At every crossroads store,
That must cost at least a million,
And most of them lots more.

He wants the government to give Us money of every sort;
From the Reconstruction Corp.

He has a new scheme every day,
And often every hour,
To pour down coin upon us all
In an endless golden shower.

It's Garner this and Garner that,
Until we're a little vexed,
A-wondering what Cactus Jack
Is going to be up to next.

Sometimes he does back somersaults,
A trick he does with ease;
Or else he hangs down by his toes
Upon the high trapeze.

But if he talks or just does tricks,
Mr. Garner is a wow!
He has us all exclaiming,
"Oh, what is he doing now?"

Yes, it's Garner! Garner! Garner!
Whate'er our eyes may scan;
Gosh! he's the Forgotten Man!

GEORGE M. COHAN has been nominated for "Good Will President of the United States" by a club out in Hollywood. George had better be careful and explain that this is a joke or he's liable to wake up some morning early in November and find out he's been elected real President of the U. S. A. Our sovereign voters have no sense of humor.

AN ASTROLOGIST in California has consulted the stars and predicts light wines and beer by 1935. The stars have double crossed him. If he had gone across the street to a speakeasy he would have discovered that we have light wines and beer right now. Also Scotch, hootch, whisky, brandy, white mule, synthetic gin, and a few other things. Why go to the stars for information?

IT WAS A REAL SHOW.

Sir: On account of us bein' half democrats by marriage, me an' Nort was to the democratic bout an', say, you just ain't been no place if you ain't never been to no democratic convention. They put on a real show. Things wasn't as cut an' dried as at the republican and nobody knowed whatell was gonna happen next. Even Sen. Dill got all messed up an' tried to make two speeches at once on two different guys at the same time. Of course the Roosevelt birds had most of the machinery, but they was like the farmer that had a tractor an' a twenty acre farm an' had to trade for a lot more land to use it. The taxpayers an' voters in the galleries—an' they wasn't all from Chicago either—could've settled it in 5 minutes only Al Smith an' Gov. Ritchie might've had to toss a coin to see who got first place. I ain't never seen so many people wantin' to be on the winnin' side. The long minnow from Louisiana 'bout got his scales all wore off tryin' to get his picture took with everybody. When Nort seen him he says: "He don't look like no kingfish to me. He must be a garfish 'cause they're awful hard to ketch an' when you do ketch 'em, they ain't worth nothin'." Garner didn't go over so hot in the galleries an' I guess it was on account of them never having heard of him before. We really was sorta disappointed on account of 'em not havin' no time to talk on nothin' but the 18th commandment an' sorta hoped they would say somethin' 'bout gov'ment 'conomy, but I guess most of 'em wanted beer. Well, that's somethin', anyhow. We was to both conventions an' now we don't know how to vote this fall, but we sorta wish it was possible to vote half for Ritchie an' half for Coolidge an' we ain't no straddlers neither.

THAT OTTAWA FELLA.

THE G. O. P. announces proudly that its campaign will open July 11 by a speech by Ogden Mills. Which is just going to spoil July 11 so far as we're concerned.

AND WHO SAID that three cent postage would cut down the amount of mail sent and received? They've been making 'em stick three cent stamps on their letters for two days now and we can't see that it's cut down the number of letters containing our monthly bills a particle.

IF.

If it could always be this way,
You and I and a windy bay;
The world a mile and a half below
The penthouse roof; an acre or so
Of stars above us, not too much static
From the radio in our neighbor's attic.
If you had the speed of a taxicab
When you talked of love I would probably grab
An elevator and seek the street,
And hope that our paths would never meet.
If you pledged faith with each aching breath
I'm very sure I'd be bored to death!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

THE EVERYDAY SUBCONSCIOUS.

THERE is nothing incomprehensible about the subconscious mind, in spite of the thousands of pages that have been written about it. And yet I am sure we think of it as a mysterious subject. In so far as it is, the mystery is limited to the clothing with which we drape a very simple, matter-of-fact, everyday figure. The hundreds of books written for the purpose of explaining the matter have first created a Frankenstein, then mixed his head, legs, and arms like an unsolved jigsaw puzzle.

More than ninety-nine per cent of our acts are the result of subconscious thought. This proportion holds even after we exclude automatic actions, sometimes called vegetative, that are so necessary for the continuance of life—such as heart beat, breathing, adjustment of the pupils to light, the change in the distribution of blood throughout the body, and the movement of the stomach and other digestive organs.

Ninety-nine per cent of our muscle action in walking is directed by the subconscious mind. Very little of what we hear reaches up to the plane of the conscious. In a sense we hear it and, to a degree, we govern ourselves by it, but we are not conscious of what we hear nor of our responses.

The same statement holds true of the images that are focused in our eyes and the sensations made on the nerves of the skin. We can go to a still higher nerve level without reaching that of consciousness. These various acts that we are accustomed to performing on the subconscious level we do best when we let them take care of themselves.

A man can "walk a crack" with no difficulty so long as he does it subconsciously, but once let him put his mind on it he does a poor job. The structural worker who walks a beam four hundred feet in the air is safe so long as he gives no thought to it. Thoughtless walking may be graceful. Considered walking never is.

No small part of our talking is done on the subconscious plane. In some parts of our thinking, or what we call thinking, the mind is running in grooves which lie below the level that we call conscious. Some of our thinking is done best on that level.

When an employé is talking to the boss, and an inferiority complex makes him cautious or overanxious, he is certain to present his subject poorly.

Besides these considerations, however, there is a fairly small part of the subconscious thinking which is not so easily understood. It is about this small part that the mystery stuff has grown. It relates to such thinking as is influenced by the ductless glands and by memories. Some of our mental reactions, which we think of as proving that we are free agents, are the result of physiologic influences such as the ductless gland secretions. Memory may be compared to a process of filing or pigeonholing. We do not always card index and double reference the subjects that we file. Sometimes we know the path is there, but we do not know how to get in it. These pigeonholes sometimes leak. The leakings may wet the contents of others.

But this kind of subconscious thinking is rather rare as compared with the other kind. And it is not so mysterious nor so difficult to understand as some would have us think.

Let your physician decide whether you have epilepsy, hysteria, or something else. If you have epilepsy some one should teach you how to live with the disease. Regulation of eating and exercise is an important part of the program. Certain dietetic treatments are being tried.

NOT SERIOUS TROUBLE.

Mrs. Z. N. writes: About a month ago a small lump formed inside the left lower eyelid of my nine year old daughter. I thought it a sty, but it kept getting larger. There is no inflammation, but I notice she blinks every few seconds. A friend of mine thought it the beginning of St. Vitus' dance.

REPLY.

Chalazion located near the border of the lid is not infrequent. It does little harm. It irritates slightly and this may cause blinking. If chalazion is her only trouble you have not much to worry about.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 8, 1916.

LONDON.—British troops drove their war forward at practically every point on the front to the north of the Somme and tonight the result of the all day battle shows they have made the greatest gains since the opening of the "big offensive." The attacks were made in the face of the added handicap of the elements. The torrential rains of the last two days continued, and the regiments of English, Scots, and Irish were forced to plow their way through deep mire and over flooded trenches. One of the most important gains was the storming of the Leipzig redoubt to the south of the village of Thiepval. This position has constituted one of the main defenses of the Germans in the Somme region for the last twenty months. Farther south the British charged over 500 yards of German trenches, line after line, and captured the greater part of the village of Ovillers.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Lutsk says: "The battles here continue without intermission, heaping up thousands of German dead daily, but having no effect on our lines. One sees extremely few prisoners and the Germans fight until the last. Austrian prisoners are unanimous in statements that Austria is finished and that the entire nation is united in demanding peace at the earliest possible moment."

WASHINGTON.—THE TRIBUNE is privileged to present the text of the agreement entered into by Great Britain and its allies to wage an economic warfare on Germany and its allies during the remainder of the war and after the conclusion of peace. This remarkable compact makes it clear that the allies do not regard the termination of the war, whenever it comes, an end of hostilities between the two great alliances of European powers. After the war the Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians, and Turks will continue to be "enemy subjects" in the view of the allies, and the trade boycott will be the weapon unsheathed by the allies to vanquish their adversaries.

WASHINGTON.—The conciliatory reply of the United States government to Carranza's note had not had time to reach the Mexican embassy today before the first move in a campaign of coöperation against bandits threatening the American border was suggested by the de facto government of Mexico. Carranza, through Ambassador Designate Arredondo, notified the state department that a de facto government force had been destroyed by a large band of Villa followers at Corralitos, Chihuahua, on July 5. Carranza expressed the fear that this band had proceeded northward through the desert and might concentrate near the border for a raid into United States territory.

WASHINGTON.—Edward B. McLean brought suit in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia to break the will of his father, the late John R. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer. Young McLean charges that at the time his father prepared the will he was of unsound mind. Elihu Root has been retained by McLean. Under his father's will Edward B. McLean was given only a life interest in the estate, which has been estimated as high as $20,000,000.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Why is it believed that there is no fundamental difference between the chemical changes occurring in living organisms and those susceptible of investigation in chemical laboratories?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

What are acids, bases and salts, and how are they interrelated?

ANSWER.

Acids are recognizable by their sour taste; bases, examples of which are lye, lime water, and ammonia, are substances which neutralize acids when mixed with them. The process of neutralization results in the formation of a salt and water. Solutions of acids, bases, and salts are conductors of electricity, and passage of electrical current through them causes one kind of matter to travel to the positive pole of the circuit, while another kind of matter travels to the negative pole. This, with other evidence, suggests that acids, bases, and salts break up into negatively and positively charged particles, called ions. All acids have hydrogen as their positive ion; bases have as their negative constituent the hydroxide ion, containing both oxygen and hydrogen. Neutralization consists of the union of hydrogen and hydroxide ions to form water; the salt simultaneously formed consists of positive and negative ions other than hydrogen and hydroxide ions.

Chicago, July 1.—[Friend of the People.]—I have some property on Hoyne avenue and next door on the north is an old two flat building which is in terrible condition. THE COMMERCE COMMISSION DEFENDED.

Chicago, July 1.—You published recently a letter signed by A. R. Hatton and others in which the Illinois commerce commission was severely criticized for its refusal to receive the petition of Utility Consumers and Investors' league for the reopening of the cases in which the Commonwealth Edison company and two other utility operating companies were authorized to issue securities. Inasmuch as the Illinois commerce commission, because of its quasi-judicial status, cannot with dignity reply to every vituperative attack upon its integrity and good judgment, the undersigned, who are practitioners before the commission representing various interests other than the utilities companies formerly controlled by Mr. Insull, have voluntarily investigated the facts.

The implication sought to be left by the letter is that the applications for the issuance of securities were railroaded through the commission without proper consideration. The fact is that the applications had been informally presented to the commission at least six weeks prior to their being filed and had received most careful study. Various changes suggested by the commission to protect the public generally were made and as a result nothing remained to be done except to make a formal record and enter appropriate orders.

The suggestion that adequate notice of the hearing was not given is wholly without merit. The legislature in drafting the law made no provision for notice to any party. The commission is intrusted with the duty of protecting the interests of the public in much the same manner that the secretary of state under the blue sky laws is intrusted with similar duties in the case of nonutilities. The promptness with which the orders were entered in these cases after the commission had completed its investigation merely emphasizes the efficiency of that organization.

The criticism of the manner in which the hearing on the motion of the Utility Consumers and Investors' league for leave to file a petition for reopening was conducted is wholly without foundation. It is the right and duty of the commission to ascertain the interest of parties seeking to participate in proceedings before it. Utility Consumers and Investors league is a corporation and its name, therefore, in no way indicates that its members are patrons of or investors in utilities. The commission, therefore, properly called the president of the organization to the witness stand to develop its interest and that of its members in the proceedings. From him it learned that the league had only about thirty members. The president refused name a single investor in the securities of the utilities involved.

There is another reason why the commission's interrogation of the president of the league was proper. That organization had prior to the presentation of its petition given at least two statements to the press in which it had severely criticized the commission, apparently seeking to create sentiment in its favor. The legal profession frowns on this method of procedure. It is inexcusable inasmuch as the courts are provided to review unwarranted action on the part of the commerce commission. This effort on the part of the league to try its case in the newspapers, together with the well known radical views of its president concerning matters of government, led the commission to inquire into the motives which prompted the presentation of the petition. To this end the commission questioned the president concerning his affiliations with various organizations with radical or communistic tendencies, but on advice of counsel he refused to answer the questions put to him.

It is the opinion of the undersigned that the commission might have dealt severely with certain of the attorneys for the league. The commission had previously found occasion to reprimand two of these attorneys for their conduct in connection with newspaper articles concerning pending litigation, as the result of which they made a public apology to the commission. The evidence showed that one of these attorneys had helped prepare the first statement given to the press in the proceedings in which his client sought to intervene. At the hearings referred to in the letter all of the league's attorneys except Mr. Swidler failed at times to show to the commission the respect to which it is entitled.

We examined the record in the case involved and have reached the conclusion that the commission was wholly justified in rejecting the petitions. There was no duplication in payment by the utilities in purchasing the stock of subsidiary companies, as intimated by the writers of the letter. The commission acted in the interest of the investors as well as in the interest of the patrons of the utilities in spreading the cost of changing equipment to take care of the new gas over a period of ten years instead of depleting the earnings of the companies by charging off the entire amount in one year. The commission approved the interest rates on the bonds to be issued, but did nothing more with respect to the price at which they should be sold than fix a minimum below which the companies should not go. The rates of interest are not excessive nor the minimum too low under existing market conditions. The talk of bankers making ten million dollars on the sale of these securities is ridiculous.

Instead of being criticized for its conduct of the hearing on the motions of the league, the Illinois commerce commission should be commended for the courageous and patriotic position which it took. The public should also know that the commission has an enviable record of fair dealing and efficiency in handling the many important matters which come before it.

STREET CAR MANNERS.

Chicago, June 28.—I was riding on a crowded street car yesterday. A young mother came in, carrying a baby in her arms, and for almost a block she staggered under the load. Six men were sitting near where she stood. A woman, probably sixty years of age, arose and gave the young mother her seat, while the men remained obliviously calm in their seats.

In the same street car a woman, frail and in widow's garb, and obviously in her late seventies, entered. She stood for a few moments in front of three men, who continued to sit, and at length a young woman jumped up, immediately upon noticing the situation, and gave her seat to the elderly woman.

All of which makes me wonder, is our modern civilization destroying all sense of honor and chivalry in our men, or what is the answer?

PROHIBITION IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Chicago, June 26.—It seems to me that THE TRIBUNE and other wet papers are definitely unpatriotic in insisting that prohibition repeal is a vital issue in the coming election. The economic problem is of probdignagian proportions compared with the question of prohibition repeal. It's not a question of whether a man shall have enough to drink; it is the necessity that he be given enough to eat. Let the prohibition question go until the depression is over. D. H. K.

ADDING THE TAX.

Chicago, June 30.—In purchasing different articles on which there is a new tax as of June 21, 1932, I noticed that the storekeepers are charging the customer the additional tax. It seems to me that these articles must have been on their shelves prior to that date and therefore is it not unlawful for them to charge this additional sum, stating that they must pay a tax to the government?

Review Four Modern Books Set in England

THE four books reviewed today are all novels set in modern England, dealing with modern problems, one with its emphasis placed on action, two others concerned primarily with character, and a fourth devoted to scene and a love theme.

GERALD GOULD.

"Isabel," by Gerald Gould [Brewer, Warren & Putnam], is a first novel by a poet who is the literary editor of the Observer in England. The novel is set in London and its suburbs in the years that followed the war. The heroine, Isabel, was not old enough to feel the direct impact of the war on her life, but was young enough to be profoundly affected by the changing emotional and spiritual values that swept over the world when the war was over.

Isabel and her sister, Rosamund, bound together by the ties of perfect love and understanding, represent two vastly different manifestations of the modern spirit. Rosamund marries and bears her children, while her sister, a passive woman, beautiful, passionately desirous of giving herself to those who need her, becomes the talk of London. She goes from one lover to another, demanding nothing, giving everything, asking only for freedom and the right to possess her own soul. She ends as she begins. "I know," cried Anthony (the latest of her lovers), painfully, straining her against him, "but I must have you wholly and for always! I must possess you. I must feel sure of you—I, and I only, of the whole of you——" . . . "You, too, Anthony?" she said, at last. "And I believed that you understood." The reader knows with the heroine that she will never realize her ideal, that she will always be the victim of frustration.

The characters in Gerald Gould's novel are two dimensional. They miss being three dimensional only by a hair's breadth, but that is a very important hair's breadth. The author allows his thesis to overshadow the reality of the characters. The reader feels that Gerald Gould was less occupied with his book than with his personal philosophy, of which he makes the novel only the instrument of expression. The ultimate result, however, is an exceptionally interesting book, written in a quick, amusing, and, on the whole, effective style, containing ideas that are in many cases challenging, even though more intellectual than real, more didactic than convincing.

Ethel Mannin, author of "Ragged Banners," a novel, and "Common Sense and the Child," a serious educational study which aroused both bitter and extremely favorable comment in England upon its publication, has in "Linda Shawn" [Knopf] delineated an adolescent girl's character in a penetrating and sympathetic manner.

Linda Shawn grows up on a farm in England, the daughter of poor and commonplace parents. She has two older brothers who are deeply attached to each other. One of them, the younger, she loves profoundly and the other she bitterly resents because of the younger brother's love for him. The author traces this young girl's intellectual and emotional development not only through the girl's immediate and personal experience but through those people in her life who have direct or indirect contact with her.

Thus her parents, their relation to each other and to their children, her brothers with their many youthful and fascinating problems and experiences; Rose, the servant girl, who falls into bad company; Hester, who loves one brother but doesn't want to lose the other's object adoration; Garry, the fisherman, for whom Linda finds in her awakening personality a beautiful love, all these characters and their varying responses to one another and to life form the substance upon which the greedy and dreaming adolescence of Linda feeds.

The book closes upon her fifteenth year. As a study in the complex and vastly important stage of early youth "Linda Shawn" is both convincing and masterly.

"Mad Puppetstown," by M. J. Farrell [Farrar & Rinehart], tells the story of a house in Ireland whose spell is cast over its owners. Before the war the children of the house revel in its magic and beauty. A mad love of sport and recklessness binds them to their home in Ireland, this great rich house with its stables and cellars, its strong possessive personality. Then the war breaks out and they leave the house. It turns gray and bleak and desolate, waiting with a sure confidence that the children will return, tended by one worshiper and by the ghost of a boy. One child never comes back, but two others are finally irresistably drawn away from England back to their heritage. The book has charm and delicacy, mixed with fun and whimsy.

"Background to Primula," by Pauline Warwick [Dial], has a cosmopolitan setting, in England and in America, in the drawing rooms of high society. A famous aviator meets Primula, one of the richest and most beautiful women in England. And there is Rosalind, quiet and retiring, willing to furnish the background to more vivid personalities. The love theme is gently sentimental and there are flashes of unobtrusive humor and observation that make the book a good deal more than just readable.

Mussolini Grants First Audience to American Bishop

ROME, July 7.—(AP)—Mgr. Bernard J. Maroney of Sioux Falls, S. D., had a 20 minute audience with Premier Mussolini today, the first American bishop to be received by Il Duce.

He wore the full regalia of his ecclesiastical office and, speaking in Italian, told the premier he was eager to meet a man "whom the holy father calls a man of Providence." The people of America, he said, admire Sig. Mussolini "as a man who does his own thinking and makes his own decisions."

In reply to the bishop's compliments on his attitude toward birth control, the premier said in English: "To me birth control is a crime." The bishop told him that many Americans likened his attitude to that of George Washington, who held that there can be no morality without religion.

Sensible Care of Teeth Pays Beauty Return

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A Chicago woman went to her dentist to have a tooth pulled. The dentist must have thought it just another girlish whim to be indulged sans argument. He obliged by pulling a tooth. It turned out to be not the tooth that was wanted out, but a perfectly good one next to it. The woman estimated that good tooth was worth ten thousand dollars to her, which we claim is not an exaggerated value to put on a good, sound tooth. But a jury disagreed with the owner's assumption of a single tooth's value and with mine, and declared one dollar compensation enough for the bereaved victim.

The news story from which I gathered the tooth incident above did not report whether it was a back tooth or a front one. It is assumed, however, from the verdict that it could not have been a front one or a noticeable side one. No juryman could look upon a front vacancy in pearl row and not be convinced a woman's beauty had suffered heavy damage. Even a back utility tooth is worth its weight in gold, and more.

Apropos valuation attending a single tooth. One of the richest men of our country, once used a missing tooth to put over his parable of the personal futility of great wealth. Said he: "Not all my millions can restore to me one good, sound natural tooth."

Like other possessions, the value of a tooth is never so dearly appreciated as when threatened with its loss.

Parents might well think of their youngster's teeth as a trust fund within their means to establish. Sound, white teeth are an inestimable asset to grown sons and daughters on their entry into the business and social world.

Every intelligent person knows that teeth have to be brushed daily. That semi-annual visits to the dentist are the most economical of investments. That teeth and gums must be given exercise on hard and fibrous foodstuffs daily and that mouth washes are excellent to use. But it is because the true value of sound teeth is not highly enough estimated they're let decay, and eventually be lost.

Colored Choruses Will Hold Festival Rehearsal Tonight

Five hundred colored singers are expected to meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Metropolitan Community church, 41st street and South Parkway, for the second rehearsal ofthe Negro merged choruses which will sing on Saturday night, Aug. 20, at the third Chicagoland music festival concert in Soldiers' field, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and cooperating newspapers and organizations throughout the middle west.

Twelve churches and other organizations will be represented with the following directors in charge of the rehearsal: James A. Mundy, J. Wesley Jones, Edward H. Boatner, Elmer Simpson, and William Myrick. A tentative program for this group includes the following numbers: "Go Down Moses," arranged by Noble Cain, who again will direct the "Hallelujah Chorus" at the festival; "O, Southland," composed by J. Rosamond Johnson, and "I'll Ne'er Turn Back No More," written by R. Nathaniel Dett.

Membership in this Negro chorus is not limited to church singers, but is open to all those who wish to take part in this activity.

Bishop Waldorf Puts Missionary Affairs Above Building Plans

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago yesterday told the members of the World Service commission of that denomination that funds for missionary projects must take precedence over funds for church building projects. Bishop Waldorf spoke before the annual meeting of the commission at the North Shore hotel, Evanston.

The World Service commission supervises the raising and spending of an annual $5,000,000 budget for benevolent, educational, and missionary projects. Dr. Orrin W. Auman, treasurer of the commission, reported that the income during the last 12 months was $4,788,462, a decrease of nearly $2,000,000 below the previous 12 months. Dr. Auman reported that the church had contributed $82,755,000 during 1931 for all purposes. The commission faces the task at this meeting of complete reorganization and retrenchment to meet declining income.

Billie Burke Surprised at Movie Speed

Met at Train with Orders to Start Work.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 7.—Billy Burke nearly collapsed when, on arriving today to do her first talkie, "Bill of Divorcement," opposite John Barrymore, she was met at the train by an assistant director from the radio lot who carried a script of the story in his hand and a summons to show up at the studio for her first story conference.

"Sold to the slave marts," she murmured sadly, while her daughter, Patricia Ziegfeld, looked as astonished at the queer ways of Hollywood as her mother.

After the actress had caught her breath and made her remarks to the assistant director Miss Burke rallied sufficiently to hint that her acceptance of the movie job is something in the nature of a plot against her husband, Flo Ziegfeld.

"I want to get him out here, and he ought to be along in two or three weeks," she said. "When I get him here I will try to persuade him to buy a California ranch. I like it here. I told Ziggy he could stock his ranch with as many farmerettes as he liked if he would only quit New York and the interminable choruses there."

Patsy, the daughter, has no movie pretensions and said she would be satisfied to put in her time during her mother's trip using the California ocean and son of her friends' horses.

Miss Burke, referring to the pending union of the Barrymore clan in one picture, "Rasputin," at M.-G.-M., said: "I would like to do that if Patsy had some sisters and brothers, too, but I should have thought of that several years ago."

Billie Burke was accompanied on the same train by Katherine Hepburn, who will play the other leading feminine rôle in "Bill of Divorcement." The two played a great joke on studio representatives who were sent to meet them, ...epburn getting off the train at the P... ena station and Miss Burke and daughter riding into the Los Angeles downtown station, twenty miles distance, while their welcomers drove from one station to the other trying to greet both of them.

The Universal studio is going to have to do something to protect Tom Mix. Since the story got around that Tom's famous horse, Tony, was tapering off his film work to retire in a dignified old age, there have been countless horse traders around to sell Tom Tony's successor. To date Tom has bought 20 successors, and every time he buys another horse he goes around for the next several days in a cold rage at horse dealers who interfere somewhat with his film work.

Guimpe Dress Is Favorite Choice for Parisienne

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Dresses with white or colored washable guimpes are stars of Paris summer modes. Scarcely had these frocks appeared in the salons of the great French dressmakers when they were seized by fashionable women and by professional buyers alike. Mainbocher's guimpe evening frocks are already making a stir across the Atlantic, though they are only two week old fashions, and the guimpe daytime dress is every woman's pet frock wherever you go in France.

The dress sketched today is the type of guimpe frock that the Parisienne wears for hot weather in town. It is a Goupy frock of black orinkly crêpe with a guimpe of white organdy. The guimpe has a pair of short puff sleeves with narrow band cuffs tied in rabbit-ear bows on the outside of the arms. It buttons in front below the round neckline with three white buttons and is a straight blouse held in at the waistline by an elastic. Over this goes the black orinkly crêpe frock which has a draped fichu around the shoulders, a molded silhouette, a circular flared skirt, and a bias band at the hipline. The belt is of crêpe with a silver buckle.

Noted Home on Drive Closed for Summer

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick Goes to Drake.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. EDITH ROCKEFELLER McCORMICK, one of the few remaining Chicagoans to retain a large town residence, has temporarily closed her famous gray stone mansion at Lake Shore drive and Bellevue place and moved to a hotel for the summer. There have been rumors that Mrs. McCormick was planning to leave Chicago for the summer, also that she might occupy Villa Turicum, her beautiful Lake Forest estate, for several months.

It was learned yesterday, however, that she has taken a suite at the Drake hotel, across the street from her old home.

Mrs. McCormick has taken an apartment of four rooms on the Michigan avenue side of the hotel, with windows overlooking her mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive and affording as fine a view of her well kept gardens as do the windows of her own house.

She also has rooms for her personal maid and for her secretary. She brought very little of her priceless furniture with her to the hotel. A piano, a radio, and a few vases constitute the only additions she has made to the hotel furnishings.

Whether Mrs. McCormick plans to reopen her house in the fall has not been announced. The silver and other valuables of the sort have been stored, as they have been every summer, but the rooms have been left completely furnished, so it should not be difficult to reopen the house on short notice from its mistress.

Mrs. McCormick has not left her Lake Shore drive residence since her return from Switzerland more than a decade ago, despite the fact that her summer residence in Lake Forest has always been kept ready for occupancy. She has spent every summer in her town house, which was the gift of her father, John D. Rockefeller, and on warm days lunched and dined in the garden facing the drive, or at a table set on a small porch overlooking the garden. She loves Chicago and has long been prominent as one of its most civic-spirited leaders.

Pierre Bouscaren to Play in West.

When the football squad that is to represent the eastern colleges in the Olympic games comes through Chicago next Tuesday on its way west, Pierre Bouscaren, who was graduated from Yale last month, will join the squad and proceed to Los Angeles with it.

The only member of his family who will witness the demonstration of American football in which an eastern and a western team will participate on the evening of Aug. 8 in the Olympic stadium is his sister, Evelyn, who leaves with Miss Chloe Watson a week from today for a month's visit with Mrs. Frederick Horne of Pasadena.

Mrs. Horne is an aunt of Miss Bouscaren's mother, Mrs. Louis H. G. Bouscaren. Mr. and Mrs. Bouscaren and the youngest member of the family, Henri, will be in Winnetka all summer, according to present plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker left last night for California to spend the rest of the summer at their Montecito residence. Their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray, and their three children, who spend their winters in San Francisco, already are at Montecito for the summer, having leased the Townsend house at the Deane school for the summer as their own house. Hope Lodge, Montecito, is rented to Mrs. Russell Gerstle. Dr. Gray's mother, Mrs. Russell Gray, who goes west from Boston each summer to be near her son and his family, has the Joseph Grafton Minot house in Montecito this season.

Arthur Meeker Jr. had to postpone his departure for Europe because of a recent appendectomy from which he is recuperating nicely, however. He plans now to leave the end of this month. The former Mary Meeker and her husband, Ambrose C. Cramer, are in the Meekers' apartment at 1100 Lake Shore drive for the summer, although they plan to take a trip for a few weeks later in the season. Mr. Cramer also is recovering from having his appendix removed, although he had a much more serious time than his brother-in-law, the latter undergoing the operation when he was fairly well and just over an attack of appendicitis, and Mr. Cramer having had an emergency operation.

Miss Countiss Recuperating.

Miss Henrietta Countiss, who hasn't been at home long from an extended New York stay, was rushed down from Lake Geneva the other day for an appendectomy Wednesday afternoon and according to reports from the hospital where she is, St. Luke's, yesterday afternoon, she is "doing nicely."

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Galt of Santa Fé, formerly of Chicago, sailed yesterday from New York for a trip abroad. The Galts spent several days the end of last week with Mrs. Galt's brother, Ernest H. Noyes, and his wife and daughter, Miss Florence Noyes, on their way east.

Miss Noyes and her fiancé, George Senseney, are flying down to St. Louis today to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene T. Senseney. They will take Miss Noyes' gorgeous German police dog with them if the airplane company rescinds its rule about there being no canine customers, but last night it didn't look as if the Senseneys would have the opportunity of meeting Belo.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Shroyer who live the year 'round in a charming country place out near Cary are planning to motor east early next month. When they return the end of the month they will bring with them Mrs. Shroyer's sister, Miss Louise Wood, who has been at the School of French at Middlebury, Vt., since arriving from Paris last month.

Miss Wood, you will remember, has a school of her own each winter for 3 months in Rome and 6 months in Paris. She will spend the month of

Best Methods of Putting Up Fruit Described.

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

"We eat what we can and what we can't we can."

And this canning bug is just as lively today as it was when we sang the above ditty sitting on the kitchen stool watching grandmother put wonderful syrupy delights into crocks, jelly glasses, and jars.

There are some things, however, that careful canners have learned since grandmother's time. There are summer foods ready to be put up for next winter. Red raspberries, for instance, are at their best this week and in a couple of weeks the second crop of cherries will be taking their turn in the canning kettle.

Close Inspection Required.

The containers are important. For bulky foods, which must retain their shape, use large mouth cans. For the less chunky foods use either glass spring top or the screw top jars. Examine your glass for cracks, bubbles, and tiny holes. Run a questioning finger around the top edge and the part to be covered by the rubber. Bumps or cracks here will let in air and upset all your hard work. The cover edges should be even and free from splits. Bent edges are dangerous.

Always screw on the covers for a trial before sterilizing. If the cover rocks or slips, take a new one. If it still gives trouble, discard the can.

Twice used rubber rings are a gamble. Use new rings. Some rings age in the store or on your shelves and lose their resiliency. Test by stretching about four inches. Good rings should return to their original shape. Or double the rubber and pinch hard. Good rings should leave no mark at the fold.

How to Sterilize.

Dipping in boiling water is not sufficient sterilization for lids, jars and utensils. Dipping has to be sufficient for rubbers, as more heat would injure them. Ten minutes' actual boiling in a large kettle of water is the least you should allow for the others.

When the jars are sterile, lift out and drain on a long sterilized utensil, set right side up on an even surface covered with a thick cloth rung out of hot water. Cap immediately, but do not screw. Uncap one at a time to fill, laying the lid down right side up for the instant of filling. During the whole process keep the cans out of a draft.

Pack with food which has just been boiling. Take reasonable care, but not excess time, to see that the rounded sides of large fruits are turned to the outside and that the jars are packed evenly.

The hot sirup which is now poured in must fill all the spaces, so guard against crushing large sections of fruit in at the top of a can, thereby cutting off sirup from the bottom.

Removal of Bubbles.

Bubbles contain bacteria and should be quickly released from the contents by inserting a sterilized silver knife and moving fruit about, and then by skimming. Berry and tomato seeds should be cleaned carefully from the screwing surface and jar shoulder or they will ruin the seal.

Dip new rubbers [which have been soaked five minutes in moderately hot water] in scalding water an instant, and snap into place, pressing down evenly. Screw or snap on the lids with the aid of thick dry cloths. Never leave jars to be tightened when cooler, as this will break the seal and invite spoilage.

Invert all jars except those with composition lids. Better discover leaks now than later. Cool with a circulation of air beteen the cans, and when they have reached room temperature, pack in a cool, dry place.

The above directions are for the open kettle method. A small booklet describing in detail steam pressure canning, oven canning, as well as the hot pack and open kettle methods, will be sent you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address requests to Mary Meade, foods editor.

PEAR CROP WILL BE NORMAL, BUT NOT PEACH CROP

A normal crop of pears is predicted by orchard owners estimating the commercial crop for 1932. California, Washington, and Oregon lead the production among the states which this year will market about 21,500,000 bushels.

The peach crop, the orchard operators estimate, will be only about two-thirds that of last year, which was a bumper crop year. Seventeen states, led by California, expect a harvest of nearly 49,000,000 bushels of this fruit, as compared with 78,091,000 bushels in 1931.

Why Not Tempt Your Palate with a Meal a la Polonaise?

BY M. NOWINSKI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, July 7.—Travelers in the far east have been known to recount their visceral shivers of apprehension when confronted for the first time with the necessity of eating raw fish, the eye of a lamb gouged from its socket and presented on the thumbnail of the host as the choice tidbit of the feast, hundred year old eggs, and similar dainties. The cuisine of Poland offers no such frightening delicacies. On the contrary the palate is tempted by the appetizing appearance of most of the national dishes. Whether the tummy trembles afterward depends upon your enjoyment of gastronomic adventure and the degree of strength of your individual constitution.

The most startling soup in the world is, perhaps, iced "chlodnik." It is certainly one of the most beautiful. Imagine being confronted with a large plate of brilliant pink soup dotted with spots of red and bright green and embellished with enormous creamy icebergs. After your gasp of surprise at this astonishing dish your curiosity will surely cause you to investigate. The icebergs are really chunks of ice topped with heavy sour cream which flows down their sides and mingles with the lake in the dish. The red objects are "raki" or crayfish floating about, and the green islands are delicately sliced cucumbers. The base of the soup is a beet bouilion in which the "raki" have been cooked. It is served very cold. On a hot summer's day most people find that few things are more appetizing.

Color Scheme a Factor.

Another extremely decorative Polish soup which attracts every housewife who considers the color scheme of her table is "barszcz." Its clear and brilliant crimson is a definite addition to any table decoration. It is made of a strong bouilion to which beets have been added, made piquant by a few drops of vinegar, and is universally considered delicious. A miserable cracker is thought to be no appropriate accompaniment to these soups. Instead, you may be given any one of a number of fascinating hot pastrys filled with brains, mushrooms, or creamed fish.

One of the favorite dishes of this sort is "pierogi," a long roll of light pastry filled with chopped cabbage, ground meat, hard boiled eggs, and mushrooms. This is cut into thick slices and served hot. Sometimes, when the soup is served in plates instead of cups, you may find little "uszki" or "ears" floating in it. These are small, eliptical, boiled dumplings, each with some kind of delicious paste as a surprise center.

If you go on a shooting party, or picnic, or to a buffet supper one of the principal dishes will certainly be an enormous tureen of what is known as "bigos." This is a hunter's stew and is one of the oldest Polish national dishes. The tureen is always enormous, for every one's capacity for this dish is practically unlimited. It takes a long time to prepare and has this advantage—the longer it is cooked the better it is. Real bigos experts cook it several hours every day for a week or more so that the various flavors are completely blended into one splendid taste.

All Sorts of Hors d'Oeuvres.

With the vodka with which every meal is begun, instead of a cocktail, all sorts of original hors d'oeuvres are served. There is "koiduny," small pastry dumplings filled with mutton, beef, and marrow highly seasoned as to defy detection; and all sorts of sausage, including "kisdka," which is made from grain. Salmon from the Vistula is fresh and delicious, and carp is appetizing when the flesh is boned, boiled, seasoned, replaced in its original skin and baked.

You may think that with this abundance you might welcome a cup of black coffee and come to an end of eating for the time being. But, on the contrary, the best is still to come. In no country in Europe is there a greater variety and profusion of game and fowl, both wild and domestic. Chickens are tender and succulent and given an unusual flavor by means of a dressing seasoned with a herb called koper. There are ducks, geese, turkeys, guinea hens, partridges, pheasants, and quail in such quantity and at so reasonable a price that even a simple meal becomes a banquet. From the large estates and the vast stretches of untenanted woodland come hare, venison, wild boar and a bird called "gluszec" which is stalked at night. Truly, for the hunter and the housewife, Poland is a gamy paradise.

To the Sweet End.

If you have survived thus far the richness of a typical repast, you will continue to the sweet end, for the pastries, fruit jellies, and cream desserts are extremely tempting. Nowhere do strawberries grow to larger size with so fine a flavor as in Poland, and during the season a bowl of them with rich, slightly sour cream usually terminates the meal. With your coffee you will certainly not refuse a glass of the superlative cherry brandy, which in color is a gorgeous ruby, and in taste as rich a liqueur as the concentrated essence of ripe, red cherries affords. Any Polish housewife will be glad to give you the recipe for this, but the production of the authentic article remains one of those happy culinary tricks which somehow cannot be communicated.

BORDEN'S EGGS

TOMATOES WILL BE CHEAP; WHY NOT CAN SOME?

Try Michigan Cherries and Peaches, Too.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Nineteen thirty-two may or may not be the time to fall in love, but a portion of that recently new song, "Tomatoes are cheaper," is going to be popular this summer and fall. Housewives planning, or in the midst of, their seasonal canning activities of fruits and vegetables can expect a large and low priced supply of the fruit-vegetable edible, the tomato.

Other crops as well, including the supply of sour cherries now from southwestern Michigan, are good suggestions for a canning program. Chicago is promised a reasonably ample crop of Michigan peaches in several more weeks, to be followed shortly by the usual blue grapes.

Onions for Pickling.

Beans, beets, carrots, and onions for canning or pickling will be plentiful. The chance to can strawberries is gone, but instead stores are beginning to offer the start of a bumper harvest of home grown berries, and especially the red raspberries.

Nature seems to have laid out a fruit and vegetable ripening or maturing program that not only puts variety in the daily diet but permits a housewife and the commercial canning factories as well to put up different commodities without serious conflict in the operations.

The housewife who is unable to "put up" any of the present supply of sour cherries, which really aren't so sour, with sugar, can plan on buying some of the crop that will be on the market in about another three weeks. Door county, Wis., and the area around Traverse City, Mich., will then be shipping to us some of their darker, larger, and later Montmorency cherries.

In Surplus Quantities.

Home grown tomatoes will not be ready, in surplus quantities, at least for another month and likely later, but they will then continue until killing frosts blacken the vines. The same season likely will prevail this year for cucumbers for pickling, cabbage for kraut.

In about another five or six weeks the markets in Chicago, both wholesale and retail, can expect the comparatively home grown crop of peaches from Indiana, Michigan, and some from southern Illinois.

Early Harvest of Apples.

At about the same time the early harvests of apples will be under way, with their accompaniment of peeling and quartering of the fruit for incorporating in jellies and jams and other preserves. Closely following this will be the usual grape marketing, estimates on which are not very high as to volume, but probably not high in price.

Acreages devoted to truck crops in general within hauling distance of the Chicago market indicate that with ordinary weather there will be generous supplies of all those vegetables which ordinarily find demand in Chicago stores.

Veal Cuts Represent Best Meat Buys Over Week-End

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council states:

"Veal is recommended to the housewives of Chicago as the most economical meat buy over the coming week-end. All cuts of veal, including chops, cutlets, roasts, and meat for stews, is selling at attractive levels in Chicago retail meat stores."

Delicious Possibilities in Savory Slices.

BY MARY MEADE.

"It's the weather."

So we say when the baby cries, when the doors stick, when the milk sours, and when the family loses its appetite. Especially when the family loses its appetite. For, we argue, if it isn't the weather there must be something wrong with the meals—and that can't be, for they're the same meals we've been serving all winter and spring.

And there's the answer to the whole trouble. Without ever realizing it, we sometimes become so attached to one group of recipes—one more or less set combination of foods and flavors—that we simply forget that it's not just deliciousness, but goodness plus variety, that makes the family swear that there's no cook like mother!

So today I want to suggest an almost new set of dishes—new because we so seldom bring them into our three meals a day. Chipped beef is the name—or, perhaps, "dried beef" to you. Creamed chipped beef you've all served—on toast, waffles, creamed potatoes, and spaghetti. But that's only a starter on the possibilities which are really stored up in the smoky, paper-thin, savory slices.

For instance, why not a dried beef cutlet or two? They're splendid, knowingly flanked with buttered baby carrots and new parsley potatoes with a dash of horseradish cream to give just the right fillip to lazy appetites.

2½ cups dried bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 egg, well beaten
Salt, pepper and onionsalt to taste
Medium white sauce
Egg and crumbs for dipping

Crumble or grind the bread crumbs until quite fine, and blend thoroughly with the dried beef and melted butter. Season to taste and stir in the egg. Moisten with enough white sauce to make the mixture packable. Shape into cutlets, dip in finely ground crumbs, then in beaten egg and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat [380 degrees F.] until golden brown.

CHIPPED BEEF CROQUETTES.

The cutlet recipe given above will make interesting croquettes with just a change in the molding before frying. But if you're looking for something even tastier for a "different" luncheon dish, try this plan: Blend two cups of cooked rice [cooled] with one cup of dried beef which has been clipped into slivers with a sharp, clean pair of scissors. Stir in just enough thick white sauce to bind, and season with salt, pepper, and a dash of curry powder. Form into croquette cones and dip in crumbs, then in an egg [beaten and diluted with two tablespoons of water] and again in crumbs. Fry in fat [380 degrees F.] and serve spanking hot with savory tomato sauce. And if that doesn't do things to appetites—but it will, as will, likewise, the following dried beef special:

SCRAMBLED BEEF WITH EGGS.

2 tablespoons butter
6 eggs, well beaten
6 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash paprika

Cut the beef in small pieces and heat quickly with the butter in a frying pan. Add the eggs which have been mixed with the seasoning and milk. Scramble with a spoon or spatula until the eggs are cooked. Serve very hot.

Then here's an intriguing use for those few left-over mushrooms and the meat stock from yesterday's soup bone. It's a quickly made chipped beef and mushroom sauce served bubbling hot on crisp toast rounds. Make the sauce from two tablespoons each of flour and fat and a cup of brown meat stock stirred in and cooked until thick. Now add three-fourths cup of cut mushrooms and a cup of minced, freshly sliced dried beef. Season to taste, heat, and serve over hot toast.

Creamed chipped beef with green peppers cut into it makes a pleasant variation of the above. To vary the old reliable macaroni and cheese, forget the cheese and add, instead, tomato sauce and proportions of chipped beef to suit the family tastes.

PLANNING AHEAD SAVES THE COOK A LOT OF TIME

BY FLORA MARTIN.

So many are the tasks confronting the business girl who is keeping house as well as working all day in an office that cooking her own meals seems almost too great a job to attempt. There are always clothes to be mended, washed, and pressed, besides a multitude of other things that have to be done. But by watching the clock and making use of every minute she can still find time for having her own home cooked meals.

A lot of time, worry, and effort can be saved by planning menus for the entire week ahead of time and including in them dishes which can be made over and used for another meal. Let's suppose that time is given over to this planning enterprise on Friday night. Then on Saturday all of the staple foods that can be purchased ahead of time can be bought. Of course, meats and perishable foods will have to be purchased from time to time during the week, but the big part of the marketing will be over.

Staples for the Pantry.

Every housewife has her own idea of what staples she wants to keep stocked on the pantry shelves, but there are a few indispensables such as bacon, eggs, coffee, tea, bread, butter, sugar, flour, and the like which should always be on tap. And then there are the canned meats, vegetables and fruits which play an important rôle in "hurry up" meals.

If the rigid rule of keeping a few cans of condensed milk, canned salmon, crab meat, tunafish, sardines, and soup on hand with the rest of the indispensables is followed, there should be no danger of ever being caught in the kitchen without something for a meal.

An easy way to provide for several of the meals during the week is to have a hot dinner on Sunday and have enough of everything so that plenty will be left over for one, or maybe two extra meals. For instance, fried or stewed chicken with gravy, mashed potatoes, cole slaw, green peas, and pie might be on the menu. Cook plenty of potatoes so that part can be mashed and the rest can be put in the refrigerator for another meal.

If there is still more chicken left skip a dinner and then serve it on biscuits with the gravy left from the Sunday meal. Completing the menu may be wax beans, head lettuce with dressing [thousand island is good]; jelly, or jam for the extra biscuits, and rice pudding.

Household Hints

An acceptable gift is a supply of canned fruit, preserves, and jellies, especially to a bride. By setting aside one jar from each batch, many such gifts can be collected in one canning season.

Herbs for seasoning are useful and decorative in a kitchen window garden. Sage, mint, and thyme may be grown alone or in pots with other plants.

BADGER CHERRY CROP READY FOR CITY CUSTOMERS

The largest yield of cherries in the four years of 1929-'32 is expected this year in the harvest of Wisconsin cherries, according t. a crop estimate issued by the state department of agriculture. The orchards of Wisconsin will yield approximately 6,200 tons of the fruit within the next few weeks. The main cherry producing area is in Door county, but other orchard districts are located in the Kickapoo valley and in the Bayfield peninsula. The state ranks seventh in the nation for its cherries, with the list being headed by New York, Michigan, and California.

FRESH SALADS GOOD FOR SUMMER; EITHER GARDEN OR FRUIT

Fresh salads go far to appease summer appetites, jaded or ferocious. Some of the so-called garden salad combinations that are popular include endive with roquefort cheese or thousand island dressing; asparagus stalks with minced shrimp; potato with sardines, anchovies or salmon and hard cooked eggs; potato, pecans, and cress.

Fruit salads offer similar combinations, such as pear or peach and cottage cheese; apple, orange, and strawberry; pineapples, coconut, and cabbage or celery. A suggestion by Alice M. Child, home economics specialist of the university of Minnesota, is that fruit often can be left whole or in halves instead of diced.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Frankiyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a nursery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well-to-do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty young creature who summoned the doctor. Both men are impressed by the pluckiness of the orphan girl and take her troubles seriously to mind. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Hathaway, a widow friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. Pierce calls on Doria, whose bills he has been paying for some months, to bid her adieu and farewell. Next morning the doctor calls on Gold. He tells her her brother should be made to stand on his own feet and sends her to see Mrs Hathaway. Gold secures the job. Pierce resists putting Gold under the demoralising influence of Doris. He decides to sail himself. He comes across Gold standing forward on the boat, alone, at dark.

INSTALLMENT XI.

THE THRILL OF ADVENTURE.

She guessed that this man moved in other worlds—dim to her yet—which had given him lore; experience. All the same she resented it that he considered the standards of these worlds of his to be inevitable; beyond denying.

"You are at a stage of growth, little girl," he said, "when you see everything in pure colors. But as you go on you will begin to see that your clear colors mix and change."

"Women are great compromisers—they're all the same," said Barney.

"I hate what you say!"

He laughed.

"But you like my coat anyway?"

Gold was out of it instantly. It fell round her feet on the deck.

"Put on your coat, Mr. Pierce. I'm going."

"Angry?"

"No. I don't care."

"You are angry, Miss Franklyn."

"Do the kind of women that I am not never get angry?"

"The kind of woman you will probably become when you are older often gets angry; but only when she doesn't get what she wants; or when anger is profitable; or when she wants to worry her husband; or when she is jealous; or when the restaurant doesn't please her, or restaurateurs don't bow down admiringly enough; or when a cavalier has forgotten the orchids."

She moved away a step, but he stood before her. His high shoulders overtopped her head. "I never meet such women," she said proudly.

"Aren't you perhaps traveling with just such a woman now?" he suggested, and felt her wide, arrested look. After a silence in which she did not reply, he went on: "You don't answer. I'm sure you are. Well, learn from her. Learn all you can. Piracy is the only career in which women have been universally successful."

Her massaging fingers began to set it to a slow rhythm. "I like—you—so—much . . . I like—you—so—much . . ."

She slid aside and passed him.

"Must you go?" he said in a quick low voice. "But we shall meet again."

"I hope not!"

"Don't say that," he said in a new voice, a little rough; but strangely tenderer.

"Why not?"

She did not know why it stayed in her head: "I like you so much." But it was there, a note struck, then running into a refrain; repeated, while she went below to Doria Hathaway's stateroom. Doria was in high good nature. She was lying on her bed in a marabou wrapper like a white cloud over the scantiest lingerie of white satin. Gold reiterated to herself as she entered: "And this is poverty!" And she thought, too, suddenly, that Doria was rather like Gip in her financial outlook . . .

"I'm broke: but I must have what I want when I want it all the same."

Barney Pierce's profusion of flowers, and the lesser offerings of the gigolo type of young men who had seen them off at Waterloo, scented the cabin, which was heated like a hothouse; and expensively upholstered.

Doria looked up. "How nice you are with color in your face! You've been out in the wind? Isn't that young now? I'd rather have my color out of a box! Well, my dear, get out my black chiffon, and I'll wear my fur coat, and just diamond earrings. The first night at sea is dowdy anyway. Still, I hope you can do something better than you've got on? You promised me."

"O yes, Mrs. Hathaway."

"I'd like a scalp massage. Even by hand it brings out the electricity in one's hair, I think. Don't you?"

"I'm sure it does."

"Now, I'll get up." She seated herself before the mirror. "I've told you you're dining with me tonight. How long does it take you to dress?"

"Ten minutes."

"Lord!" She undid her knot of hair, and shook it loose for Gold's fingers; and sitting there, enjoying the massage with the contentment of a stroked cat, she said, smiling: "I've met the nicest man, named Dorrance, and I'm going to have a cocktail with him in half an hour. And who do you think introduced us? Your doctor."

"Not 'my' doctor, Mrs. Hathaway."

"Now, you know, my dear, I have a feeling you're rather a fool over men. Is this doctor married?"

"I don't know."

"Because if he isn't, and as he's so interested in you——"

"He isn't."

"He must be. I mean, he'd do for you to marry. I suppose you are looking for some one."

"I am not."

"No girl can tell me that! Of course you are. And," said Doria comfortably, "you seem fairly contented with being poor."

"Contented!"

She laughed a little. "Contented!" she repeated as the red hair actually began, as Doria had prophesied, to crackle under her fingers.

"You must be, or you'd be in a better job than you've had by now." She put a hand round behind her, and felt a fold of Gold's shoddy woolen skirt. "O yes. You wouldn't mind a poor man, and this doctor's bound to be poorish. He looks it. Now I wouldn't touch a poor man with the end of a barge pole. He's no good to me, I'm not modern. I'm old fashioned; and I like money."

"Is it modern not to care for money?"

"How about love?"

"A woman should learn how to manage love," Doria replied. And then suddenly she thought, with a curious hurtful pang, of Barney Pierce and the impossibility of "managing" him, and how coolly and completely he summed her up and withstood her. It was at the same moment that the refrain ran again through Gold's head: "I like you so much." Her massaging fingers began to set it to a slow rhythm. "I like—you—so much . . . I like—you—so much . . ." Why had so ordinary an approach made her heart quicken?

Doria looked at her appraisingly in the glass. "What are you thinking?"

"O, just—almost nothing, Mrs. Hathaway."

"I had the oddest feeling that the same thought crossed both our minds; though that's impossible."

"Yes. Impossible."

"All the same, my friends tell me I'm psychic." She went off into an amateur description of psychic mysteries explored by her; incredibly simple, banal, superstitious experiences which she alleged to have been hers.

A gong was beaten loudly. The sound approached and receded in the gangways.

"Lord! the first gong! That'll do, my dear. Run my bath. Plenty of bath essence."

"Shall I wait and help you dress?"

"Not if everything is ready. But brush my hair while the bath is running . . . I want you to join me in the lounge in half an hour."

"This is poverty," thought Gold again, as she poured fragrant essence into the steaming bath. "Poverty," she thought, laying out soap of the same scent. "Poverty!" her mind repeated as she took from the stateroom door a last look at Doria seeming to float bathwards in the light cloud of her marabou wrapper. But she went out unenvious, because of the thrill of anticipation in herself. No one could be happier, more exultant, better attuned to adventure! That morning she had been tired, rising early, preparing breakfast for a very noncommunicative and queerly menacing Gip, straightening his room for the last time and, privately, crying over it; lugging her own suitcase down the stairs and on to an omnibus. But unresting as the day had been, tonight she was not tired.

Noted Home on Drive Closed for Summer

September with the Shroyers and other relatives and friends in and near Chicago, returning to Italy in October.

Those popular Street girls, Jeanné and Katharine, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Street of Winnetka, will return the middle of next week from five weeks in Denver with a former classmate of Jeanné's, Miss Nancy Lee.

News Notes of the Travelers.

Miss Ethel Frances Dixon, daughter of the Homer L. Dixons of Lake View avenue, arrived at home yesterday from a round of eastern visits which have filled the weeks since she finished at Westover in early June. Miss Dixon is to be at home next winter, but whether she is to make a formal debut is a moot question in the family just now.

The entire Cecil Barnes family—Mr., Mrs., Cecil Jr., Edward, and Benjamin—left early this week to spend the rest of the summer with their relative, Mrs. John de Koven, at Mattapoisett, Mass. They will return to their home at 1153 North Dearborn street early in September.

Mrs. Henry E. Mason and her son, Barrett, who was graduated from Yale last month, have arrived at home from New Haven, having motored from there, visiting friends in numerous places on the way west. Barrett is to remain in Highland Park with his parents for the summer, but will go to the law school of the University of Michigan in the autumn.

Miss Paula Wilms is to sail on the 16th on the Columbus with Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Plate to spend the balance of the summer abroad. The date of Miss Wilms' return is indefinite, depending on how well she likes her travels.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell have closed their house at 2716 Prairie avenue and have gone out to the Exmoor club in Highland Park for the summer. They may decide later to go to their summer place at Estes Park, Colo., where their daughter, Mrs. Lobdell Atwater, and their granddaughter, Miss Adeline Reed of Evanston, go the end of this week.

The Charles W. Lobdells of Hubbard Woods, who are giving up their customary vacation at Estes Park this season, have Mrs. Lobdell's mother, Mrs. Reuben G. Bush of New Orleans, with them for the summer.

Mrs. Armin Brand and Miss Jane Brand have returned from Europe and are at Lake Geneva for the summer. Mr. Brand joins them for weekends.

Summer Visitors at Charlevoix.

Mrs. Charles I. Pierce of the Ambassador has opened her cottage at the Chicago club at Charlevoix and is to remain at the resort until September. Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh is with Mrs. Adele H. Whiting at Charlevoix for an indefinite stay. The young Edward H. Hageys [Elinor Whiting] were with Mrs. Hagey over the Fourth week-end. The holiday celebration at the resort, by the way, was the quietest in many years.

Eugene and Conover Talbot, sons of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Talbot, had a house party of young people over the week-end, their guests including Miss Nancy Traylor, Miss Barbara Graf, and Torrey Wilkins. Mrs. Dorothy C. Linn, who has been occupying the Howard Linns' cottage at Charlevoix, is to return to Chicago today. Mrs. D. Mark Cummings and her sister, Mrs. James C. Sharp, returned to Lake Forest yesterday after a fortnight's stay at the Chicago club.

The needy mothers and children who are given vacations at Camp Algonquin will benefit from the bridge party to be given this afternoon at Brookmoor, the Barrington estate of Mrs. Robert W. Buckley. Mrs. Robert Pettengill and Mrs. Potter Smith are co-chairmen of arrangements.

Mrs. William D. McJunkin will open her estate at 151 Sheridan road, Winnetka, for a garden bridge tea this afternoon to benefit the St. Francis Xavier Parent-Teacher association in Winnetka. In case of rain the party will be held indoors.

In yesterday's mail was the announcement of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Dake, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wadsworth Harris, to Dr. John Doyle Littig, which took place on Wednesday at the summer residence of the Harrises, Kemah, at Williams Bay, Wis. Dr. and Mrs. Littig will be at home after Aug. 1 at 208 North Division street, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Stores Display Latest Gadgets for the Porch

BY RHEA SEEGER.

A wide awake shophound refuses to stay at home simply because the thermometers have soared. There are too many gadgets being welcomed in the various shops for the heat to defeat the veterans who know the early shopper always hooks the nicest, newest things to perk up her warbrobe, as well as home and garden.

Garden gadgeteers will chortle with gleeful appreciation over the display of lawn sprays, all kinds of fantastic waterproof and water loving animals, with all manner of trick connections, that squirt and spray and shower your lawns, keeping them a smooth emerald green, that looks like deep piled stretches of velvet.

One distinctly appropriate sprayer that will be the bright spot in the neighborhood is made with two genial tail-waddling ducks, gay young roisterers so ducklike that you listen longingly for their chuckling wise quackery about the benevts of a wide and generous shower equipment that shoots up between this wet duet.

Realistic bullfrogs are also fitted for showering your gardens . . . big, bold bullfrogs that probably sang an unusually deep bass before they were lured from their pet swamp and made into stationary and silent shower bases.

Coming in from the garden on to the porch you can sink into some of the giddiest porch swings you have ever lowered your sagging and overheated bodies into . . . luxurious baffairs with three fat, comfortable pillows to back you up. Beside you will be a grand accumulation of ash trays, smoking setups, and a perfect army of tall glasses and mixing units . . . all new and of the vintage of 1932 if your hostess is a fashion wise gadget collector.

Cigaret cases simply stun the prowling shopper with their different and many colors . . . sleek black ones, raking red designs, sparkling white enamels, deep blue, and every color and color combination that any one could possibly yearn for. Lighters get more decorative and more efficient each day . . . at the first twist or rub of your slightly skeptical finger you can produce a strong and most illuminating flame.

Ash trays have grown wide and deeply capacious . . . you can still find wee little ladylike affairs in pastel tinted glass or crystal and silver and gold metal . . . but the summer as ash trays have been designed and made for lazy people who long for hours without moving, the sort of trays that look suspiciously like bowls and deep dish saucers, and what a joy and comfort they are going to be to you and to the masculine chair holders who decorate your garden and porch.

If you are daily faced with the problem of finding extra anchorage for empty glasses and alternately shiver and shake lest your drinking guests forget where and how to properly deposit a sticky wet glass . . . you will invest in the table containers, metal skeleton contraptions, that merely exist to hold glasses, whether they are empty or full.

They are sturdy, unbreakable affairs, that stand firmly . . . the glass holders are bands big enough to grasp a glass tightly around the center. These glass holders are made to hold from four to eight glasses and may be selected in all bright summer colors to blend or contrast your other porch accessories.

Eskridge Off to South Sea Islands Again

Will Spend 18 Months in Exploration.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Bob Eskridge . . . Robert Lee Eskridge to dignify him with his literary laurels . . . is off to the south seas to collect another island. He has dedicated a year and a half to the task so it won't be surprising if he returns with a half dozen new and interesting pieces of floating "terra firma" added to his already impressive array.

"It will be my fifth adventure," he said enthusiastically. "I'm on the stone age trail, you see, and I believe there's a good deal to be discovered and studied, painted and written about in the Caroline archipelago. Each one of my four previous trips has been to islands in the French Polynesia."

Mr. Eskridge had with him the other day a mysterious, interesting looking satchel. After explaining that he had just finished a two and a half hour talk with Henry Field, he emptied its contents . . . a king's "nightie," three pearl fish hooks, a coral bread fruit pounder, and any number of stone knives and axes, so old that you may speculate.

All of them curious, strange looking pieces and priceless, at least on this continent. For they came with Mr. Eskridge two years ago direct from his beloved isle of Manga Reva and, he avers, they are the only art effects ever to have left the island. This isle, in case you have missed his book bearing its name, lies close to the equator in the Gambier archipelago, near Easter island and 1,000 miles south of Tahiti.

Most romantic among these relics, certainly, is the king's "nightie." It's really something of a burial shroud but Mr. Eskridge insists on the more descriptive term. He rescued it from a tomb on a little island off the island of Manga Reva . . . Aga—kaoutai, the name is spelled though not even Mr. Eskridge attempts to pronounce it. Here 24 kings are buried, each one of them rolled in yards upon yards of this "tapa" or covering made from the pounded bark of the bread tree.

"The island is tabu as far as inhabitants are concerned," Mr. Eskridge went on to tell. "A native wouldn't dare risk living on it, but it's sacred to him as the burial place of his kings. The custom is for each district in Manga Reva to send a piece of "tapa" to be buried with the king. I tried to gather together a few of the royal bones but the best I could do was one of the 'nighties.'"

Mr. Eskridge is the second white man ever to have visited this strange isle. A French official was the first but he came away with no relics or art effects.

More significant, perhaps, than the "tapa" are the unfinished votive axes and knives, all of volcanic stone. Archaeologists have been very much interested in studying them to substantiate the theory that a negroid stock preceded the Polynesian race in this part of the Pacific. And this idea is in sympathy with Mr. Eskridge's "lost continent" conviction [also Charles Darwin's] that a series of archipelagos once existed in the Pacific far greater than those today. Ruins on the islands he has already visited, he explains, point directly to such a theory.

"For this reason I am giving this collection of implements and art effects from Manga Reva to the Bishop museum in Honolulu," Mr. Eskridge continued. "When I was in Tahiti after having gathered these things together, I met Dr. Garrett Wilder in charge of the herbarium of the Bishop museum. He inspected the relics, was excited about them and I promised sometime to give them to his museum which has long been interested in learning about the first races of the Pacific."

On this fifth trip Mr. Eskridge will probably gather some more stone age relics, also some of the curious fish of the Pacific. The latter item was one of the requests Mr. Field made the other day during that lengthy conference. He wants them for the Field Museum. Then in Metalanim, an island off Ponape . . . the Venice of the Pacific . . . and on the isle of Tinian in the Mariane, Mr. Eskridge will gather material for another book or two and add many more paintings to his already notable collection.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Asks for Musical Instruments.

"Do you think you could secure some brass instruments for a children's band for me? These are for a guild engaged in welfare work for children, and it is our ambition to have a band. The boys and girls cannot, of course, buy these themselves, and our only hope is in generous people who might respond to this request.

"J. M."

The above mentioned guild has been doing some excellent work with the boys and girls under its supervision, and a brass band would be another good step in its expansion.

Better to Move Out of Range of "Gimme" Girl

Easiest Solution on Man's Purse.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I can't give my lady love the things that other fellows give their girls, and she is always throwing this up to me. What would you suggest?

"J. W. C."

Move on, J. W. C., and out of range of the "digs." Unless you want to be in for the very mischief of a married life! That's the kind of girl you want to run from while you still have your bachelor running shoes to cover the ground with.

Some folk argue that the gimme girls spur men on to success. That you have to demand of men or they fail you in the ordinary conduct of courtship and married life. But my belief is that there are more fatalities among the husbands of the gimme girls than successes. Some men simply are not born to financial success no matter how hard they try. Some men are. And some men have to be prodded into it. But the successful prodders have a system. They tell the man how good he is. How just as easy it is for him to make a success of things as Jones, the neighbor. They do not break down a man's morale by nagging him, sneering him into extravagances he cannot afford.

The question in your case, J. W. C., is have you been honest with the girl about your money? The above remarks apply only if you have been frank enough to come out and tell the girl how much you can afford, how much you cannot. Some girls have queer ideas about the elasticity of the other fellow's income. There are young women who know to a nickel what their own pay envelope will stand in the way of strain but who apply an entirely different kind of bookkeeping to some one else's allowance.

The fact that a man is devoted to them is taken as an insinuation that he must be able to raise the money somehow. It's stinginess or niggardliness or thoughtlessness that restrains his spending hand. A good honest presentation of financial facts would clear the decks. If it cleared the unsympathetic girl along with it, so much the better.

So many young couples get off to a wrong start on the money question right in the beginning. Pride makes the man overstate his actual earning power. He lacks the courage to come out and say, "I can't afford it." The girl is at fault who isn't equal to hearing the truth and coöperating on a safe and sane spending program.

Sally's Guests Enjoy Thrills of Animal Movie

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

There are thrills galore at the State-Lake theater this week, as any one of the hundred boys and girls who accompanied me to see Frank Buck's picture, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," will tell you. For that's what we did yesterday afternoon at our second party of the summer.

We were prepared for a grand time, but what really transpired was way beyond our expectations. The exterior of the theater, transformed for this picture into a replica of the Malayan jungle, puts one into the proper spirit for the expedition which one takes later with Frank Buck. Papier maché lions and leopards and tigers, almost as fearful in appearance as the ones which roar and rant and attack on the screen, greeted us upon our arrival.

We had our pictures taken in this bogus jungle so that we'd have a memento of this occasion and then filed into the theater for the most exciting afternoon we've spent in a long time. The picture is a truly authentic animal film, actually taken in the jungle, where Frank Buck made several expeditions for rare specimens for the museums, zoos, and circuses which commissioned him. There are thrilling shots of night hunts, where the party had to feel its way through brush and tangled shrubs, with only the light of torches to guide them.

For humor, and there is plenty of it, the antics of a honey bear and a pet gibbon named Percy intersperse the picture. And through it all Frank Buck, explorer, author, and the man who brings 'em back alive, converses freely. He tells us of life in the jungle, of methods of capturing the beasts, their habits, their haunts, and so many other interesting things we were fairly spellbound.

BATTLE SEA TO SAVE 63 SUNK IN FRENCH SUB

Under Water Craft Sinks Without Warning.

"We had stopped our motors and were preparing to drop our nets when we heard cries for help coming from a great distance. We looked around and could see nothing moving anywhere on the surface of the ocean. It was an uncanny experience. I would have believed it was a mistake, but heard the cries repeated faintly but clearly.

Saw Heads Bobbing.

"'A small boat must have capsized somewhere near and the men are trying to swim to shore,' I told Colin. Then I climbed up the mast to get a better view and finally saw seven men bobbing around in the water about half a mile away.

"We started up our auxiliary motors and got to them as fast as possible. It was just in time. They were having a hard time keeping afloat in the heavy sea and were about to give up. Two of them were unable to swim because of cramps and exhaustion and were being towed by the others. It was all Colin and I could do to take them aboard one by one, they were so weak."

During the long ride to shore the two fishermen kept warmth in the bodies of the exhausted survivors by vigorously rubbing their hands and feet and pouring apple brandy down their throats. Four of the seven men immediately were rushed to the naval hospital.

Second French Sub to Sink.

The Promethee is the second French submarine to meet with disaster. On Oct. 3, 1926, the Ondine crashed into a Greek steamer and sank with a loss of 43 lives.

The Promethee was one of five sister ships built under the 1927 program to make the French undersea fleet of 107 vessels one of the most powerful in the world. She was 302 feet long and had a beam of 27 feet. Her armament consisted of eleven torpedo tubes, one 3.9 inch gun, one 1.5 inch anti-aircraft gun, and a machine gun.

CANAL BOARD'S EMPLOYES WILL GET APRIL PAY

The sanitary district trustees yesterday voted a pay roll for the first half of April. The total pay roll is $125,028 and the checks will be mailed to 900 employes within the next few days. The board also passed a pay roll for the second half of April, in the event that funds become available. Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, explained that enough money had been obtained through collections to make the partial payment of salaries and that he hoped to sell more warrants to the banks.

Harry M. Christie, advisory accountant of the district, who had been employed by the municipality for 40 years, announced his retirement yesterday. He is 67 years old and will become a pensioned employé. Mr. Christie said that he had been in ill health.

CROPS AND JOBS PROMISE RETURN OF BUYING POWER

Indiana Ratio of Employed Labor Jumps.

BY PAUL POTTER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., July 7.—[Special.]—Rural Indiana has ceased to be gloomy over financial or tax matters while it is watching the favorable growth of the best corn crop it has had since 1921 and 1925. Like its sister state in the corn belt, the bumper crop is being grown on no larger area than in previous years, with a normal live stock and dairy population at hand to consume and market at better than cash grain prices what Hoosier farmers term "mighty cheap feed."

Estimates made in a survey here this week place the corn crop of the state at about 178 million bushels from some four and a half million acres on 180,000 farms.

Tonic for the tired city business man would be a trip through outlying Chicagoland at this time, when an atmosphere of optimism is prevailing as new wealth is being created from the soil and rural communities begin to see returning buying power as commodity price levels strengthen on a natural supply and demand basis.

Not in many years has labor been so plentiful and cheap on farms, according to farmers interviewed. Every available country dwelling is occupied and the ratio of labor supply to demand for the state stands at 213 compared with 176 last year and 127 two years ago.

About three-fourths of all the dairy cows in the state are being milked, cream checks and sale of poultry and eggs carrying thousands of families along until crops are marketed.

Eastern and southern Indiana, like southern Illinois, have less favorable pasture and crop showings than other corn belt areas, while fruit production has been seriously cut in both states.

Hessian fly infestations reduced the wheat crop in the southern third of both Indiana and Illinois.

CONFESSES KILLING STEPFATHER.

Rocco Chearo, 28 years old, 1167 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, admitted to Coroner Frank J. Walsh yesterday that he had shot his stepfather, August Campagna, 55 years old, a railroad laborer, and stabbed him to death with an ice pick. He was held to the grand jury.

D'ESPOSITO MADE ENGINEER FOR FAIR "SKY RIDE"

Joshua D'Esposito, designer of the Union station, was appointed chief engineer of the Skyride for Chicago's 1933 World's Fair by exposition officials yesterday. The ride will consist of two 600 foot towers connected by steel cables upon which rocket cars will carry passengers in the air over the exposition lagoon.

The first task awaiting Mr. D'Esposito will be to supervise construction of a 30 foot working model of the ride. Officials also announced that the first steel for the Agricultural building will be erected on Northerly island this morning. The structure will be 628 feet long and 103 feet wide.

Rufus Dawes, president of the exposition, issued a formal statement acknowledging the signing by President Hoover of the agricultural bill providing for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the federal exhibit at the fair.

Workmen are rapidly completing the bridge which will connect two large units of the Century of Progress exposition—the Electrical building erected on "made" land off the lake front site of the World's Fair, and the Hall of Science, which has been completed for several months.

3 KILLED AS REDS REVOLT IN PERU; TROOPS CALLED

LIMA, Peru, July 7.—(AP)—A revolutionary outbreak in the department of La Libertad, with several persons, including three policemen, killed and a communist agitator wounded, was reported in official dispatches from Trujillo today.

Martial law throughout Peru was proclaimed by President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, whose government attributed the revolution to communists and members of the Apra party.

Members of the Apra attacked a civic guard station at Puerto Chicama and another station at Taijan. One policeman was killed and another wounded in the first fight. Two policemen were killed in the second. Groups described paraded with red banners.

The Apra party is headed by Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, imprisoned more than a month ago in Peru, charged with "an attempt against the national safety." The authorities charged they found documents in a raid on his party's headquarters connecting it with communism.

Chicagoan Told Hoover O. K.'s Million Fair Fund

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Chicago visitors at the White House today reported that President Hoover had signed the 175 million dollar agricultural appropriations bill carrying with it a million dollar fund for federal participation in the Chicago Century of Progress exposition. Formal announcement that the President had signed the bill was expected shortly.

CHAMPIONS SAIL SUNDAY TO FIGHT CHICAGO'S BEST

Arena Rises for Card July 26.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Germany's amateur boxing champions, who will fight the Chicago Golden Gloves team at Soldiers' field July 26, will train at the Germania club, 108 Germania place, while they are in Chicago. The Germania club was chosen not only because of its facilities but in order that the German boys would have advantage of a German atmosphere.

The German champions will have the use of Germania's large ballroom, in which a ring will be installed, and the squad also will have its training table at the club, where three times a day the boys will eat food prepared by German chefs. These arrangements will contribute to the successful training of the German boys in that they will feel at home, although thousands of miles from the fatherland.

Club Plans Reception.

The Germania club also is planning a reception for the team on Saturday night, July 23, at which time the public, and in particular Chicago Germans, will have opportunity to become acquainted with the German boxing champions.

The German squad, the coach, and Frederick Burger, president of the German Boxing association, will sail from Bremen Sunday on the Europa. The party will arrive in Chicago not later than Monday, July 18. They will be met at the station by a reception committee which will accompany the visitors to Mayor Cermak's office and then to their hotel. This will permit a week's intensive training before the international fights.

In the meantime the Chicago Golden Gloves team will be in training at Lake Wawasee, Ind. The Chicago squad of 18 will leave Sunday morning over the Baltimore and Ohio for the lake. They will be accompanied by Johnny Behr and Jabber Young and representatives of THE TRIBUNE. The team will return on July 25, the day before the bouts, and will be quartered at the Illinois Athletic club.

In the 15 days of training at the lake the coaches will have ample opportunity to choose the eight boxers, one in each weight, who will go against the German champions. While all of the 1932 Golden Gloves champions are included in the squad of 18, none is assured of his position. He must demonstrate his superiority over the other boys in his division. At least two boys will be taken in each class.

Announcement of the personnel of the squad will be made tomorrow. Many of the boys who do not fight against the German champions will appear in the card of six bouts which will precede the international competition.

Work on Bowl Continues.

The preliminary bouts at Soldiers' field will start at 8 o'clock. This will permit the first of the international fights to get under way about 9:30.

Work continues daily at Soldiers' field on the erection of the huge bowl. Fifteen carloads of lumber will go into the construction of the inclined platform on which the ringside sections will be built. The vast circle of seats will have three times the elevation of the structure prepared for the international bouts with France last year. This will afford an excellent view from all parts of the arena.

The ring will be pitched approximately where the goal posts are located on the gridiron at the south end of the field. This permits the use of the horseshoe seats at that end of the field. The ringside sections rise to the twelfth row of the permanent seats.

There are 46,000 reserved seats, 13,000 of which are priced at $3.30. There are 7,000 $2.20 seats, and 6,000 $1.10 seats. All the 55 cent seats, 21,000 in number, are reserved. Tickets may be purchased by mail from the Golden Gloves ticket manager, Tribune Tower. Make all checks payable to THE TRIBUNE. Tickets may be purchased at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Tickets also may be bought at the Bismarck hotel, the German club, 175 West Jackson boulevard; the Germania club, 108 Germania place, and at Klein's restaurant, 304 West Jackson boulevard.

The German club and Germania club have reserved blocks of tickets so that their members and friends may sit together. Those wishing to join these groups are urged to get their tickets from the clubs.

ANOTHER SCHMELING?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUENSTER, Germany, July 7.—Hamm, a small mining town and railroad junction in Westphalia, near the famous thermal springs of Bad Hamm, still retains its old walls. The broad expanses of these medieval fortifications, however, have long since been covered with gardens and cottages.

In a miner's home atop these barriers, Heinrich Kohlhas, Germany's amateur champion and Olympic heavyweight boxer, was born 19 years ago. Here he became the inseparable companion of Erwin Pinnow, now of Decatur, Ill., and first took up boxing.

But Hamm, with its small population and limited opportunities, soon offered Kohlhas little to his liking, and a year ago he journeyed to Muenster, another town in Rhenish Prussia, just a short automobile ride from Dortmund, the home of the famous beer, and Cologne. In Muenster Heinrich became a stucco worker.

His Boxing Climb Begins.

It was here in Muenster that he really started on the climb that carried him to his present place on the International team which meets the Chicago Golden Gloves champions at Soldiers' field in Chicago July 26, he revealed.

Until he came to Muenster, Kohlhas had won only half a dozen fights, far fewer than he had lost. Now he has a record of 60 victories against 17 defeats. Thirty-five of his victories were won by knockouts, including three scored in the six elimination bouts to select the team which will leave Sunday for America and the Soldiers' field battles.

Kohlhas has three definite and all important missions in Chicago. First, he must win his bout to earn paternal forgiveness for disobedience. Herr Kohlhas was bitterly opposed to Heinrich's taking up boxing. Recent triumphs and successes have softened the elder Kohlhas a little, Heinrich explained, but only victory over the Chicago champion will earn complete forgiveness.

Arranges to Meet Pal.

Secondly, he must see Erwin Pinnow, who left Hamm five years ago for America and settled with his parents in Decatur, Ill. Arrangements have already been made, Kohlhas said, for Erwin to spend the greater part of the week in Chicago with the German team. Thus the two will be together again.

Campe Studies Tribune to Learn About Chicago

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 7.—Erich Campe, welterweight champion who will fight in the International Golden Gloves bouts in Chicago, July 26, called at THE TRIBUNE office in Berlin today, read recent editions of THE TRIBUNE and admired photos of Tribune Tower.

The police cadet was somewhat downcast when asked how his departure is being celebrated. "I don't even know whether anybody will accompany me to the station," he said. "I don't expect my parents will, but maybe my sister Gretchen will be there."

Campe has done little traveling. He is in the police school at the little town of Brandenburg and boys being trained there do not have much chance to make friends. It is almost impossible for their friends to visit them should they feel like it. Visitors must submit to long cross-examinations before they can call on young police cadets in the barracks.

Campe has been granted leave until Aug. 2, which is the day the boat on which he is scheduled to return to Germany lands at Hamburg. A shadow of anxiety crossed his face at the idea that he might miss the train and not get back in time to resume duty in the school at Brandenburg.

He momentarily forgot his worries to discuss the prospects of his first crossing. This reminded him of his packing. He managed to borrow a suitcase only to find it so large that it would block an entire stateroom. Thereupon he departed to try to find a really cheap suitcase.

SOX'S 20 HITS IN FIRST GAME WHIP ATHLETICS, 13-3

Then Macks Win Second Contest, 9 to 3.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—The usually meek White Sox soared almost to record heights today. They reached their high mark of the season with 20 hits and while so doing gave the champion Athletics a merciless lacing, 13 to 3, in the opening game of a double header. Then the Chicagoans returned to normal and received a 9 to 3 spanking.

Working under the encouragement of the 20 hits in the first game was Pete Daglia, the Oakland Coast league purchase, making his first start in the majors. The big right hander piled up such a neat performance for himself that in seven innings he fooled Mack's sluggers completely, allowing only three hits and permitting only one man to reach second base. Then he eased up slightly, but this did no harm, because of the lead his mates had piled up against George Earnshaw and a pair of lesser lights.

Here's Real News, Men!

Just a few things should be mentioned as proof that the Sox looked like anything but a seventh place tenant in this contest. Routing Earnshaw with five runs in the first two innings was in itself quite an achievement, but that was only part of the program. Among the 20 hits were three homers. Once they worked the hit and run play to perfection. Twice bunts were beaten out to score runs. Twice runners were successfully squeezed across with scores. And stranger than anything was the fact that Jack Hayes, a light hitter, contributed one of the homers, one double, and two singles.

The nightcap was merely a matter of Rube Walberg being a better pitcher than Vic Frasier. The silent Texan was an effective worker for quite a stretch, but in the fifth he pulled a "skuller" on a fielding play and Kress made things worse by running away from a ball that should have been caught. The champions gleaned four runs from this sort of defense, more than was needed. However, they added one more off Vic in the sixth and then dusted off young Art Lefty Evans for a cluster of three in the seventh.

FIRST GAME

Merely as a warmup for bigger and better things, Sullivan doubled with two out in the first inning of the opening game and pranced around to the plate on Fothergill's line drive

TIMOROUS TIMID? ARLINGTON FANS SAY NO—FOR $16

BY FRENCH LANE.

Timorous, a daughter of Apprehension-Bantry Pass, was one of them. Her noted brother was Chestnut Oak, one of the fastest sprinters developed in the east in many years. Tickory Tock, a daughter of On Watch-Sox, was the other. Her brother was Tick On.

At the end of the 5½ furlongs in the Geneva, Chestnut Oaks' little sister, Timorous, was leading the pack by six lengths. Tickory Tock was fifth, floundering around on a very heavy track many lengths behind the leaders.

Despite the difficult footing eight accepted the issue in the Geneva, most of them formidable candidates for the rich Lassie stakes later in the season. Timorous' victory indicated she is much stronger in courage than her brother. She will be a dangerous contender among the best of the juvenile fillies in future engagements.

Timorous Leads Throughout.

As for Tickory Tock, mayhap she didn't like the track. She had worked a lightning fast half mile for the race—less than 47 seconds. Yet she was beaten in two starts in New York. That happened before she moved on to Arlington. So maybe Tickory Tock runs her races in the morning training period.

Timorous was so fleet she didn't leave the result in doubt very long. She was first away from the barrier and immediately pulled out into an advantage of two lengths. Miss Brilliant, a noted mud runner from New Orleans, tried in vain to catch her. So did the Audley farm's Luna Mica. Also Tickory Tock.

When Timorous hit the lower turn she was four lengths in front and the others were all soundly whipped. All Jockey Bobby Jones had to do was let her run as she pleased the rest of the way, and she still was going away at the finish. Miss Brilliant was second and Technique, which had been far back early, closed fast to finish third.

Time Is Slow.

The time was 1:05, very slow compared with the track record of 1:04 1-5. Timorous had been overlooked in the betting as most of the folks were back-

Sharkey, Champion by ⅔ Vote, Gets Belt Tonight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—The Madison Square Garden people will hold formal notification ceremonies tomorrow night to advise Jack Sharkey that he was elected heavyweight champion of the world on a recent evening by a two-thirds vote of the presiding officials.

Mr. Sharkey has been in some doubt about this ever since and, to settle the subject in his mind, the Garden people will give him a bit of jewelry with the title, "world champion," engraved on it. This belt will be suitable for pawning and for tossing around in a table drawer among the tobacco pouches, gas receipts, and letters from his public beginning, "Dear Sir: I seen in the paper where it said . . ." It will be suitable also for wearing around his center when he goes to have his photograph taken for the supercilious magazines, as all champions do.

Mr. Jacobs Bolts.

In the course of the notification ceremonies, Mr. Sharkey also will be advised that Max Schmeling, although he was momentarily upset by the verdict, has decided to support the party. Thus, all will be harmonious except that Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, is still going around insisting that McAdoo got his price, and threatening to waste his vote on King Levinsky. For this he has been tossed out of the party and called a son of the wild jackass.

The Garden people seem to have some of the last few fighting dollars left at this time, for they built a large arena at great cost this year and the notification party probably will cost at least $5 per head for one hundred or more head. It would be more consistent with the times and with the character of Sharkey's triumph to lead him into some beanery and just whisper the news to him over the bevy of eggs, medium, and to let him pick up his own check. But the Garden people's money is about the most aggressive money in New York just now and it keeps on looking for trouble.

On Your Feet, Orators!

Undoubtedly there will be several hours of man-than-whoming by orators of the eminent sportsman and grand old man type leading up to the dramatic moment when Sharkey is advised that, believe it or not, he won. These speeches will touch upon the qualities of perseverance, rugged determination, wholesomeness, winsomeness, patience, tolerance, and piety. There will be allusions to the bitter disappointments, the misdeals, and the raw deals which Sharkey had to endure on his way up to the highest bauble within the princeless gift of the flaming ambition that ever goads all true, red-blooded American boys, and something or other about fistiana's realm of the hempen square where perfect manhood fights fair and square and takes the bitter with the sweet. [Prolonged cheers.]

There will be answers to all this and there is no need to wait until the orations have gone ringing down the corridors of time to file them, because they are available in advance.

He Is a Lucky Guy.

The fact is that Sharkey has never had any raw deals but, on the contrary, has had more luck than any other fighter that ever prospered through the favoritism of a political prize fight commission and the careless forgetfulness of an indulgent clientèle. His artistic setbacks were all highly profitable to him and the notion that Sharkey has had a sad career, which is a sentimental fallacy of all champion chasers just now, completely forgets that his disappointments brought him more than a million dollars. So his soul has suffered from sweet sorrows at worst, and he wouldn't have had any sorrows at all if on those occasions he had seemed half as enthusiastic as the patrons who were making him rich.

Another note in the oratory will suggest that Sharkey has been misrepresented and is, when you know him, a home loving, modest young business man, a kind father, a good provider and fond of flowers and pets, which nobody can deny. Sharkey is more sentimental than most people and the state of his family relations, his intense domesticity, his habit of jumping camp when in training to drive hundreds of miles overnight to be with his family a few hours, have been celebrated in print quite as prominently as his other characteristics.

It's Hooey to Spectators.

Unfortunately, however, these traits are not taken into consideration by customers who pay from $3 to $25 per seat to watch a man fight on his representation that he is a skillful fighter and then see him dawdle the rounds away or ruin the show with a foul swipe that any brawling cargo-handler might be ashamed of. And, of course, on the night in Miami when he fouled Fainting Philip Scott half a dozen times and then went tearing around the ring waving his arms and screaming very, very bad words for

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Pat Malone, a gent who recently has suffered no end on foreign shores, yesterday breathed deep of the good old Lake Michigan ozone, with magic results. Phat Pat pitched a whale of a ball game against the Philadelphia Phillies—a 7 to 0 shutout—and enabled the Cubs to gain a full round on the league leading Pirates. The Cubs are now 2½ games behind the Pirates and with confidence restored, are bent on further whittlings if the Pirates will but pause with frequency.

Yesterday's contest got under way with soul rending sloppiness. The anti-Malone marching club was forming hastily as Pat got the bases loaded with none out in the very first inning.

Pat Goes to Work.

Malone heeded them not, nor was he discouraged, probably recalling that on the preceding day Warneke had filled the bases with none out and had escaped without a run. The Black Knight is a courageous man who will admit that he can do anything that Warneke or any other right hander can do. Yesterday he went about the business of proving it.

The bases had been loaded on a single—one of five Pat gave up all afternoon—Herman's error, a passed ball, and an intentional pass. It was at this point that the Altoona giant thought of Warneke. He slipped a third strike past Whitney and he required three pitches to fan Lee. V. Davis then supplied the third out. After that Mr. Malone was a tough hombre as a pitcher. As a hitter he was strictly a pitcher, fanning four times.

Klein Is Victim Again.

Another thought Pat had in comparing himself with Warneke had to do with the fact that Lon didn't allow the great Klein to make a hit in the opener. Pat didn't allow Chuck a hit, either, and only once did the superb slugger get the ball out of the infield.

Not one of the five hits off Malone came close to being anything more than a single, and no two came in the same inning. Only two came in successive innings. In addition to this Pat struck out seven and not once did he pick on a pitcher. He fanned G. Davis, leadoff man, twice; Whitney, the cleanup hitter, twice; Lee, the No. 5 slugger, twice, and Delker once.

Cubs Make Thirteen Hits.

So far all this gurgling about Malone has overlooked the fact that, in addition to a defense, the Cubs also had an offense—an offense which rapped out thirteen hits.

The Cub attack was led by Cuyler with a triple and a double. Each hit drove in a run, and Ki scored

EQUIPOISE GETS CHALLENGE FROM THREE YEAR OLDS

Gusto, Yonkel to Oppose Him in Arlington Cup.

Equipoise will have opposition from the 3 year old ranks in the renewal of the Arlington Cup tomorrow. Trainer Max Hirsch indicated yesterday that he will start Gusto, American Derby winner, in the Cup. Yonkel is another 3 year old that will be in the race. Gusto and Yonkel get into the Cup at 114 pounds, while Equipoise and the other older horses must pack 126 pounds.

A small but select field is in prospect for the Cup. Aside from Equipoise, Gusto, and Yonkel, it will include Jamestown, Mate, The Nut, Polydorus and possibly Epithet. If there is no additional rain the track will be lightning fast.

Ray Carter, who rode Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt's Zellie to victory in the first race yesterday, is making a comeback. He was a noted rider in the west several years ago before he packed up his tack and quit the game. As late as last winter he was a croupier in the casino at Agua Caliente. Then the race tracks called him back and since early spring has been training to get into riding condition. He had to put on a rousing finish to make Zellie beat the long shot, Fleeting Fancy.

Several candidates for the Classic will perform in the Kenilworth purse and Crystal Lake stakes this afternoon . . . Prince Hotspur, Cathop, Proteus, and Yonkel are among them. . . . Clock Tower, the good eastern handicap horse, is training nicely and will be ready for the Arlington handicap, Trainer Max Hirsch believes. . . . Stepenfetchit and Evening stepped six furlongs over the heavy Arlington strip yesterday in 1:19, and work watchers considered it a good move. . . . William P. Kyne of San Francisco was at Arlington yesterday and visions California as the best winter racing grounds in America next winter. . . . Post time for the first race at Arlington for the remainder of the season will be 2:20 o'clock.

Cooper Leads Canadian Open Golf with 69

OTTAWA, Ont., July 7.—(AP)—Harry Cooper of Chicago toured the Ottawa Hunt and Golf club course in 69 strokes today to gain a one stroke lead on the field in the opening round of the Canadian open golf championship.

Cooper's sensational round clipped four strokes off par and equaled the course record set in 1930 by the club champion, J. J. McLaughlin.

But it was the defending champion, Walter Hagen, who supplied most of the drama. Hagen did not arrive at the course until after 3 o'clock. He had never seen it before, but he started with an eagle three at the 485 yard first hole, turned in 36, and then came home in 34, two under par, for a 70 and a tie for second place with George von Elm of Detroit.

Four Tied for Fourth.

Locked in a four way tie for fourth place with 72 were Olin Dutra, runner up to Hagen in the western open; Tom Kerrigan of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and two former holders of the Canadian title, Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, and Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich.

MacDonald Smith and Wiffy Cox posted 73 to give the United States a clean sweep of the first nine places. Horton Smith, Bobby Cruickshank and Johnny Farrel each had 74 as did Jose Jurado, Argentine star, and the leading Canadians, Jack Littler of Ottawa and Dave Spittal of Toronto.

Cooper Gets Five Birdies.

Cooper's round was nothing short of sensational. He played every shot as if his life depended on it, clipping off five birdies and getting into trouble only once, on the 9th, where he had a six.

Another 18 hole round will be played tomorrow, after which all those 20 strokes or more behind the leader will be dropped from Saturday's 36 hole finish. Scratches reduced the starting field from 116 to 105. Among those withdrawing was Tommy Armour.

Medill Signs for 4 Round Fight Show

Joey Medill, west side welterweight, will meet Herb Peterson in a four round bout on the West Side Boxing club's program at Sparta stadium next Tuesday. Medill, once a leading lightweight contender, signed for the match yesterday at 150 pounds.

There will be nine other four round bouts on the card. In another match Harry Schuman will meet Harry [Kid] Roberts. Danny Neenan, 1932 Golden Gloves lightweight runner-up, will make his professional debut against Art Donovan of Joliet, Ill.

King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, and his sister manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, will return today or tomorrow from Reno, Nev., where the Kingfish lost a 10 round decision to Max Baer. Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, told Chicago friends last night that Leonard Sachs and Mrs. Levy promoted the bout, which drew $16,000 net. He said Jack Dempsey and Sachs have split as partners and Dempsey had nothing to do with the show.

Baer will meet Tuffy Griffith at the Chicago Stadium if Nate Lewis will assure Baer a match with Max Schmeling if he wins. Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, has announced that Schmeling will box either Griffith or Walker at the west side building late next month.

Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, has turned down a fourth match with Mickey Walker at New York July 18, according to Jack Kearns, manager of Walker. Kearns said that Risko has been promised a match with Max Schmeling at Cleveland in September on the strength of his victory over Walker.

TIGERS FORGET WHO GOMEZ IS; BEAT YANKS, 8-5

Star Fades Under Ninth Inning Attack.

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The second place Detroit Tigers opened their invasion of the eastern seaboard today with an 8 to 5 to ninning triumph over the league leading Yankees. The setback reduced the Yankee margin to six and a half games.

Vernon Gomez, pitching sensation of the league, was the victim of the winning Detroit barrage in the ninth and tenth innings. Vernon came in in the ninth as a relief worker and became an immediate target for the Tigers, who pushed over three runs to tie the score. In the tenth Gomez issued four walks before Ed Wells could be rushed to the rescue. Stone's single off Wells with the bases full gave the visitors their last two runs.

They worked a double steal while Berry was fanning. Blue scored and Appling took third on Daglia's fly. Funk beat out a bunt to Dykes and Appling scored. Funk hiked home on singles by Hayes and Sullivan.

Krausse, one of Connie Mack's numerous Boy Scouts, was able to hold the Sox within reason for a couple of innings, but they began to feel him out in the fifth. Hayes scored as the result of his own double and a single by Fothergill. Three more counted in the sixth and that was all for Krausse. Appling and Berry singled and the former was squeezed home on Daglia's bunt. Funk walked and Hayes singled to score Berry. Funk took third on this wallop and scored when Sullivan beat out a bunt. Fothergill filled the bases with a single, but a double play halted the rumpus.

Macks Break Through.

Stein, another Boy Scout, was dragged to the sacrificial altar in the seventh and the firing broke out again. Blue singled and rode home on Appling's homer into the left field seats. Hayes then uncorked a home run with no one on in the eighth.

The Macks finally broke Daglia's spell in their half of the eighth by scoring a pair on Dyke's homer and Cramer's triple, on which Appling made a wild relay throw. Berry's double and Funk's squeeze bunt slipped the Sox another run in the ninth. The Macks also scored one in their last stand on Blue's drop of a throw and a single by Haas.

SECOND GAME

The second game proceeded in a ladylike fashion until the fourth inning when Frasier's wildness got him into trouble. He passed Cochrane to start the inning and Mickey legged it to third on Simmons' single to right. Foxx bounced to Appling, forcing Simmons at second, Cochrane scoring on the play. Foxx stole second while McNair was taking his third swing. Dykes hoisted to Seeds. The Sox retrieved this run in the fifth on a walk to Blue, his steal of second and Grube's single, but the tie was dissolved in a hurry.

Williams pried open the home fifth with a safe bunt to Selph and Frasier then dug his own grave by taking Walberg's bunt and throwing it to second when it was apparent that he couldn't beat the runner. The two men advanced on Haas' sacrifice and scored on Cramer's single to center. Cochrane popped out and Simmons lined to right, but Kress played the ball in pitiful fashion and it bounced off the wall for a triple, Cramer scoring. Simmons came in with the fourth run of the inning on Foxx's single.

Frasier Fades Out Again.

Both teams grabbed off a run in the sixth, but the Sox had to work overtime for theirs. The one scored by the champs was a gift. Selph singled for the Sox after two were out and went to third on Fothergill's single. Kress doubled to left, Selph scoring and Fothergill halting at third. A pass to Blue loaded the bases after which Appling filed to Cramer. Then the Macks were handed a run on Blue's fumble of Williams' popup and a single by Haas.

Frasier disposed of two men in the seventh before becoming involved in the fracas that caused his banishment. Foxx walked and McNair tapped to Frasier, who took a nap over the ball and let the runner beat it for a hit. Foxx scored on a single by Dykes and Frasier disappeared. As soon as Evans showed up on the mound the champs pulled a double steal on which McNair scored. A double by Williams scored Dykes before Evans managed to get the side out.

Cubs Win, 7-0; Malone Holds Phils to 5 Hits

after each. Hartnett was the only other Cub to go in for extra base smacking. Gabby had a double and a single, both of which figured in the run making.

Every Cub except Malone knocked at least one hit, and besides Cuyler and Hartnett, Herman, Barton, and Hack busted in with two apiece.

Get a Score in First Inning.

In view of Malone's recent experiences, it appeared the Phillies would make a million after the way they started things. G. Davis opened with a line single to left and stopped at second while Bartell was landing on first on Herman's error. The runners moved up on a passed ball. Then Klein was given an intentional pass to fill the bases. Whitney ran the count to three balls and two strikes and then was called out when Pat hooked the outside corner of the plate, much to Pinky's surprise and chagrin But Pat was just started on the strike outbusiness. He whizzed three straight strikes past Lee to make it two out. The Philly threat expired when V Davis tapped to English to force Klein.

The Cubs naturally were exhilarated after getting out of such a big jam. Their exuberance bubbled over to the extent of two runs in their half of the first inning. Herman started with a single to center and went to second while Elliott was throwing out English. Cuyler then tripled to right center, scoring Herman, and when Bartell threw the relay into the dugout, Ki trotted on home.

Phillies Are Tamed.

In the second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth innings the Phils developed no threats except a couple of isolated singles, one by Lee with one out in the fourth, and the other by Whitney with two out in the sixth.

In the second, third, and fourth innings the Cubs went hitless, but they broke loose for their third run in the fifth. Hartnett doubled, went to third on Hack's out, paused while Malone executed the second of his series of four whiffs, and scored when Herman singled through Whitney.

The Cubs made five hits in a row after one was out in the sixth, but the net thereof was only two runs. The singles were made by Stephenson, Barton, Grimm, Hartnett, and Hack, but production was held down because Grimm was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on Hack's single to left for the second out, and Malone ended the inning with the third of his strikeout series.

Cubs Pick Up Nos. 6, 7.

Two runs in the seventh wound up the Cubs' production. They were made on English's single, a double by Cuyler, and a single by Barton.

Malone had to do a little extra work after two were out in the ninth. Heathcote got the fifth Philly hit with two down and then Delker walked. The runners moved up on a wild pitch, and Pinch Batter McCurdy walked, filling the bases. The game ended when Hack threw out G. Davis.

In the Wake of the News

ENFORCEMENT.

One of our friends recently had occasion to visit Milwaukee on a business trip. While there he engaged in a conference from which the conferees, since the day was warm, sought the solace of cool amber in a neighboring speakeasy.

After several rounds some incident of the business deal came up again and the men lowered their voices almost to whispers that the bartender might not hear the conversation. He watched, first with concern and then with abject fear. Suddenly he began reaching under the bar into various compartments and placing bottles of hard liquor on its top.

The conferees looked with some surprise until the bartender explained: "O, I know you're enforcement officers. I run this quiet little place for beer trade and only keep this hard liquor for occasional customers who demand it. But I don't want to go to jail, for I'm a poor man with a family to support. Just take all the liquor but don't arrest me or padlock the place. It's the only way I have to make a living."

Our friend, concealing his amusement, gazed over the stock, selected a bottle of a familiar brand, and offered $3 in payment. "No, you don't," said the bartender. "You have the goods on me now all right but I'll not take any more money from you for 'buys' and just increase the evidence. Take it all but please don't take me."

There was another whispered conference after which the quartet asked the man his name, took a bottle each, and departed to his most apparent relief.

What must have been his surprise the next day to receive a check for $20, the price of the four bottles taken by the supposed enforcement officers!

Ain't prohibition, which doesn't prohibit, grand?

REPEAL.

We are not worried 'bout the beer—
What's wanted by the bunch
Is the good old big steam table
With its helpings of FREE LUNCH.

We miss the cheese and sausage
And the pretzels that we crunch;
Let's get back bowls of popcorn
And the rest of the FREE LUNCH.

If beer comes back, 'twill sure be grand
But I've a real live hunch
That the boys will more appreciate
The helpings of FREE LUNCH.

Dick Axman.

Free Lunch.

If there be at this time any who do not understand Helper Axman's reference to "Free Lunch," we may explain this was a trade drawing custom in the days before Volstead. Pretzels, popcorn, and other thirst inducing morsels were the usual offering. Some places, however, were rather elaborate in the food offered. At one time various liquor trade organizations considered this heavy cost outlay and tried to curtail the practice. Of course, there were many places, like Old Quincy No. 9 for instance, which served a mild free lunch, but offered good food at reasonable prices in the restaurant adjunct.

HOYT THROUGH? HARDLY! DEFEATS PIRATES, 4 TO 3

Ex-Boy Wonder Stars in Giant Uniform.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—[Special.]—Waite Hoyt, the big leagues' wandering boy, turned up in a Giant uniform today to get credit for a 4 to 3 triumph over the pace setting Pittsburgh Pirates.

Appearing in a relief role, the former "boy wonder" of the Yankees held the Pirates at bay for the last three innings, while his new mates punched over the deciding runs. Hoyt has been declared through by three different managers in the last two seasons.

A double header was scheduled today, but the second game was abandoned because of a rain and hail storm. Score:

Medalist Five Under Par at Garfield Park.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Robert Ball, the city's best known colored golfer, came in from Sunset Hills yesterday to lead the championship flight in the eleventh anual Cook county open championship at Garfield park by shooting a 67, five strokes under par and one over the course record.

Ball's card was the best of a starting field of 61, of whom 16 entered the championship flight and another 16 took places in the consolation bracket. Morning and afternoon 18 hole matches will be played today, with the semi-finals tomorrow morning at 18 holes and the final at 36 in the afternoon.

George Gelhar, former Medinah professional who defeated Winfield Day of Elmhurst for last year's title, is not competing this year, but Day was on hand and barely edged into the championship flight with a 67. Ball, who won the 1928 championship, will be facing a difficult assignment in his opening match today when he meets R. A. Bowker of Kinsman, a regular and respected entrant in the open, which is conducted annually by the Garfield Golf club.

There will be no peace in the James Woods family for the next two days. Both Jim Sr. and Jim Jr. qualified with 82s yesteday, and all fraternal and filial ties will be waived after the two tee off.

Others expected to go far in the tournament are Roy Hunter, competing unattached, who shot a 80 yesterday; Tod Hardy of Lincoln Park, who had 82, and Al Anderegan of Jackson Park, who went around in 84.

Ball, in	323	333	433—37—67
Hunter, out	343	434	333—30
Hunter, in	444	325	332—30—60

Robert Ball, Sunset Hills [57] vs. R. A. Bowker, Kinsman [66]; Frank Ziegel, Antlers [67] vs. Tod Hardy, Lincoln park [62]; Ed Teres, Garfield park [64] vs. Winfield Day, Elmhurst [67]; Art Husbner, Harlem [66] vs. James Woods Jr., Garfield park [82]; James Woods Sr., Garfield park [82] vs. Irv Berkson, Garfield park [66]; Bud Ritle, Indianhead [65] vs. Vic Tarsa, Garfield park [67]; Al Anderegga, Jackson park [64] vs. Jerry Behstock, Garfield park [67], and Sam Moss, Garfield park [66] vs. Roy Hunter, unattached [60].

The Chicago Women's District Golf association will hold the first of the three one day foursome events on its calendar at Oak Park today. The others will be played at South Shore on Aug. 8 and at Skokie on Sept. 12.

Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour will meet Johnny Dawson of Chicago and Matt Jens, the home club pro, on July 22 at the Berrien Hills Country club, Benton Harbor, Mich. Jans and Dawson were fellow members of the 1924 Chicago public links team which won the national championship.

Sarazen and Armour will play two Chicago professionals, as yet unnamed, on July 21 at the Beverly Shores Country club, Beverly Shores, Ind. The net proceeds of the match will add to the purse for the Beverly Shores' Tri-State open, the dates of which recently were shifted from next Monday and Tuesday to Aug. 8 and 9.

The Professional Golf club of Cicero-Berwyn will hold its annual tournament at the York club on July 20. Doctors, dentists, lawyers, and other professional men desirous of entering are advised to communicate with John H. Kotlar, 180 North La Salle street.

Chicago radio dealers will battle par over the course of the Glenbard Golf club, Roosevelt road at Glen Ellyn, Monday.

TENNIS PLAYERS IN EXHIBITIONS AT SKOKIE CLUB

The Skokie Country club will present a two day tennis exhibition tournament at the club's courts in Glencoe tomorrow and Sunday. There will be three events, women's singles, junior men's singles, and mixed doubles.

Among the players who will participate are Jay Cohn of California, national junior champion in 1929 and 1930; Dorothy Hack, winner of the recent western women's championship; Helen Fulton, Chicago women's champion; Lindsey Franklin of Topeka, Kansas and Indiana state champion; Lucy Jane Hedberg, former western girls' champion; Eugénie Sampson, Mary Reed, and Jeanne Schweppe.

HILLS, RICHARDS ARE SIGNED FOR MARIGOLD CARD

George Hills of Wisconsin has been added to the all-heavyweight wrestling card Tuesday night at the Marigold Gardens, Grace street and Broadway, which will feature a windup event between Hans Steinke and Joe Stecher. Hills will clash with Ray Richards, one of Stecher's wrestling partners. Richards has never before entered a Chicago ring.

The semi-windup brings together Willie Davis and Jim Clinkstock. Two other events will complete the card.

Stecher will arrive in Chicago today along with Richards and others of his wrestling partners for five days of intensive training before the Steinke bout. His opponent has been in Chicago for several days preparing for the match. The winner has been promised a match with Jim Londos.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

A number of Chicago fishermen have either contributed new lures and fly patterns to the fishing game, or also had flies named after them. A good example is the salmon fly originated by Fred Peet, a well known expert with the fly rod, who has recorded some excellent catches of Atlantic salmon in New Brunswick.

As far as we can learn, Chicago has the only ex-mayor who ever originated a trout fly. Former Mayor Carter H. Harrison has this distinction, by virtue of his bringing out the Trude pattern some years ago, a squirrel hair fly named after a friend.

We have often wondered how an enthusiastic fly fisherman, who not only ties his own flies, but also "invents" new combinations of feathers and hair, regards his contributions to the game after years of fishing with many different patterns. The following letter from former Mayor Harrison, which came with five Trude flies which he tied for our fly box, shows that the fisherman-flymaker never loses enthusiasm for his "pet." Mr. Harrison wrote as follows, incidentally giving a valuable sidelight on the Trude pattern for early and late season fly fishing:

"The summer is slipping away and the trout will have sneaked into the tall timber before I get the A. S. Trude flies to you, unless I get busy. You recall my promising them at a Camp Fire club dinner.

"All my fishing outfit is at Huron Mountain, but I did run across an old flybook a couple of days ago. It's the one I use on the stream, a little one, but in it I found the inclosed Trudes. The black one, a 'nigger' Trude, I remember tying on the stream. But I was in such a hurry that I left off the black hackle. However, when the trout are feeling good they never notice a trifle like a hackle.

"I think the Trude is a better early fly than for late in the season, although it does business at all times. Emerson Hough used to say that the Trude looked too much like a baby squirrel to be usable by a real fly fisherman. But he tied flies himself, and you know how jealous those fellows get.

Sharkey for Champ! He's In by 2-3 Vote

all to hear, the patrons could be pardoned for missing something of the wholesomeness, the winsomeness, the patience and the piety of his private character.

He misrepresented himself.

He Got Paid, Didn't He?

It may seem cynical [and if so, I misrepresent my own gentle, believing nature] to straighten out the record on these matters in advance of the eulogies of Sharkey's big evening, but Sharkey is one of the most fortunate men in the U. S. A. at present. He was never charged with any failures that he didn't commit himself and he was paid the full price of satisfactory performance each time, which is more than a workman or artist in any other line would dare to hope for, much less to expect.

But Sharkey doesn't sympathize with himself half as much as his sympathizers sympathize with him. Sharkey knows.

SOUTH BEND WILL PLAY OUT MONTH UNDER NEW BOSS

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 7.—[Special.]—Further developments in the Central league dilemma came today when League Auditor Edwin O. Miller announced the release of Clarence Roper, manager of the South Bend club, and the appointment of Oscar [Whitey] Felber, right fielder, as his successor.

Five players signed by Roper also were discharged and Charlie Worthington, center fielder; Jack O'Keefe, pitcher; Decker, left fielder, and Elrod, pitcher, released by Roper, were called back to the team. William Burke, second baseman, who was released several days ago, will be paid in full and sent to his home in Dayton.

Miller said Roper had no authority to release or sign players without specific orders from the league. Roper was only an appointee and not a manager under contract.

The Twins will continue to play until July 23 in accordance with an agreement reached last night. The players will receive a portion of the gate receipts.

METCALFE OFF FOR CALIFORNIA AND OLYMPICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 7.—Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university sprint star, tonight started his trip to Palo Alto, Cal., where on July 15 and 16 he will compete in the American Olympic team final trials. Ralph Young, Michigan State college athletic director, will be in charge of Metcalfe until the arrival of Coach C. M. Jennings, who is expected to join Metcalfe some time next week.

California and Penn A. C. Win in Crew Trials

Worcester, Mass., July 7.—[Special.]—Columbia and California, the Penn Athletic club and Yale will meet tomorrow in that order to decide the finalists for Saturday's race which will pick America's eight oared crew for the Olympic games. These four crews fought their way through the first round on Worcester's famous Lake Quinsigamond this afternoon in a regatta that contained everything from the one stroke victory that kept the Columbia eight in the racing to the impressive two length triumph of the Philadelphia club oarsmen.

For sheer excitement there was no matching the opening race, in which the Columbia graduates, paced by Al MacBain, fought stroke for stroke with Harvard's great eight to beat them at the finish simply because their oars were in the water as the pair shot over the finish line while Harvard was on the recover. It was as close a finish as a boat race could have.

The official time gave Columbia two-fifths of a second over Harvard, but it didn't seem any such margin. When the excitement of that race had died away a bit California's Poughkeepsie champions came down the course to beat Princeton's eight in clean cut, impressive fashion by a bit more than a length and a half.

The Penn Athletic club won over Syracuse, and did it by two full lengths with surprising decisiveness. The racing finished with the three cornered duel among Yale, Washington, and California's junior varsity. Yale went out about halfway down the course, and, with Johnny Jackson whipping his boatload up to a full forty for the last quarter mile, the Elis smashed over the finish a half length ahead of a Washington crew which had rowed its heart out at a desperately high stroke all the way down the course. The second California boat was a bit more than two lengths behind.

Arrangements for a gallery of 10,000 are being made at the Glen Oak Country club for the all star golf match to be played there Sunday afternoon for the benefit of the Olympic fund.

Gene Sarazen, British and United States open champion, already is in Chicago. He is a guest of A. D. Lasker and plans to play over Mr. Lasker's private course in West Lake Forest. Sarazen's partner in the match, Tommy Armour, is in Ottawa at the Canadian open tournament, as are Horton Smith and Harry Cooper, who will team together against Sarazen and Armour.

Officials at Glen Oak are making arrangements so that every one in the gallery will be able to follow every shot without discomfort. Ushers from Dyche Stadium will assist in handling the crowds and facilitate both the play and the movement of the spectators across the course.

Like the other seven members of the German team chosen for the Chicago bouts, Heinrich is noted among the boxers of his class for his great strength. His knockout record has made him Germany's chief hope against the Chicago Golden Glove champions, and his ability has resulted in special attention from Max Schmeling, former world's champion, who is helping to prepare the German team for the American invasion.

"Better Than Professionals"—Max.

"Kohlhas is a much better fighter than many professionals I saw in America," Schmeling remarked to newspaper men after seeing Heinrich work out. "He has strength, a terrific punch, and he likes to fight. Experience will make him one of Germany's greatest fighters."

Kohlhas' victories include a two round knockout over Hamrick, who twice defeated Sather, last year's champion. He is a likeable, unspoiled chap whose personal admiration is negligible. When he won his place on the German team several weeks ago he asked for a picture of the final bout, explaining that he never had a picture of himself and he would like to get the print showing his opponent being counted out and himself in the other corner.

"The weltmeister [Schmeling] has given me some very important and helpful instruction," Kohlhas told THE TRIBUNE. "He has corrected my one great fault, and now I believe I will be able to cross my right hand after a left jab without losing any of the effectiveness from either. He also has told me what to expect from the Chicago heavyweight. I will be ready for him from the first ball to the last. The weltmeister says American amateurs throw punches from the first to the last.

"Going to Chicago is the dream of a lifetime for me," he continued. "It makes me feel a little different over disobeying my father. He didn't want me to take up boxing. He was absolutely opposed to it. I was trained by a Negro, Alonzo, who started me on the road to the championship. As I got better, father became resigned to my boxing, but I don't think he will approve until I win in Chicago."

Heinrich's employers, the largest stucco firm in Muenster, have granted him a leave of absence. His immediate superior had planned to accompany him, but later decided to forgo the trip. Frieda would like to go, too, Heinrich said, but she likewise will remain at home.

"She thinks it's a little silly," he laughed, "to go clear to Chicago to hit somebody when there are so many around here. But she is in favor of the trip because she knows you can get real American toys only in America."

HOT WEATHER PUTS FREE ICE FUND TO TEST

Friends Urged to Meet Increased Needs of Poor

These are the weeks when THE TRIBUNE Free Ice Fund counts its friends, with mail bags choked with appeals for the tickets for free ice for the old tubs and iron kettles that constitute the only icebox poverty knows anything about. The rumble of the ice wagon is a welcome sound in the city's byways, and fortunately there are those who will help to keep it making the rounds.

Many more than have "registered" to date are needed, though. Acute financial reverses in hundreds of families that never before knew the meaning of the phrase have swamped the social agencies providing free vacations for anemic and undersized youngsters. Consequently the parents turn eagerly to the only other alternative—free ice to keep the children's food from spoiling, and to keep the babies' milk cool and sweet, when and if it can be obtained. Not nearly enough funds are on hand to cope with the demands.

Gifts received yesterday to be added to the Free Ice Fund were:

How One Woman Lost 47 Lbs. of Fat

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds. I was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, as all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C. "P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter, but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks cost but a few cents.

When reducing, attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat.

To take off fat harmlessly and safely, take one half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning—don't worry—it's the safe way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any druggtore in the world, and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

TOUR DISCLOSES WET SENTIMENT IN RURAL AREAS

Even those small rural communities which proponents of prohibition have claimed as their real fortresses now disclose only a slight sentiment in favor of the eighteenth amendment, officials of the Crusaders heard yesterday. The report was made by Arthur L. Stanek of Boston, who is on the final lap of a tour of the country from Boston to Seattle and return to feel out the opinions, especially of the merchant, miner and farmer, in these areas.

"We started May 17 from Boston," Stanek told Col. Ira L. Reeves, as he and his family reached Chicago yesterday. "Our touring car, painted with anti-prohibition slogans in white letters, was the center of interest in secres of small towns. People gathered quickly and bought 'Repeal' stamps and auto plates promptly and generously, listened to the arguments against the legislation and cheered our talks. I encountered only a handful who would admit they were dry.

"I found the major resentment against prohibition is the harm it has done the pocketbooks of so many people through excessive taxation. We had the experience numerous times of having dozens of cars fall in behind ours and follow us with horns tooting and occupants yelling approval, and we got cooperation even in the smallest places from the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform."

CITY COUNCIL PAYS TRIBUTE TO MRS. M'CORMICK

The city council by unanimous vote yesterday passed a resolution of condolence upon the death of Mrs. Katharine McCormick, mother of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, which occurred Monday night in Versailles, France. The resolution, introduced by Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe [42d], follows:

"This council has learned of the death of Mrs. Katharine McCormick, the mother of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and the widow of Robert S. McCormick, who was American ambassador to Austria, France, and Russia.

"Mrs. McCormick was for a great many years an honored and outstanding figure in the life of Chicago and contributed in unusual measure to the social and civil development of our city. She lived a respected and useful life, filled with industrious effort and kindly and helpful interest in all her many relationships, and her passing away is a loss to our community.

"Resolved, that the city council hereby expresses to the relatives the sympathy of the people of Chicago, and that as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, these resolutions be spread upon the records of the city council and that a copy thereof be forwarded to the bereaved family."

RADIO TUBES, like any musical instrument, must be accurate to give true tone. Notice the four strong pillars in an Eveready Raytheon Tube . . . anchoring the fragile elements firmly in place. CEMETERY MARKERS AND MONUMENTS. Sears' New State Street Store, 5th Floor, North End

OUTLINE PLAN TO REFINANCE THREE ISSUES

Underwritten by Lake View State Bank.

BY AL CHASE.

Three reorganizations of apartment properties are reported by Peter I. Bukowski, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee for issues underwritten by the Lake View State bank. In two of them the maturity dates have been extended; in one of them the interest rate has been lowered, and in the third the liquidation trust plan will be used. The three properties are the 12 apartment building at 715-19 Belden avenue, owned by Peter and Josephine Pendola; the six flats at 4753 Virginia avenue, owned by Hjalmar and Hilda Andres, and the Meadows apartments at 4321 Drake avenue, containing thirteen suites.

PETER I. BUKOWSKI. [U. & U. Photo.]

The entire issue of $38,500 of bonds on the Belden avenue flats came due on July 1. The committee, with the assistance of the bondholders, has adopted a plan of extension of the maturity date for five years. Interest will be paid at the rate of 6 per cent with a provision for the segregation of all of the net income in a sinking fund, with the option of purchasing bonds in the open market to reduce the aggregate amount of bonds outstanding.

The building now has a reported occupancy of 90 per cent. The original bond issue was for $42,000, since paid down to $38,500. The present income is somewhat reduced owing to lower rentals, Mr. Bukowski states.

Virginia Avenue Flats.

Reorganization of the Virginia avenue apartment bond issue has been effected along similar lines to that of the Belden avenue flats. The entire issue came due on July 1 and the committee, also with the aid of the bondholders, has had the maturity date extended three years and the interest rate has been reduced to 5 per cent. This reorganization plan also contains a provision for the segregation of all the net income in a sinking fund, with the option of purchasing bonds in the open market.

This issue originally was $35,000 and has not been reduced. The present gross income, which has been lessened somewhat because of lower rentals, is said to be approximately $365 per month. Occupancy is reported to be 85 per cent.

Meadows Apartments.

The reorganization plan of the Meadows apartments calls for a new mortgage of $12,500 to provide funds for nondepositing bondholders, to pay the 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes approximating $4,000, pay legal advances, master's fees, depositary fees, and foreclosure expenses.

Depositing bondholders will receive beneficial interest certificates in the ratio of one share for each $100 of bonds owned. The nondepositing bondholders, it is stated, will probably receive not to exceed $11 per $100. The management of the property will be vested in three trustees, consisting of a member of the committee, a representative of the receiver of the Lake View State bank, who owns a substantial amount of the bonds, and the largest outside owner of bonds.

Based on a full occupancy the present gross income is estimated at $665 monthly. The monthly average operating expenses will be $235. The building contains thirteen four room apartments and occupies a lot 50x125. The entire mortgage issue is $55,000. William Wilson and Robert K. Heineman, of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, are attorneys for the committee.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

The first floor and basement store in the Decorative Arts building, at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Ontario street, has been leased by Bradshaws, Inc., from the Erskine-Danforth corporation for five years on a guaranteed minimum rental, plus a percentage of sales. The lessee formerly operated a tea shop at 127 East Oak street and will open a new one in the quarters just leased. Danersk, which occupied this space, has moved to an upper floor. McMenemy & Martin were brokers.

The United States government has renewed its lease on the quarters occupied by the Hyde Park postal station, at 1304 East 55th street, for five years from July 1, 1932, at an annual rent of $11,000. The lessors are Alexander M. and his wife, Louise E. Harroun. The space included in the lease, on the first and second floors and basement, totals 14,249 square feet.

The three story forty-two apartment building at 7722-34 North Ashland avenue, lot 132x120, has been sold by Carl A. Laystrom to Helen Josephine Barrett of Wilmette, for an undisclosed consideration. Residential property in Monterey, Cal., valued at $35,000, was given in part payment. Magnus O. Benson was attorney.

COUNSEL CLASH OVER SALES OF INSULL PLEDGES

Banks vs. Bondholders Fight Hinted.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The suggestion that the pledging of the assets of the two Insull investment trusts as bank collateral may have been improper was made yesterday by counsel for the receivers in arguing against the dissolution of the order restraining the banks from disposing of the posted securities.

That suggestion was made during the hearing in the United States Court of Appeals. There attorneys for four New York banks were pleading for a reversal of the restraining order issued last May by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley forbidding the sale of the collateral held by those banks.

Hints Future Conflict.

"There may be a very serious conflict between the banks and the debenture holders over rights to the assets," Attorney Carroll J. Lord, representing the receivers for Insull Utility Investments, said in arguing against a dissolution of Judge Lindley's order.

"The facts may disclose that the banks did not have the right to accept all of the assets as security for their loans," Attorney Lord declared.

The collateral involved consists of large blocks of stock of Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

The stock was posted by Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities company with four New York banks as security for a loan of $15,500,000. Following appointment of receivers for the two concerns last April, the New York banks gave notice that they would sell the collateral at public auction for a minimum price of $10,325,000.

Market Value Decreases.

Counsel for the banks said yesterday that the collateral has shown a further market depreciation of $3,277,656 since the sale originally was planned. The total market value of the securities on June 29 was $7,541,647, compared with $10,819,305 on May 4 when Judge Lindley issued his restraining order.

Attorney Horace K. Tenney, representing the New York banks, declared that Judge Lindley overreached his authority in issuing the restraining order. He argued that the District court had no jurisdiction over the property which was in possession of the New York banks or over the persons of the bankers inasmuch as they were in a different federal district.

Most of Assets Pledged.

The bill asking receivership for the two trusts admitted that practically all of the assets of the firms were pledged as bank collateral, Attorney Tenney said.

"The only allegation made by the receivers in their petition for the restraining order is that the intrinsic value of the securities is more than under prevailing market conditions," he added. "A hope is expressed that if the sale of the securities is indefinitely delayed they may, in all probability, realize more with the return of normal conditions. The question is 'What are normal conditions?' The return of boom days of 1929? Perhaps conditions may be considered as normal now."

Attorney Tenney described the restraining order as a "continuous injunction," and said the receivers probably had in mind some future claim against the validity of the pledge which has not been disclosed in the record thus far.

The attorney declared that if the restraining order was upheld, it would establish a precedent which would make it extremely difficult for Illinois corporations to obtain loans from outside banks in the future.

Pledged as Market Fell.

Attorney Lord in his argument brought out that the securities were not pledged all at one time, but had been put up from time to time as the original collateral was impaired by the decline in market prices.

He indicated that Judge Lindley had issued the restraining order to maintain the status quo ante while all the transactions of the investment firms were being investigated. This survey, he indicated, might show that at least part of the collateral had been improperly pledged with the banks.

Attorney Edwin H. Cassels, representing receivers for Corporation Securities company, also appeared. He opposed dissolution of Judge Lindley's order. He stated that the legal title to the stock still reposed in the hands of the receivers, although the share certificates were in possession of the banks.

Heard by 2 Judges.

The arguments were heard by Judges Evan A. Evans and Will M. Sparks of the Circuit court and Judge Louis Fitz Henry of the federal District court. The appeal of the banks was taken under advisement. No indication was given as to when a decision will be rendered.

The banks making the appeal are the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, Chase National, Commercial National Bank and Trust company, and the Guaranty Trust company, all of New York. The stocks held by those banks are 77,616 shares of Peoples Gas, 50,081 shares of Commonwealth Edison, and 24,554 shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois.

Walgreen Sales in June Gain Slightly Over May

The Walgreen company, operator of a drug store chain, reports a slight increase in its June sales as compared with May, although below June of last year. Sales for June, 1932, were $3,831,396, in comparison with $3,703,-335 and $4,890,930 in June, 1931. Sales for the first six months of 1932 were $23,476,893 in comparison with $27,-221,691 last year. Stores in operation at the end of June were 468.

Offers Merger Plan for Ohio Steel Concerns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 7.—Terms for amliation of the Corrigan-McKinney Steel company of Cleveland, valued at $65,000,000, and the Newton Steel Company of Newton Falls, O., and Monroe, Mich., valued at $15,205,000, were announced here today.

The plan, worked by William G. Mather and Donald B. Gillies, chairman and president, respectively, of Corrigan-McKinney, with E. F. Clark, president, and other large stockholders of Newton, provides for an interchange of stock.

The plan, subject to approval by Aug. 15 of Newton Steel's stockholders, would exchange one share of Newton preferred for one voting and one nonvoting share of Corrigan-McKinney common stock. Newton common stock would be exchanged for four-tenths of a share of Corrigan-McKinney voting and one-tenth of a share of nonvoting stock.

Method of Stock Change.

Corrigan-McKinney has only 2,500 shares outstanding of its $100 par common stock. To effect the merger that company proposes to authorize the issue of 1,500,000 shares of $1 par value. Of that total, 1,146,450 would have voting rights and 353,550 shares would not. The Union Trust Company of Cleveland has been designated as the place for deposit of Newton Steel stock for approval of the plans.

Corrigan-McKinney has no funded debt or preferred stock. That concern supplies bars used by Newton, a large manufacturer of finished steel sheets for automobiles and metal furniture. President Clark said that he expected the combination to assure Newton of a raw material supply and Corrigan with an outlet for its production.

Held by Eaton Interests.

Corrigan-McKinney was acquired in March, 1930, from women relatives of the founders, by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company. Cliffs corporation, holding company, controlled by the W. G. Mather-Cyrus S. Eaton interests, owns the entire capital stock of Cleveland Cliffs Iron.

It was said Newton Steel needs additional working capital. The merger approved would cause Corrigan-McKinney probably to advance cash or credit, accepting Newton Steel's notes. The notes would be secured by a pledge of 7 per cent first mortgage bonds.

Newton's capital includes 280,833 shares of no par value common stock, $2,586,500 par value of 6 per cent preferred and $3,000,000 of extended notes.

Baker Censures "Conquerors."

Cleveland, O., July 7.—(AP)—Cyrus S. Eaton's part in blocking the now abandoned billion dollar merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with the Bethlehem Steel corporation was denounced today by Newton D. Baker, counsel for the Sheet and Tube.

"I deplore the use of other people's money to acquire power in the various realms of industry. Industries of this country should be run by industrialists and not by investment bankers, whether it is Mr. Insull or Mr. Eaton," Baker asserted.

Baker, as chief counsel for the Youngstown company, was summing up arguments why the company should not pay the sum of more than one million dollars in fees and expenses asked by attorneys who conducted Eaton's legal battle against the merger.

"Those gentlemen who organized great industries by getting together the savings of clerks, school teachers, and small investors in order to control the industries of a free people to make themselves dominant are conquerors," Baker continued.

RUBBER INDUSTRY NAMES 5 CZARS TO RUN AFFAIRS

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The rubber industry has decided to seek a solution of its problems through the formation of a super-committee of five men who will serve as advisers for the entire trade, it was learned here today.

MAKES FORMAL CALL TO DEPOSIT FRISCO'S BONDS

Brown Seeks to Avoid Receiver for Road.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Formal call for deposits of bonds of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad under the recapitalization plan to reduce fixed charges to avoid receivership was issued today by E. N. Brown, chairman, together with the readjustment managers' and security holders' committees.

The plan was worked out at the behest of the interstate commerce commission, which made it a prerequisite to approval of a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to meet bond interest and other charges. The notice said prompt and practically unanimous assent to the plan is necessary to avert receivership.

Minority Position.

The call emphasized that the plan will not be carried out in such a way as to permit minority holders failing to assent to it to secure an improved position. This was presumably made clear as a result of the recent experience of holders of maturing Cotton Belt railroad bonds. Those who accepted the Cotton Belt refunding plan received half in new bonds and half in cash, while the minority not accepting received cash in full.

Mr. Brown issued the following statement:

"During 1925 the road had gross earnings of approximately $95,000,000. For the four year period 1926-1929 its earnings averaged about $90,000,000. In the calendar year 1929 gross was $89,109,000; in 1930, $74,208,000, and in 1931, $57,112,000. The estimate for the current year is $47,000,000. A recovery of earnings, even to the low level of 1930, by the end of the five year period for which interest is deferred (under the plan) would, it is estimated, permit payment of full fixed and contingent interest thereafter and, in addition, provide at least $6,000,000 per annum for the capital fund and sinking fund set up under the plan.

Tells Road's Hopes.

"If the plan is successful, and there is reasonable recovery in earnings, the company should be able, during the 10 year period covered by the plan, to pay off its entire floating debt, to retire the certificates issued for deferred interest, and to improve its capital position to the extent of over $70,000,000 by the retirement of bonds and capital expenditures from earnings."

NEWER PULLMAN RATE PLAN ADDS TO PASSENGERS

Excursions conducted by the Pullman company in the first six months of 1932 showed an increase in number as well as passengers carried, according to announcement made yesterday.

That company started the system last year. Before that excursion rates were limited to day coaches. The company conducted 140 excursions in the first half of this year with a total of 23,707 passengers. In the comparable period last year 18,115 passengers were carried on 106 excursions.

R. H. Folger of the W. T. Millions of dollars will be saved the American housewife, it was said yesterday, as the result of a drastic reduction in the retail price of Ivory soap, announced today by Procter & Gamble Co. in the first of a series of newspaper advertisements. According to the announcement, Ivory has been cut approximately 25 per cent to its lowest price in seventeen years; nearly as low as when that soap first was introduced over fifty years ago.

AUBURN REPORTS JUNE RECORD AT INDIANA PLANT

Auburn, Ind., July 7.—Breaking all previous June records for shipments, the Auburn Automobile company built and delivered 3,332 cars in June of this year, E. L. Cord, president, announced today.

The former high mark for June was made by Auburn in 1931 when the company shipped 3,319 cars. June shipments for 1930 were 1,015 cars.

The 3,332 shipment figure reflects the success of the company's new merchandising program and the great values which Auburn is giving, Mr. Cord said. He pointed out that the public's reception of this program was unprecedented and that in order to meet the demand for cars Auburn factories have been operating at near capacity for the last 30 days. Unfilled orders on hand and new orders coming in from dealers and distributors, he said, indicate that this demand is continuing consistently.

PENNSY ROAD OFFICIALS GET NEW SALARY CUT

Salaries of Pennsylvania railroad executives have been reduced another 5 per cent, making the third reduction received by officials in the last year.

Supervisory and clerical forces are being required to take off two additional days each month, making four days a month taken off by this group. Including a 10 per cent reduction in pay early in the year, the force is receiving approximately 22 per cent less salary than six months ago. Total reduction by officers is 25 per cent of their original salaries.

WARNS OF PERIL FROM FOREIGN STEEL IMPORTS

A warning that the "dumping of cheap steel" into the United States threatens the future of the American steel industry and its thousands of employes and stockholders was contained in a letter sent yesterday by the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers to congress. The association includes forty-one members. Its headquarters are in Cleveland.

PRICE ADVANCE HITS SNAG IN WHEAT MARKET

Some Other Factors Are Improved.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The forward march of commodity prices, which of late has assumed the proportions of a general movement all along the line, gained some additional ground yesterday, although progress was slowed up somewhat by a drop in wheat prices.

Weakness in wheat was attributed to concern over what Chairman Stone of the farm board did or did not say about the disposal of the remaining 35 million bushels of cash wheat and about 30 millions of futures that the farm board still has on its hands following the speculations of its Grain Stabilization corporation.

During the day a report was widely circulated to the effect that the farm board would speed up its liquidation and dispose of the rest of its cash wheat holdings in two or three months.

Fears that the farm board surplus would be dumped on the market during the season of the major crop movement were believed to have been the reason for price declines in wheat.

Chairman Stone, who was reached in Washington after the market had closed, said neither he nor any other member of the farm board had made a statement.

The board has no intention of liquidating its wheat holdings at this time, he said.

Flurry Is Discounted.

Yesterday's flurry of alarm wasn't nearly as bad as it would have been a year ago. The wheat farmer and the wheat trader are beginning to see daylight.

The action of congress in giving 45,000,000 additional bushels of stabilization wheat to charity has reduced the cash holdings of the Grain Stabilization corporation to about 35,000,000 bushels. At one time the corporation held 257,000,000 bushels. The agreement to sell not more than 5,000,000 bushels a month expired July 1.

Program Near End.

By selling wheat or giving it away the stabilization corporation has gradually become less of a factor in the wheat market. The farm board's program is now nearly complete. The half billion revolving fund is gone and congress has shown no indication of favoring additional appropriations to pay for stabilization operations.

It should not be long, therefore, until wheat is able to join the ranks of those commodities whose prices are made by the operations of the law of supply and demand.

In the sugar market yesterday prices advanced to new highs for the current movement. A 10 point advance in refined sugar was announced by all leading refiners.

Hog prices remained steady and cattle registered new highs. Fractional increases were reported in butter and eggs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—The international conference now in session in Paris seeking a world wide plan for curtailment of oil production and orderly marketing, apparently has reached a deadlock. Rumanian oil men have refused to cut output, according to dispatches received here.

Rumania's chief export now is petroleum. That nation fears, it is said, that any curtailment in output would seriously endanger its balance of trade.

H. L. Pratt to Sail.

Some significance was attached in Wall street to the scheduled sailing tomorrow on the express liner Bremen of Herbert L. Pratt, chairman of the Socony-Vacuum corporation, whose president, Charles E. Arnott, has been the prime mover in the calling of the Paris conference.

The present meeting is a continuation of the conference here which ended in failure due to disagreement between Soviet Russian delegates and the national group, consisting of Socony, Royal Dutch, Burmah Oil and Anglo-Persian interests.

When the Paris conference opened, it was thought that Rumania would be brought into line regarding curtailment because of the big interests held by British and American companies in the Balkan oil fields. But the government delegates, probably acting on orders from home, have thus far resisted efforts to bring production down.

It is reported in Wall street that the reign of King Carol is fraught with dangers, due to the depression and the imminent peril that the country faces inflation to alleviate some of the more immediate distress due to credit and foreign exchange restrictions.

Threatens Price Compact.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Overproduction in 10 California oil fields today threatened to disrupt the recently increased price schedule for crude oil, even though most fields were keeping so far under their allowables the state was well within its quota.

The crude price advance was made with the understanding by major purchasing companies each field would strictly hold within its allowable.

The daily average output for the 10 days since the new schedule was established was reported today by Oil Umpire Neal Anderson as 453,479 barrels, approximately 18,000 barrels under the state allowable.

REPLACE INSULLS ON BOARD OF N. A. LIGHT & POWER

The board of directors of the North American Light and Power company at a meeting yesterday elected three new members to fill vacancies, including two created by the resignations of Samuel and Martin Insull. The new members of the board are Britton I. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois; James F. Fogarty, vice president of the North American Light and Power company, and Lawrence Callahan.

The company is jointly controlled by Middle West Utilities company and the North American company.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—Stocks were dull today. With Lausanne still radiating hope but nothing in the way of concrete developments, congress as loath as ever to knock off from its labors and the business and industrial prospects continuing drab and unpromising traders could find no reason for buying stocks either for the long pull or for a speculative turn.

The market as a consequence was groggy and uninteresting. Selling became quite heavy in some directions in the last hour and the final prices chalked up on the day's operations were anywhere from a fraction to 2 points or more below those of the previous session.

Number of Weak Shares.

A handful of individual issues were conspicuously weak. One of them was International Shoe which gave up another 6 points in addition to its setback of yesterday and another was International Business Machine which took a flop of more than 8 points to a new bear market low. The renewed weakness in International Shoe coincided with publication of the company's six-month earnings report showing a sharp falling off in earnings and net sales values. The reason for Business Machine's reversal was not quite clear. Brokers contented themselves with guessing that a thin market had developed on the buying side in the issue for the moment.

Losses of 2 to 5 points were registered in Bamberger, Barker and Bush preferreds.

Traction Stocks Stronger.

A feature on the upside was a sudden show of strength by New York traction stocks following the issuance of a call for a "transit conference" at the city hall tomorrow. The street has been hearing for some time that the long pending negotiations looking to unification of the systems are approaching a decisive stage. Brooklyn Manhattan transit jumped more than 2 points, but later gave up about half its gain and Interborough rose more than a point, likewise falling back in the later trading.

Tobacco shares put up a show of strength in the early dealings, but the finish found them in the ruck with other groups. Railroad issues were unusually inactive, some of them failing to appear on the tape at all, but the price trend was downward. Atchison lost more than a point and New

Cattle and lambs took the center of the stage in yesterday's stockyards market. Steers reached a new top of $9.00, highest since Feb. 10, and $1.35 above two weeks ago, while yearling heifers sold at $8.80, highest of the year. The advance in lambs was late in getting started, but at the finish of the session best grades were selling 75c above the average of the day before and highest in exactly a month's time.

The peak for range lambs soared to $7.50, highest since June 7, while natives sold to all interests at $7.00 and below. Reports from the wholesale market indicated that dressed lamb was meeting with good clearance at higher prices.

This fact, coupled with the eager attitude of eastern houses, brought larger packers into the trade earlier. Available offerings were below requirements. Buying soon swung into the yearling class and drove the top there up to $5.50. Old ewes also came in for some of the strength and reached $2.25.

This week's sharp advance in cattle prices raised the market above the 1931 levels for the first time this year. Yesterday's peak at $9.00, compared with a top of $8.85 on the corresponding day last year. The bulk of beef steers at $7.25@8.80, compared with $7.00@8.00 a year ago. Advances of 50c were made in most classes of steers and yearlings this week, with the rank and file of offerings selling at the highest prices since last November.

Weighty beeves in finished condition are exceptionally scarce and indications are that there will be a shortage of high quality cattle for several months. According to reports from the country, most cattle back on feed are light in weight and in need of several months feeding before they will be ready for market.

A feature of the trade is the better action in the stocker and feeder division where trading has been almost negligible for many weeks. Better country demand is affording a broader outlet for grassy steers which have advanced very little in price. These sell mostly at $6.00 and down, though only a few shipments of strictly grassy stock have been on the market this week. Several sales of inferior to fair quality southwesterns sold yesterday at $3.40@4.35. Most grain fed steers with quality are selling at $7.25 and above.

Expect good Demand.

Weakness cropped up in several sections of the hog alleys after a mostly steady opening and the advance that started 29 days ago was halted. However, the general feeling in the trade is still strong and many of the best grades were held off the market when prices turned soft. Another bulge in the wholesale market for fresh pork is expected to increase small packer demand. Light loins advanced to 21c, a new high yesterday. The extreme top price for hogs at $5.35 equaled the preceding day's peak, but the top was paid sparingly and the general average for the session showed a loss of 5c at $4.90. Armour, Swift, and Wilson became more aggressive with the first show of weakness in the market and sellers confidently held 5,000 head off the later trade when only 14,000 were estimated for today.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Leaders in the wheat trade were more mixed in their ideas about the immediate course of prices. They realize that the situation is one that requires closest watching. While the volume of outside trading has increased there are too many cross currents constantly developing which create nervousness and bring selling on every bulge. At the same time all good breaks run into support.

It is said that eastern traders who have taken hold of the market have the idea that commodity prices will have an upward trend, and while setbacks are to be expected from time to time they are only temporary and the market is in shape to respond to constructive news. They believe that there may be a setback in the spring wheat crop of the northwest and that the short side is daily becoming more hazardous.

WHEAT LOWER; PROFIT TAKING HITS MARKET

Farm Board Rumor Is Erroneous.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat futures declined about two cents a bushel yesterday after the recent rise. Profit taking and weaker Liverpool cables were factors. The tape carried a story that Chairman Stone of the farm board had said that organization would get rid of its cash holdings of about 35,000,000 bushels in the next two or three months. After the close of the market, however, that was shown to be erroneous, Stone declaring in Washington that no plans have been made.

Coming at a time when prices were around the highest of the day with the pit element largely long, the Stone rumor started a selling movement. A sharp break followed. A little upturn followed later on buying attributed to eastern interest, particularly cotton traders, but the pit seemed to be full of wheat toward the last and the close was at net losses of ¾c to ⅞c, July being 48¾@48¾c, September 51@51¼c, and December 54⅝@54⅝c. Other markets were ½c to ⅝c lower, with an unsettled feeling.

Disappoints the Traders.

Liverpool's action in failing to respond to the strong and higher close on Thursday was a disappointment to those who had expected help from that quarter. At the same time, cables said that there was a fair demand for wheat and later in the day Berlin was quoted ⅛@6c higher, but American traders, however, failed to give this more than a passing fancy. In addition to the weakness in Liverpool, the absence of export business and failure of the friends of the market to sustain the early bulge, there was better weather in the southwest, and unsatisfactory reports from Russia.

Movement in the southwest was comparatively small, receipts at leading points being 1,449 cars for the day, compared with 4,167 cars last year. It is not expected the farmers will sell wheat as freely as last year, as their crop is too small and prices too low for them to get panicky.

The late break in corn led to selling of wheat and made an unsatisfactory situation.

Realizing Breaks Corn.

A realizing movement amongst corn traders, combined with selling by elevator interests, brought more corn on the market than was expected. The buying power was more restricted despite the fact that there were cancellations of receipts of 350,000 bu to be shipped out and charter of 230,000 to be loaded for Buffalo. Elevator people sold July corn and local traders who were spreading between wheat and corn, sold the latter. Movement from the country continues light and Chicago had only 15 cars for the day and the finish was within a fraction of the bottom, showing net losses of ⅝ to ½c for the day.

Commission houses bought oats early and sold them late. There was also buying of September by cereal interests. Weakness in other grains led to local selling, the market finishing ⅛ to ¼ lower. Cash business was limited and crop reports generally favorable.

Nothing developed in rye that was worthy of special comment, but losses were only ⅛ to ¼c and July 29, ½c.

BUTTER AND EGGS

Further fractional gains were made in both butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, but in moving up to the egg war, New Ingring suppose, was fairly active in both markets, coming into butter despite relatively less favorable statistical reports. The four markets reported 353,000 lbs more butter stored than last year and production was reported weekly heavier than last year. However the support held to the close. Egg news remained bullish. The movement of eggs into storage in the four markets was less than one-third. The year ago movement, Chicago reporting a net withdrawal of stocks. Cheese support was heavy and the market ended at all the day's best price. Sales: Butter 85 cars, eggs 50 cars. Deliveries: Butter 1 car. Prices follow:

WE HAVE 8 OPENINGS IN OUR SOUTH CHICAGO BRANCH OFFICE FOR MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

These positions are genuine opportunities at high earnings for those who can do this kind of work successfully. Our successful men make from $4,000.00 to $10,000.00 or higher per year. These men make this money regularly. There are no off-seasons. These positions in cash are just as certain and stable as any business or professional positions possibly can be. No cost or investment.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and acquire skill. During this training period at this time they will be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month, if necessary. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements in every respect you will secure a position with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence, be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the highest income.

We are not looking for the "smart" fellow, the "clever" talker, or the so-called high-pressure artist. We are looking for the earnest, sincere man, no matter what his previous experience or training, who is willing to go to work, study, apply himself, get the habit of doing a real day's work as a matter of course and not as a matter of exception. To such men this amazing new Electrolux specialty [not refrigeration] is beyond doubt one of the really great opportunities of all time in specialty sales work. [Last year was our biggest year—1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year.] If you feel qualified apply for personal interview with branch manager Friday morning, 9 to 12, at Suite 430 Hyde Park-Kenwood Bank Bldg., 53rd and Lake Park-av.
